Delegates Vote On Resolutions For Future Of NDHIA

BY MARTHA J. GEHRINGER
PHILADELPHIA — Delegates to National Dairy Herd Improvement Association Convention prepared for the organization's future by voting on resolutions and a by-law change on the fourth and final day of the event Thursday.

The convention, held at the Adams Mark Hotel in Philadelphia, seated 99 delegates who voted on a total of nine resolutions and one by-law change in the business meeting.

President Donald Long presided over the voting procedure.

The first resolution resolved that National DHIA would "support a change in the tax laws to allow deductions of cost for raising dairy replacement heifers in the year in which they occur."

Carried with an amendment, the second resolution concluded: "Therefore, be it resolved that the National Board of Directors direct these various issues to the NCHIP Policy Board for the purpose of developing more labor efficient record programs, and be it further resolved that these alternative formats be presented to the National Board for consideration in 1988."

After much discussion, the delegate body deadlocked on the resolution concerning annulment of territorial boundaries for DHI or records processing centers. Because of the tied vote, 48 in favor and 48 opposed, Long declared the resolution defeated due to a lack of a majority.

The defeated resolution read: "Therefore, be it resolved that any proposals to abolish territorial boundaries for DHI or dairy records processing services be brought to the delegate body at the National DHIA Convention for the purpose of informing and obtaining a consensus on the membership, and

"Be it further resolved that any proposals give very careful consideration to the long-term investments made by state and local units because of protected territories and include a carefully structured timetable for the implementation of any changes in the current structure of the DHI system."

Delegates narrowly defeated a resolution concerning timely distribution of bull proofs by a vote of 49 to 47. The resolution concluded: "Be it resolved that the National DHIA strongly urge HFPA to make their type proofs available to the DRPC's in electronic form in as timely a fashion as the colored breeds are able to do."

Baltimore Farm Credit

Banks Show Profit

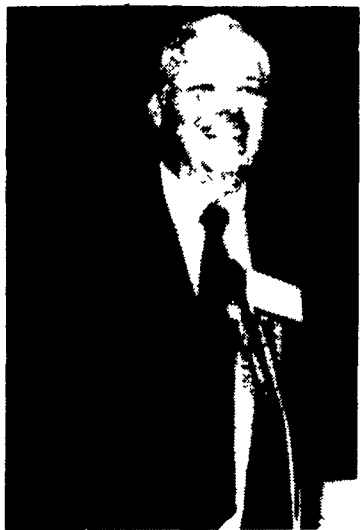

But Share Midwest Losses

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

WASHINGTON D.C. — While the Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore had a consolidated net income of $30 million, some $88 million in loss sharing agreements with other farm credit districts left the local regional association with a $58 million net loss. That's what the annual report of the banks revealed for 1986 that was given at the annual meeting here Thursday. About 700 persons representing production credit associations, federal land bank associations and the banks of cooperatives gathered to hear what many already knew. That Baltimore district continues to operate very well. And in the absence of the loss sharing with midwest districts would have shown a substantial net income.

According to Gene Swackhamer, president of the Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore, every statistic in the operation that is monitored showed improvement over 1985 except values which declined further. Delinquencies are down and foreclosures are down. "Everything we are looking at that would reflect continuing or emerging problems has remained very stable," Swackhamer said. "Agriculture is going through a lot of change. And the Farm Credit System is going through a lot of change. And we are trying to adapt

Farmers' Opinions Must Be Considered In All Policies

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

WASHINGTON, D.C. — It is no longer possible for a congressman of the United States or the state legislature or a member of local government, to proceed in the development of policy without taking into full consideration the interests and the opinions of the farmer and the farm community. That's what United States representative George W. Gekas from the Seventeenth District told the 200 farmers gathered here this week on the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association's Annual Legislative Tour to the halls of Congress.

"The farmer is no longer chained to the plot of ground where he was born," Gekas said. "A farmer is now involved in farm policy, not just getting across the road to the other side but in foreign policy. All you need to do is look back at the great grain embargo of yesteryear. This was brought about by the United States being involved in a decision involving foreign policy. That was a farmer's issue, a grain issue, a farmer/agribusiness issue. The most gigantic issue that can possibly occur within our country of international scope affects the homestead of the farmer. Then you can go to technology. Even the old farmhouse now has something that comes from the assistance of a computer. If the Extension Service does its job, it uses a computer. And if the farmer takes advantage of the Extension Service this farm

Growers Talk Turkey In Gettysburg

BY JACK HUBLEY

GETTYSBURG — Five years ago Penn State poultry science Professor Herbert Jordan predicted that turkeys would outnumber humans in Pennsylvania by the year 2000.

Today, Jordan admits that he missed his guess. If turkey production and consumption continue to increase at their present rate, that date will have to be revised to 1995. "The turkey is knocking at the door in Pennsylvania," says Jordan, pointing out that consumption has increased from 1.6 pounds per person annually in 1931 to 14 pounds last year. Some experts believe that consumption may rise another two pounds by the end of the year.

Ken Longacre, president of Horace W. Longacre Inc., and Wampler-Longacre of Franconia, Pa., couldn't be happier that Americans are talking turkey. One of the featured speakers at the Pennsylvania Turkey Conference held in Gettysburg Tuesday, Longacre thanked further processed turkey products for bringing turkey into the consumer's home on a year-round basis. "Further processed turkey, in my opinion, is in its infancy," said Longacre. "I'm convinced we're just at the beginning of an explosion of further processed turkey products."

FUTURES MARKET TRENDS GRAIN AND LIVESTOCK

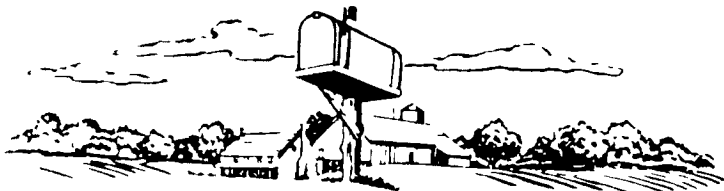

This market information provided by ACRES is a copyrighted market information service developed by the American Farm Bureau and available to Pennsylvania farmers on a daily basis through Pennsylvania Farmers Association Farm Management Services. ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures closed slightly higher after posting losses throughout most of today's trading session. Corn closed strong compared to today's trade due to shortcovering buying by commission houses. There was light overnight movement in the cash market and commercial buying of May contracts for possible near term export business with Mexico added a good tone in the corn market on the closing bell.

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Hog futures closed mixed to slightly lower across the board today. Pork belly futures were basically steady to lower on spillover weakness from the neighboring cattle futures. Cash hogs traded firm to $.50 higher at most terminals with tops of $48.50. The cash market has rallied back slightly over the last few trading sessions but let's not confuse this rally with the overall downtrending seasonal phase.

April futures are trading at $44.60 with the cash market at $48.50 and in all likelihood, before the April futures expire, both cash and futures will be equal. This means we have a potential of a $4.00 break in the cash market between now and April 20th.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Cattle futures closed sharply lower today. The cattle futures gave up most of yesterday's gain in a sharp sell off during the last few minutes. Feeder cattle came back down near last week's lows closing sluggish. The cash market opened steady to $.50 higher which appeared to be a good start, but slowly deteriorated through the trading session, closing steady to $.50 lower.

DAIRY AWARDS

On Friday, March 20, 1987, Pennfield will hold its annual Dairy Awards Luncheon at the Good & Plenty Restaurant. Each year we take this opportunity to recognize the accomplishments of our many fine dairy customers who put in many long hours in order to feed, milk and manage their dairy herds.

Lancaster Farming

AGRICULTURE America's Heartbeat And The First Day of Spring

Before you get the next issue of Lancaster Farming, it will be spring. March 20, you know, is the day all farmers' minds turn to plowing and planting. But that's not all that happens on March 20.

As usual the Congress of the United States and the President have officially recognized this day as National Agricultural Day. And if agriculture should be saluted in the nation, it should also be done in Lancaster Farming Territory. As our new Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Boyd Wolff said this week, "Agriculture is the Commonwealth's leading industry and provides $35 billion in economic activity and is a significant source of jobs for rural and urban residents."

Across America, agriculture provides 20 percent of the gross national product of $3.3 trillion. The agriculture-day slogan is "Agriculture: America's Heartbeat", and the theme is "The Business of Food and Fiber." The observance is held annually on the first day of spring, a tradition that has been going on since 1973. Agriculture is America's leading industry and the largest single source of jobs, just like it is in Pennsylvania.

Another way to say it is that agriculture provides employment for one out of every five job holders in Pennsylvania. From those who labor in the fields to others who process foods in city-based plants. The industry of agriculture is an economic lifeline for thousands of rural Pennsylvania communities and the several million people who live in them. It is the source of essential food and fiber for Pennsylvanians wherever they live.

Here are some facts about Pennsylvania agriculture that you might like to know. It's 53,000 farm families annually produce $4 billion in crops and livestock. The agriculture and food industry employs nearly 1.2 million persons. The most current data on farm product marketing shows that Pennsylvania ranks 17th in the nation. Pennsylvania's share of agricultural cash receipts in the northeast now stand at 40 percent. The net income per farm averaged $13,115 in 1985. Farm production expenses were estimated at approximately $3 billion.

Farm land in Pennsylvania totals 8.7 million acres according to the most recent confirmed data. The averaged size farm is 150 acres, and the current per acre value of land with buildings included is $1450.

Pennsylvania is the nation's fifth leading producer of milk churning out seven percent of the nation's supply from its 14,000 commercial dairy farms. Production in 1985 was a record high 9.98 billion pounds, which was valued at $1.33 billion.

The latest data available shows inventories on Pennsylvania farms of 1.9 million cattle and calves, 780,000 hogs and pigs and 93,000 sheep and lambs. The total value of livestock inventory is $1.1 billion. The gross income from the marketing of animals was $420 million in 1985. The value of poultry production in Pennsylvania was $417.8 million in 1985, the latest year for which data was available. Cash receipts were estimated at $409 million. The Commonwealth ranked third in the nation in the number of layers and in egg production.

The production value of Pennsylvania's principle field and forage vegetable and fruit crops was $1.4 billion in 1985. The marketing of those crops resulted in cash receipts of $923 million. Pennsylvania ranks in the top 10 nationwide in the production of 12 different crops: mushrooms, corn for silage, apples, grapes, peaches, tart cherries, rye, tobacco, pears, sweet cherries, oats and all hay.

Any way you look at it, agriculture is America's heartbeat. And what's true of the nation is even more true in Pennsylvania.

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin
Lancaster County Agriculture Agent

To Prevent Water Pollution

The quality of our water supplies is very important; in most cases it should receive more attention. Many people have wells with high bacteria count and/or high nitrates. Both of these are undesirable for both domestic and livestock consumption. When feedlots and barns are cleaned out this spring, every effort should be made to incorporate this manure into the topsoil just as quickly as possible. With liquid manure, the soil injection type of applicator does an excellent job. With other types of surface spreaders, the manure should be disked or plowed into the topsoil soon after application; this is especially true on slopes above water supplies. The application of fertilizers warrants the same attention; mix it with the top soil very soon after application. Also surface water should be directed away from wells or any other water supply.

To Control Wild Garlic

We may like onions on our hamburgers and in other foods, but very few of us like onion-flavored milk. This can easily happen on dairy farms where wild garlic plants are allowed to grow. Many pastures are infested with wild garlic. One of the best times to start control measures on this weed is early spring when the young plants are 4 to 8 inches high. An application of 2,4-D will knock them down. Follow the label for directions. When this is applied around the middle to latter part of March, little damage is done to any legume in the area. If garlic plants are allowed to mature each year, the pasture area will become so contaminated that dairy cows cannot utilize the grass.

To Care For Horses

Many horses and ponies are neglected this time of year. When they are kept in a stable for long periods of time, such as during the winter, they can get out of condition and they may develop some bad habits. But you can avoid this by following good management practices.

Your horses are natural athletes and need the daily workout to keep their muscles, feet and legs in good condition. Twenty to 25 minutes on the end of a long line is one of the best ways. Just let the horses run circles around you. This keeps him from getting fat and developing weak feet and legs.

Don't feed moldy, dusty or dirty hay or grain to horses; this could result in respiratory problems. Free choice of clean water, salt and minerals should be provided. Good care now will help bring good performance during the rest of the year.

To Control Mice in Orchards

Now that the winter weather is almost gone, our fruit growers should take a look at the newly exposed grass and sod in their orchards. If there are runways at the surface of the grass, it is a good sign that there are plenty of mice in the orchard even though a mouse baiting program may have been followed last fall.

The mice have used up their stockpiles of stored food and are now looking for a fresh supply. At this time of the year they will move quickly onto bark and roots of fruit trees.

Fruit growers should rebait their orchards as soon as possible if there are fresh mouse signs.

For growers who put out bait stations in the orchard last fall, it will be a simple matter of replenishing the rodenticide — treated bait under all the stations. You must remember that the mice are hungry and can do a lot of damage to fruit trees between now and the time that other plants start to grow in the spring.

March 15, 1987

Background Scripture: Luke 22:1-23.
Devotional Reading: John 11:45-53.

A month ago we were visiting for the first time on the island of Jersey in the English Channel. One day, as we were touring an old fort that had been turned into a large recreational complex, we talked to one of the complex's officials. I've forgotten how, but our conversation induced the man to reminisce about his experiences during the Nazi occupation of Jersey and the other Channel Islands during World War II. He told us that, after he had been sent off to a concentration camp, his mother had taken in one day a Russian prisoner who had escaped from a nearby prison compound. Despite the danger of being shot had the Nazis discovered it, she hid the Russian escapee until the surrender of the German forces on V-E Day.

BEFORE I SUFFER

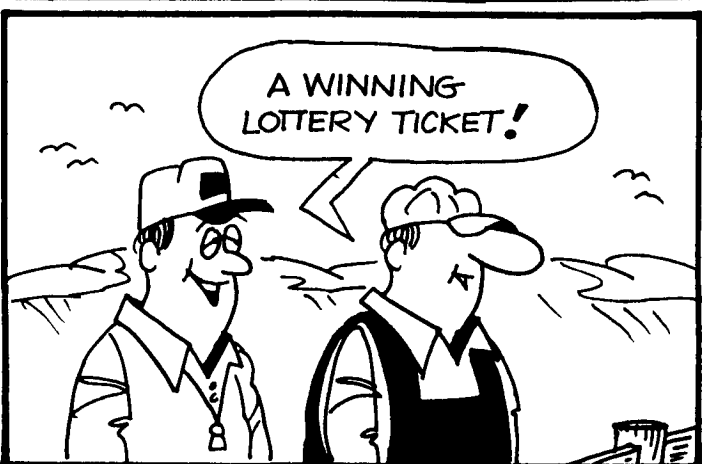

The story was not only interesting to me, but very thought-provoking as well. This woman risked her life for a man she hadn't known and whose language she couldn't even speak. It occurred to me that I had forgotten the valiant sacrifices people had made during World War II. Looking back from the standpoint of our own era, I couldn't help wondering how much self-sacrifice people might risk if we faced similar circumstances today. I may be wrong in this perception, but it seems to me that we live in a day when most people will stand up for the right only when it can be done without risk to one's life or well-being. The code prevalent in our world today seems to be one of "self first; others only if it doesn't cost too much."

Both by his teachings and his life, however, Jesus teaches us that the essence of responding rightly to God is our willingness, if need be, to sacrifice ourselves for others. This is apparent, not only on Good Friday, but also Maundy Thursday. "This is my body which is given for you" (22:19), he said. I don't believe Jesus wanted to suffer or that he sought it. But, neither did he shrink from it when it became necessary.

THIS DO

Thus, he gave us one of the most sublime of all sacraments, "Holy Communion," and we receive it "in remembrance" of him and what he did for us. He asked us, through his disciples, to "Do this" and we do — again and again. But the bread and the cup that we receive at the "Lord's supper" are meaningless unless, by this communion with him, we too are willing to give ourselves in self-sacrificing love to whatever cross he call us.

ATTENTION TOBACCO FARMERS

Pennsylvania Tobacco Auction Has Only Two More Tobacco Sales Scheduled

P.T.A. has sales scheduled for Monday, March 16 and Monday, March 23. After that sale dates are not definite. P.T.A. has provided the best possible market available for your tobacco. We have moved a lot of tobacco the last three weeks and ask that you make a decision to sell your tobacco on the auction floor or to process your tobacco as soon as possible.

WE ARE RECEIVING FOR THE TOBACCO POOL FOR E.J. PARKER

Call for information immediately!

We ask that farmers make decisions soon, buyers will not be here forever. We thank you for your support!

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Auction Warehouses will continue to hold sales up to and including the week of March 23.

If you still wish to sell your crop at auction, phone warehouses to schedule your delivery. Warehouses are prepared to move your tobacco through the auction system - to turn crop into cash. As warmer weather approaches, growers should be concerned about bales heating.

The auction system has proved to be a vital part of the tobacco marketing system in this depressed season. The Keystone Tobacco Marketing Group will continue to strive towards providing you the best market available for your crop.

For information regarding The Keystone Tobacco Marketing Group, contact Ken Brubaker at PO Box 267, Bird-In-Hand, PA 17505. Or Phone 215-696-7561

Hess, Welliver Receive Awards At Columbia Ag Banquet

BY HELEN KELCHNER
Columbia County Correspondent
BLOOMSBURG — The 20th Columbia County Agricultural Banquet was held March 10 at Columbia-Montour Vocational Technical School.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of two awards; William Hess of Stillwater received the R.J. Campbell color aerial photo for Cooperator of the Year, and Franklin Welliver, operating under Welliver Brothers and sons of Bloomsburg R.D. 5, received Conservationist of the Year.

Bill Hess has made facilities on his Benton Township farm available for demonstration projects for both Columbia County and Penn State University.

Hess built one of the first "free stall" dairy barns in the county, where educational meetings for farmers and young people interested in agriculture have been conducted. His farm offers a fine dairy housing plan and general operation.

Grain fields on the Hess farm were one of the sites where a successful effort to establish a biological control for Cereal Leaf Beetle was conducted. This experiment is meant to establish a non-chemical control of the pest.

Working with Penn State researchers, Bill provided facilities in his alfalfa fields to perfect the integrated Pest Control of the Potato Leaf Hopper which attacks alfalfa.

Dairy Cattle Identification and Reproductive Management were other research and demonstration projects that he was a part of.

Hess is active on various county agriculture boards and generously contributes his time to school, community and church boards.

Franklin Welliver received the conservation award on behalf of Welliver Brothers and Sons for the extensive conservation program this 2,500-acre operation has employed since 1950. Rough estimates place conservation figures at between 5,000 and 6,000 feet of waterways, more than 17,000 feet of drainage tile, over 20,000 feet of diversions, and more than 343 feet of strips.

Wellivers own and rent multiple farms in the district. They divert poor land on their owned land and on rented land as well. They own necessary equipment to do their own conservation work. One outstanding operation was the removal of a railroad bed and installation of drainage in that area of their acreage.

In addition to the awards, farmers received information about work done by Penn State in this area. By way of "Extension Update" a few interesting facts on crop cost were given.

Several farmers participated in a corn and alfalfa production cost survey. In 1986, the average cost of producing an acre of corn was $200.57. Variable costs accounted for $131 of this while fixed costs, such as land and depreciation, accounted for $70.

A farmer paid $134.62 to establish an acre of alfalfa and the annual cost of maintaining and harvesting that acre was $288. The better growers were getting more than 5½ tons of hay per acre.

The Agricultural Banquet was hosted by members of the Columbia County boards of Cooperative Extension Asso., Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, F.H.A. and the Conservation District.

The banquet was attended by about 300 people. Food preparation students of Columbia-Montour Vo Tech School prepared the dinner.

Wis. Vet Details Program To Improve Reproduction

BY SALLY BAIR

Lancaster Co. Correspondent

LANCASTER — With family dairy farms facing difficult economic times, the need for increased profitability becomes critical. Austin Belschner, D.V.M., a partner in the Cumberland Veterinary Clinic in Barron County, Wisconsin, has developed a controlled breeding program to increase reproductive efficiency.

Speaking to dairymen at Lancaster County Dairy Days, sponsored by the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service, Belschner said that getting cows bred is the single most important concern in the breeding program. He said that most causes of anestrus, or non-cycling, are management deficiencies, and heat detection is the primary reason for breeding failures in herds using AI.

Emphasis in Belschner's two-week program is on regularly scheduled two-week fertility examinations, excellent nutrition, prostaglandin shots for most animals and breeding only on standing heat. He said, "The program is designed to take the failures out of the program. It takes less management time rather than more."

While prostaglandin is a drug that has been available for a long time, its effectiveness on dairy animals has not been proven, Belschner said. The primary reason it hasn't been used extensively on dairy animals is that it was tested first on dairy heifers and beef, two groups in which artificial insemination had not been routinely used, and two groups which suffer from poor nutrition.

Belschner's program consists of herd health visits every 14 days, with all cows examined post freshening, at about 14 days. At 45 days fresh the cow becomes a candidate for re-breeding. Animals are palpated and injected if a functional corpus luteum is present. Heat detection begins 24 hours after the prostaglandin injection.

The two week schedule called for under the program allows a concentrated heat detection schedule which minimizes the actual time dairymen spend observing heats. It is concentrated in two four-day periods per month. Belschner insists that cows be let out of the barn a minimum of once a day during the four-day period for observation, and suggests twice a day during day three and four. Breeding is done only following standing heat.

When the whole herd is involved in the project, more cows are active at the same time, allowing easier detection. If a cow is not observed in standing heat, she will be re-examined on subsequent visits and re-treated with prostaglandin. Again, she will be bred only on standing heat. If a third injection is required, she will be bred at 80 hours post-injection.

Belschner told the dairymen that each day a cow is open costs him $5. In Wisconsin the average calving interval is 13 months.

For his original study, Belschner used six family farms that averaged 45 milking head, and used only those with adequate records to allow comparison. One herd was dropped because the cows were not let out in the winter months, and one because some breeding had been done by a cleanup bull and records were not accurate.

The herds in the study had a history of being open for 107.9 days on average. This interval was reduced to 91.1 days during the study. In the first two years of the study, the herds also averaged 1.5 services per conception, an improvement of .6, and averaged 64 percent first service conceptions.

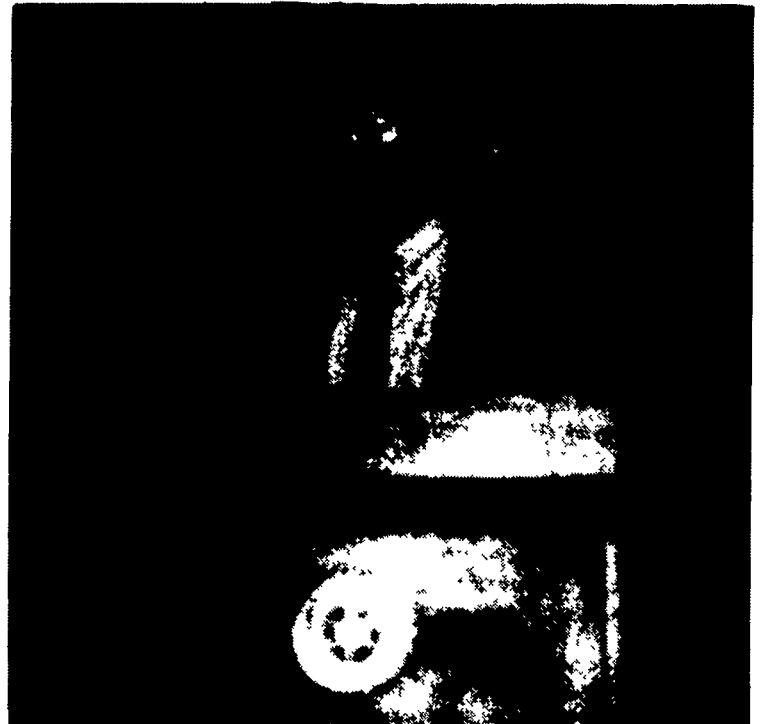

The results of his study showed a return of four to one on the money invested, and the cull rate decreased by 50 percent. Belschner said dairymen are now able to cull from the low end, and the program has decreased the need to cull high-producing cows which were problem breeders.

A side benefit of the controlled breeding program is that the whole herd health program benefits because problems are dealt with more quickly since the visits are every two weeks rather than the traditional monthly visits. Cystic cows are diagnosed and treated earlier and forced culls are decreased.

Belschner stressed that the program works only if there is a team approach to dairying. He said the dairymen, the feed mill, nutritionist and veterinarian must all work together for the good of the herd. Belschner added, "There is only one nutrition goal. That is improved profits through improved health and reproduction, decreased feed costs and increased production."

He encouraged dairymen to try the program to see if it's a workable program for them.

Belschner said, "Family dairying is going through difficult times. In Northwestern Wisconsin, Austin Belschner, a Wisconsin veterinarian detailed a controlled breeding program which decreased services per conception in Wisconsin by emphasizing regular two-week fertility examinations.

we are in danger of losing our town as well." He called the family dairy farm "amazingly efficient and powerful" and said the talk of getting bigger is a "bunch of nonsense."

He urged farmers to keep their resources in balance, using land, feed, labor and people resources wisely while living within the limits of technology.

Because of the decreasing numbers of dairy cows in their clinical practice he said he and his partners decided to work on client profitability through improved breeding, good nutrition and somatic cell counts. "If we can deal preventably, we can minimize problem calls. We are putting clinical emphasis on helping you be profitable."

In addition to the controlled breeding program, Belschner discussed nutrition for first-calf heifers whose reproduction falls

Manure Can Yield Economic Benefits With Proper Handling

BY SALLY BAIR

Lancaster Co. Correspondent
LANCASTER — Lancaster County Dairy Days gave dairymen an opportunity to hear the latest in manure application, fly control and heifer housing.

With spring planting season close by, Mitchell Woodward, nutrient management specialist with Penn State, offered dairymen tips on getting the most from that manure, a byproduct from dairying with definite economic benefits.

Woodward pointed out that a 50-cow herd produces 1,000 tons of manure a year, offering dairymen a rich resource for nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. To use this resource most wisely, Woodward encouraged all dairymen to have their soil tested at least every three years, and to have a manure analysis test.

Looking at manure as a resource for its nutrient content, Woodward called it "the least expensive source of fertilizer for the farm." To manage it in the best way, he said testing is essential because there is a tremendous percent variation from farm to farm.

Incorporation affects the available nutrients, and he said that immediate incorporation into the soil will result in 50 percent availability, while waiting just two days decreases that to 35 percent.

Spring is the best time for incorporating manure because there will be the least nitrogen loss, and because it can easily be incorporated into the ground. Summer is the next best time when it is used on small grain stubble, idle acreage, and grass stands. It should never be used on legumes at this time because it will increase competition from weeds.

In the fall the potential loss of nitrogen is greatest except for cover crops, and winter is the least desirable season because of nutrient loss and runoff problems.

Woodward explained that a form comes with the soil test to help farmers apply the nutrients most efficiently. He also encouraged farmers to look at the crop rotation over a long period. The county extension office has available a computer program to help farmers determine the application rate for manure and commercial fertilizer.

He told the group that in the cost of production of corn, the largest percentage of cost is in fertility, at a rate of nearly one-third the total cost. In producing alfalfa, fertility represents one-fifth the cost. Woodward cautioned against nutrient excesses, saying, "After you reach a certain point, more doesn't bring in increased yield.

Mitchell Woodward

More is not necessarily doing any good."

He stressed that maximizing economic yield should be their goal, not just maximizing yield.

Extension Agricultural Engineer Robert Graves said that proper restraints and facilities can make handling dairy cows safe and efficient.

He said that one person should be able to isolate any animal, and noted that pens should be injury free, with no pinch points or hidden snags. Pens must be rugged, with running water and perhaps be located close to a parking area. Good lighting is a necessity for ease in treating animals.

Pens should be built at least 66 inches high to discourage jumping, and there should be a 16 to 18 inch space to allow an adult to roll out of the pen if necessary. Hinges must be properly placed to allow the gates to move in the proper direction, and latches should be firm and easy to manipulate, Graves said.

Ideally, pens could be built with gates that allow the dairyman to block off certain areas, and to encourage an animal into a specific restraining area.

Graves said it is extremely important to have separate maternity and treatment areas so that newborns are not exposed to the germs of a sick animal that previously used the area.

Such restraining areas should be at least 12 feet by 12 feet, and ideally should have stanchion at one side of the pen. Self-locking gates make it easier to use.

Addressing the need for adequate calf housing, Graves stressed that dairymen should remember that the temperature should be suitable for the calf, not necessarily comfortable for the dairymen. He urged consideration in placing newly weaned calves into group facilities, explaining that if it is the first group experience it will be a stressful time.

Not only is the environment being changed but also the feed and the method of feeding. He suggested weaning a few calves as a group, and said they should never be put directly with older heifers.

Another continuing consideration of dairymen is the need for fly control. Clarence Collison, extension entomologist with Penn State, said, "Fly control is essential in any well managed dairy operation." He said flies have a detrimental effect on farms, including reducing production, increasing bacteria in milk, increasing susceptibility to diseases, and making cows more difficult to handle.

Another important consideration in fly control is the need for good public relations as suburban housing moves closer and closer to farms.

The major flies to concern dairymen are the housefly and stable fly, both manure breeding flies; and the horn fly and face fly, which breed in fresh manure pats, within minutes after it is dropped.

Effective fly control relies on both the use of insecticides and good sanitation. Collison said that flies quickly build up a pesticide resistance because of their very high reproductive potential, their short life cycle and their limited migration between farms.

Furthermore, not a lot of new chemicals are being developed, so dairymen must rely on those currently on the market.

To slow down resistance, Collison said that dairymen should offer flies "a smorgasboard" of insecticides. He said it is important to offer insecticides with different active ingredients, not just different brand names.

He added, "Insecticides don't take the place of good sanitation." He also told dairymen to wait until they have a problem to do something about fly control.

Flies need the proper temperature, the proper breeding material, and an appropriate moisture level to reproduce, and changing any or all of these greatly reduces the reproduction of flies.

He concluded, "Flies can be controlled, but it takes a lot of effort and good sanitation, manure management, moisture control and chemical control."

Wolff Says Casey Budget Offers Rural Economic Growth

HARRISBURG — Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff today said Gov. Robert P. Casey's proposed state budget "offers rural Pennsylvania and agriculture a long-awaited opportunity to achieve meaningful economic growth."

Case proposes a $39.3 million general fund budget for the Department of Agriculture, a nearly seven percent increase that includes a new $3 million appropriation "targeted for economic expansion," Wolff noted.

"The governor clearly has set his sights on accomplishing an economic turn around in rural Pennsylvania and stimulating growth for our Commonwealth's leading industry," Wolff said. "With cooperation from industry leaders, the Department will help him realize those critical goals."

Casey noted agriculture's important role in achieving the economic revitalization objectives of his administration in remarks accompanying presentation of his $10.2 billion state General Fund budget to a joint session of the General Assembly.

Saying he recognized that "the agricultural community must be a full partner in Pennsylvania's economic development," Casey requested $3 million "for new initiatives to support the expansion of our agricultural industry..."

Casey also requested $5 million for the Penn State Agriculture Extension Service, a vital component of state-supported services provided rural Pennsylvania.

"We're pleased that the governor has provided us significant funding to undertake initiatives critical to agriculture's future and that he has allowed flexibility in use of the funds to achieve maximum benefits,"

Wolff said.

Wolff announced that planning already is underway by the Department to implement an economic recovery plan for agriculture and that "options for the best use of the funds" would be discussed with agricultural leaders statewide. "We want a workable plan that will yield positive results as quickly as possible."

Other elements of the Department's proposed budget that will impact favorably on agribusinesses, product development and sales include $2.75 million for Pennsylvania fairs; $1 million to the Farm Products Show Fund; $210,000 for livestock, open and junior dairy and 4-H shows; and $360,000 for agricultural promotions.

Other budget appropriations include $1 million, agricultural research; $150,000, brucellosis vaccination program; $300,000, rabies research; $378,000, livestock and poultry diagnostic work; $350,000, field investigations and poultry surveillance program; $115,000, John's disease research; and $350,000, animal indemnities.

Feed Grain Program Aimed At Reducing Crop Acreage

LEESPORT — Since feed grain carryover stocks are expected to remain large at the end of the season, Donald E. Lutz, of the Berks County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, says farmers may want to study the benefits of the 1987 Feed Grain Acreage Reduction Program to their farming operation. The signup period is open now through March 30.

In an effort to reduce planted acreage, production, and total supplies to a level more in line with demand, the feed grain program contains a 20 percent acreage reduction requirement and an optional 15 percent paid land diversion. Farmers may request 40 percent of their projected 1987 deficiency payments and 50 percent of their diversion payment at signup, according to Mr. Lutz.

"One-half of the advance deficiency and diversion payments will be issued in cash and the remainder will be paid in generic commodity certificates," Mr. Lutz said.

USDA estimates that per bushel deficiency payment rates will be $1.21 for corn, $1.14 for sorghum, $1.11 for barley and $.55 for oats. Diversion payment rates are: corn, $2; sorghum, $1.90; barley, $1.60; and oats, $.80.

Farmers who participate in the 1987 Feed Grain Program will be eligible for the same target price protection as in 1986 — $3.03 per bushel for corn, $2.88 for sorghum; $2.60 for barley and $1.60 for oats. They are also eligible for price support loans at $1.82 per bushel for corn, $1.74 for sorghum, $1.49 for barley, $.94 for oats and $1.55 per bushel for rye.

Mr. Lutz said feed grain program participants will be eligible to earn deficiency payments on the acres planted within the permitted acreage, the same as in 1986. Producers who plant at least 50 percent of the permitted acreage to a program crop and devote the remaining permitted acreage to a conserving use will be eligible to receive deficiency payments on 92 percent of the permitted acreage. "Production of alternate crops on acreage conservation reserve land will not be permitted," said Mr. Lutz, "and grazing will be permitted after May 31, 1987."

To be eligible to participate in the program for one crop on the farm, the ASCS official said producers will be required to plant within the crop acreage base for each other program crop on the farm, except for oats (ask at the ASCS office for details). Cross compliance was not a requirement under the 1986 program.

Turkey Conference

As the number of two-wage-earner households increases, Longacre predicts a rising demand for fully prepared meals that can be quickly cooked in a microwave oven. An increase in the number of single-person households also means more interest in easy-to-prepare meals, he says.

But Longacre cautioned that the turkey industry should not try to beat chicken at its own game by providing the same products. "We've got to work on developing turkey products that have their own identity," he stressed.

A New Disease

With the turkey industry on a roll, producers should keep a wary eye on an emerging disease called reticuloendotheliosis (better known as RE), said New Bolton Center's Dr. Robert Eckroade.

Although the cancer causing RE virus has been identified only once in Pennsylvania, Eckroade cautioned that Marek's disease also came from obscurity and peaked from 1968 to 1970, when the disease claimed 40 million broilers.

RE was first identified in Kansas in 1958, and since that time has shown up in Minnesota, Virginia and Texas. Hosts for the disease include turkeys, ducks, geese and chickens. While the disease typically causes lesions on livers and enlarged spleens, Eckroade stressed that RE has no effect on human health and causes cancer only in poultry.

In two infected flocks in the United Kingdom, the disease was characterized by the occurrence of tumors and diarrhea, with mortality exceeding 20 percent. When birds are infected early in life they will probably shed virus for the rest of their lives, Eckroade said.

The veterinarian urged farmers to look closely at their condemnation rates and examine tumors in their birds. "It may be more widespread than we think," he said. "We don't want to bury our heads in the sand."

Producer Panel

A panel of industry men discussing ways to improve flock performance rounded out the morning sessions. Included on the panel were Jim Skinner of Empire

Kosher, Mifflintown, Pa.; Jim Mitchell, Mitchell Consulting, Harrisonburg, Va.; Roy Alfree, Round Hill Farms, New Oxford, Pa.; and Ben Lybrand, Cuddy Foods, Inc., Marshville, N.C.

Lybrand kicked off the discussion, cautioning growers that while turkey's popularity continues to increase, total meat consumption in the United States continues to decrease, so competition for consumer dollars will intensify. "We're going to see competition from the red meats that we've never seen before," said Lybrand, pointing out that the recently instituted beef and pork checkoff programs will pump unprecedented amounts of capital into promotional programs.

Lybrand said successful turkey production largely depends on attention to five factors: feed quality, water quality, litter management, ventilation and the elimination of stress. While quality in most feed ingredients is not difficult to monitor, there's a great deal of variability in the quality of fats added to feeds, he said.

Lybrand urged producers to monitor nitrogen, E. coli bacteria and levels of solids in their water sources. On the subject of ventilation, he pointed out that hens are more tolerant of impure air than are toms.

Round Hill's Roy Alfree emphasized the importance of litter management. "Don't skimp on the shavings in the brooder barn," he told growers. Alfree likes to keep at least six inches of shavings on the finishing barn floor as well, and insists on a source of heat to keep the litter as dry as possible. Alfree rotates his shavings regularly and has been able to keep his litter dry and disease-free for two to three years.

Jim Skinner agrees that supplemental heat in the finishing house is a must. He also finds that starting young birds on a vitamin E and selenium supplement has eliminated problems with deformed hearts.

New Regs On Horizon

A new truck licensing law being proposed by the State General Assembly would require the purchase of a $25 license to haul or sell live birds in Pennsylvania, according to Pennsylvania Poultry Federation executive director John Hoffman. Aimed at halting the spread of avian influenza, the legislation would not require the license when small numbers of birds are moved between farms. "We support the concept, because avian flu has to begin with a live bird," Hoffman said.

Hoffman also reported that the PPF board of directors approved a voluntary state indemnity checkoff fund in February. Aimed at lessening the effect of avian flu losses in the state, the fund would also send a clear signal to legislators that the state's poultry industry is willing to share the financial burden when disease epidemics occur. Hoffman emphasized that the fund is not intended to replace state and federal support, but would protect the industry from backyard flocks, one of the industry's greatest poultry health threats. The federation has set a goal of $250,000 for the fund and is requesting contributions at the following rates per 1000 birds: turkeys, $1; broilers, 10 cents; layers, $1; breeders, $1.50; and pullets, 20 cents.

Troubles With MG

Hoffman also warned growers that micropasma gallicepitum, the poultry disease known as MG, is on the increase in Pennsylvania. "We have what certainly could be labeled a serious problem, which indicates the killed MG vaccine is no longer effective," he said. Although the live "F" strain vaccine is currently banned in the state, "We're going to have to turn to that to eliminate the disease," said the PPF spokesman. Hoffman said the industry is currently seeking approval from the Department of Agriculture to use the live strain vaccine before the virus makes serious inroads in commercial layer flocks. He acknowledged that the use of live vaccine would have to be tightly controlled in order to avoid causing problems in turkey and broiler flocks, and he called for input from the broiler and turkey industries on the issue.

Agway To Buy Farm Bureau

SOUDERTON — The Boards of Directors of Agway Inc. and Montgomery-Bucks Farm Bureau Cooperative Association have voted to approve an agreement by which Agway will purchase all of the assets of Montgomery-Bucks Farm Bureau. Once a final agreement is reached, the proposed transaction will be presented to Montgomery-Bucks Farm Bureau's shareholders for a vote.

The acquisition would include three feed mills and five farm stores and will be operated as a unit of Agway. Montgomery-Bucks Farm Bureau feed mills are located at Souderton, Shoemakersville, and Mifflinburg. Farm store locations are Collegeville, Souderton, Dublin, Bechtelsville, and Warriors Mark.

Montgomery-Bucks Farm Bureau, formed in 1936, has 1,200 members and 100 employees at eight facilities and at its headquarters in Souderton.

Michael Zapach has served as general manager and will continue to manage the operation as a unit of Agway. Farm Bureau labeled products will continue to be sold at these locations for the immediate future. Agway products and services will be added as soon as possible.

Employees of both organizations are committed to working closely to ensure a continuation of member service.

According to Maynard Rothenberger, Montgomery-Bucks Farm Bureau board chairman and president, the asset purchase is designed to maximize operating efficiencies while maintaining farmer control for the benefit of the members and other customers of both Agway and Montgomery-Bucks Farm Bureau. This transaction offers many advantages to farmers in the geographic areas served.

NDHIA Adopts Policy For BST Herds

Duane Green, president of the Holstein Friesian Association of America, who was in the audience Thursday afternoon, was requested to comment on the resolution.

Green explained that the colored breed proofs are computed by the United States Department of Agriculture. The HFAA, however, computes the Holstein sire proofs at the University of Wisconsin at great expense and time to the Association. To recoup the costs, he explained, the Association needs to sell the information.

A resolution to dissolve the National DHIA legal fund was defeated. The resolution proposed to transfer all funds remaining in the account to the Association's research fund. It proposed continuing the 1 cent per cow assessment and applying the income to the research fund.

Delegates defeated a resolution which proposed consolidation of the business meetings at the National DHIA convention into consecutive days to allow efficiency and greater participation at lower costs.

Carried unanimously by the delegates was a resolution to maintain a dynamic policy board.

Passed by standing acclamation were resolutions to thank the host state, Pennsylvania, and honor retiring board of director members.

Delegates passed a by-law change which will elect and nominate directors on a regional basis. Previously, the regional caucuses nominated directors and the directors were then elected by the general delegate body at the national convention. The change passed by a vote of 63 to 35 with one abstention.

Policy Board

Long, chairman of the NCHIP Policy Board, reported that the board "took initial steps to support the development of somatic cell sire summaries," at the board's December 1986 meeting.

In other action at the December meeting, Long explained, that the board:

- Took a preliminary step to develop 24-hour factors for milking intervals greater than eight hours and less than 12 hours.
- Endorsed the optional use of milk weights to the nearest pound in DHIA as opposed to the half-pounds increments currently in use.
- Started a new round of solicitations to support the DHIA research fund.
- Approved 1987 priorities for research projects, and endorsed the concept of educational project funding.
- Approved NDHIA-developed standards for quality certification in 1988.
- Approved an evaluation protocol developed by NDHIA for automatic electronic identification systems.
- Granted DHIA approval to the Waikato large flask.

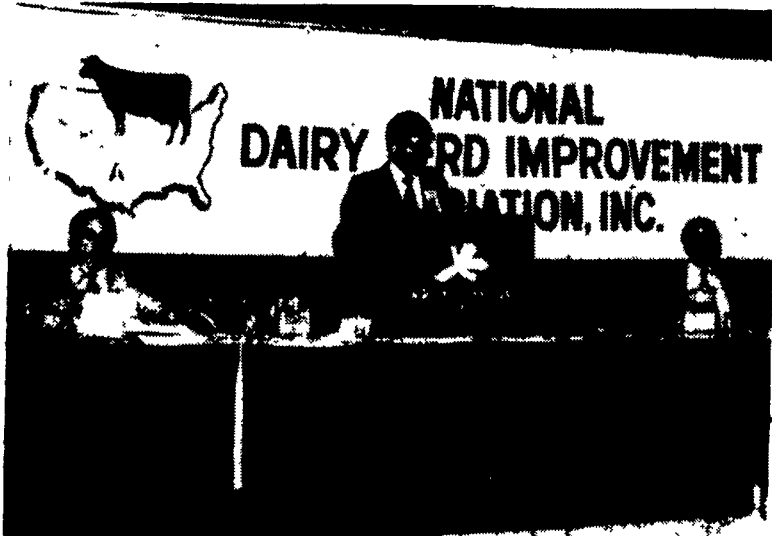

Long said the board endorsed a policy concerning research herds using bovine somatotropin. The policy requires written notification from herd participating in research by April 1, 1987 or within 30 of the start of the participation.

Companies researching BST are requested to identify herds and cows involved so the NCHIP records can be studied.

The policy board also recommended handling the records of cows on BST the same as records of other cows until the policy board deems special handling of these records necessary.

Committee Reports

Robert Kindig, chairman of the New Generation Committee and president of the Pennsylvania DHIA, reported the committee established five general areas for the NDHIA to work on to meet long-range plans.

The first area concerned the long-term direction of the DHIA system, he said, and where the program will be in five to 10 years.

"Also, the management information needs of the dairymen to maintain profitability into the 21st century," Kindig stated, must be accessed.

He listed the third area as: "The DHIA organizational structure necessary to provide these needs and these services in the future at all levels."

NHDIA needs to look at the question of the role of the NDHIA in this total system, he added.

The final area of consideration concerns the specific steps and actions necessary for NDHIA to ensure that dairymen will be profitable and that the system will survive into the next generation, Kindig reported.

He identified two main areas of concern for the future: sustaining state lines for DHIA and competition to DHIA services.

Speakers Cite Changes, Challenges For Dairy's Future

BY MARTHA J. GEHRINGER

PHILADELPHIA — Changes and challenges were catchwords for the general session of the annual meeting for the National Dairy Herd Improvement Convention here at the Adams Mark Hotel on Tuesday afternoon.

"We have some real challenges in agriculture. We need to determine what and how the people we sell to want the product," keynote speaker James Boyle said. The deputy assistant secretary of government and department affairs for the United States Department of Agriculture stated, "If we are to enter the world market and be competitive, we must determine what the market wants and produce it."

U.S. farmers have had the tendency to produce what they want and expect someone to buy it, he explained. Producers can no longer afford to continue this practice, Boyle noted. "We are not in a position as we once thought — we aren't feeding the world as we did in the '30s," he explained.

Other countries have become self-sufficient in food production primarily due to their producers' adoption of technology, Boyle said.

New product research has benefitted producers in three prime areas: corn, wheat and dairy products. Researchers have developed a biodegradable plastic from corn, he noted.

"We need to find new uses for our products. We are down-sizing agriculture. This is not healthy in the long run," Boyle said.

"I think the future for American agriculture can be extremely optimistic. It won't be like 10 to 20 years ago. It's going to be a changed agriculture."

If we are to meet the challenges of the future we must accept change, Boyle stressed. "We must move ahead aggressively, optimistically and with purpose," he added.

"We can produce ourselves back into problems at anytime," he cautioned. He added, the challenge is to move on and control our destiny.

Boyle replaced E. de la Garza, chairman of the House of Representatives Agriculture Committee, on the program. Garza was unable to get out of a meeting in Washington but briefed Boyle on several topics.

Speaking on behalf of Garza, Boyle told the group that the 1985 Farm Bill is working and is beginning to move product onto the world market. He asked the farmers to be patient and let the Bill work.

"We are beginning to turn the corner on the export market," he said. "We are just now beginning to see the impact of the '85 Farm Bill."

The Dairy Termination Program has been successful in removing product from the market, Boyle noted. He cited two indications of the success: a lower ratio of helpers per hundred cows and the maintenance of milk price over the support price.

"It's in your hands. What happens to the dairy industry depends on what you do with production," Boyle said.

DHIA's Changes and Challenges
Richard Sechrist, NDHIA executive secretary, explained that DHIA needs to react to technology by adapting and assimilating it the benefit of the membership. Technology is a "stepping stone to the new style of DHIA which will probably be in place in the year 2000."

In the year 2000 producers can expect a changed DHIA structure

$40,000 Available For Local Dairy Promotions

HARRISBURG — Applications for local dairy promotion funds are now being accepted for the July-December, 1987 period, it has been announced by Board Chairman Jim Harteis of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

The Ebensburg dairymen reported this week that $40,000 will be available to dairy oriented groups on a 50-50 matching basis. Application deadline is April 30.

"Dairy promotion doesn't begin or end with June Dairy Month," Harteis emphasized. "We're anxious to see more local promotions all during the year."

Ice cream carried the day for President Donald Long reported on the decisions of the policy board. Seated from the left are Richard Sechrist and Velmar Green.

The committee reached three general concepts. They are: Competition for records processing and testing could strengthen the program but it could also have short-term, traumatic effects, Kindig explained.

"Conceptually, we believe that the state line barriers should be diminished to some extent to encourage some competition among DHIA's and DRPCs. But the details of how something like this might be implemented, we had some reservations," he said.

Thirdly, the committee endorses private computer programs be integrated into the DHIA system, Kindig added.

Tom Aitchison, chairman of the DHIA research fund, reported the approval for 10 research projects which represent a cross-section of concern for dairymen. The projects focus on factors influencing the milk composition of samples, somatic cell counts, milk yield, and testing procedures.

The 1986 annual report showed a net savings for the national organization of $625 compared to $34,845 in 1985. Herds in all testing programs of NCDHIP totaled 62,202 with 4.7 million cows as of Jan. 1, 1986. This accounted for 42 percent of the herds in 49 state units, including Puerto Rico.

The 1986 NDHIA convention will be held in Indianapolis, Ind., March 14 to 17.

and a change in the role of the DHIA supervisors, Sechrist explained. Preparation for the year 2000 needs to begin at the farm level by continuing to do what makes sense.

He encouraged a moderate pace for the adaptation of technology. Over reaction to technology can deter the logical progress of technology; too slow of a reaction can hamper or destroy technological advancements.

A panel discussion by individuals from data processing and records centers showed the centers are gearing to the challenges and changes of the future by listening to the producers. The individuals cited a need to continue programs geared for the masses. They listed a need to develop programs which will help dairymen operate efficiently and profitably.

local promoters during the last half of 1986, with giant ice cream sundaes and banana splits attention getters in Blair, Lebanon, Berks and Warren counties. In Reading, citizens were treated to an ice cream eating contest while in Jefferson County dairy promoters gave away a free ice cream party.

Promoter grants are limited to milk producer organizations, or to local, non-profit dairy promotion committees supervised by dairymen, Harteis said.

Matching funds may be used to purchase milk shake machines and other equipment, he added, but profits from such investments must be used for future dairy promotions.

Local promotion groups have been advised of the April deadline. Harteis recommended that others interested in local dairy promotions call Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program's Cindy Weimer immediately at 717-787-6903 for complete guidelines and application forms. Or write Weimer at Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17101-9408.

Guernsey Breeders Convene In Pittsburgh For Meeting

BY BETH NESBIT

PITTSBURGH — On March 6 and 7 Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders held their 56th annual meeting in Pittsburgh.

Friday's agenda focused on the annual business meeting. The total Guernsey cattle sales for the 1986 year saw a 28 percent increase over 1985 with the total sales equaling $111,000. It was decided that there would be no Pennsylvania Blue Halter Sale at this year's meeting due to the 110th National Guernsey Convention being held at the Sheraton Inn in Station Square in Pittsburgh on May 22 to 25.

Lee Yost, the organizations' business manager, told those in attendance of the sale of the Guernsey Sale Barn in Lancaster. After many months of deliberation, analysis and meetings with realtors, bankers, civic leaders and purchasers the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders' Association sold the sale barn and land for $950,000.

Patty McMurray, advisor of the Pennsylvania Junior Guernsey Breeders, stated that for the first time there will be separate activities for Guernsey youth at the national convention in May. Activities tentatively planned include rides on the Gateway Clipper Fleet, a trip to Kennywood Amusement Park, as well as contests and fellowship.

Ralph Turley, director of the American Guernsey Cattlemans' Club, spoke to the concerned breeders of the simplification of the registration process. Turley said a breeder may continue to sketch an animal he plans to register, but it is not necessary. Tattooing is the primary requirement by the American Guernsey Cattlemans' Club to register a Guernsey.

Turley stated that at the annual meeting an organization name change was discussed. The two new possibilities include American Guernsey Association and the American Guernsey Breeders' Association.

"Playboy," a new bull, was discussed during the Mid-Atlantic Guernsey Sires segment of the meeting. With a July summary of +$102 and +1.6 PDT, Playboy has become one of the top total performance sires. His daughters are very dairy, extremely strong and walk on an excellent set of feet and legs.

The following directors were nominated by their districts: District 1, Albert Hack, District 8, Wilmer Campbell, District 10, Mervin Meyers, and District 11, Elsie Wolff.

During the awards luncheon held on Saturday, Ruth Ann John, assistant business manager, recognized the following breeders for meritorious production. The 1986 senior production award for high herd milk went to Carosa Guernseys with 15,785 pounds of milk, 704 pounds of fat, and 543 pounds of protein with an average of 20.5 cows.

Ray and Roger Garber stood at the top with their 58.1 cows in the protein category with 551 pounds of protein, 15,104 pounds of milk, and 718 pounds of fat. The 60.4 cow herd of Kenneth B. and Thelma Garber was the recipient of the high herd for fat with 725 pounds of fat, 15,120 pounds of milk, and 519 pounds of protein.

In the high cow milk, fat and protein category, Win Crest Jack Jody stood in the first place position with 34,965 pounds of milk, 1,896 pounds of fat, and 1,052 pounds of protein for 305 days.

In the junior production category three ladies dominated the milk and fat categories.

'There Is Nothing In This Experience To Prevent Me From Using It'

Biotechnology Conference Explores Somatotropin

BY MARTHA J. GEHRINGER
PHILADELPHIA — Bovine growth hormone or bovine somatotropin — the milk production enhancer by any name arouses just as much interest. The second day of the Biotechnology Conference, held in conjunction with the National Dairy Herd Improvement Convention, focused on the controversial substance.

Tom Craig of Murmac Farms, Bellefonte, recently used bovine somatotropin in his herd as part of a 15-month field trial. "It provided me the opportunity to ask what bovine somatotropin can do for me," Craig explained in his conference presentation.

From his first-hand experience with somatotropin, Craig concluded: "I'm convinced that if it becomes available, I'll be one of the first one to adopt it. But there are still problems to be answered." He added, "There was nothing in the experience to prevent me from using it."

Until BST does become commercially available, Craig noted he needs to improve his nutrition program, improve his economic knowledge, and improve his dry cow management to maximize the effect of BST in his herd.

Craig estimated an added income per cow per lactation of $185 by using BST. He calculated this savings with numbers from his farm, a milk price of $11.50 per hundredweight, and an estimated BST cost of $70 per cow.

"BST does not require large outlays of money," Craig noted. "Most industry people project that BST will provide a minimum return of $2 for every $1 that dairymen invest," he added. Craig called the product "self-financing" since the milk check may come before the bill for BST.

Somatotropin will benefit all dairymen regardless of the size of the producer's farm, the Bellefonte dairyman said, as it increases the efficiency of production. However, he cautioned, "BST with inefficient management practices equals disaster." He urged his fellow producers to fine-tune their management skills before using BST.

"If BST becomes available, it will be well worth your time and effort," he advised.

Public Perception

One of the keys to making BST commercially available is the public's perception of the product, he commented. The dairy industry needs to educate the consuming public of the facts of BST produced milk, Craig explained.

A key point that the public needs to understand is that BST occurs in all milk at low levels. And the amount of BST in milk from treated cows is not significantly different than milk from untreated cows, he said. "Education is important to make BST produced milk a marketable commodity."

"Everyone has already prejudged this material," said Dr. James Crowley, University of Wisconsin professor and extension specialist. He noted sociologists have denounced the product by claiming it will create a rural crisis by causing unemployment for farmers.

He discounted this by explaining that without BST cow numbers have decreased by 60 percent from 1945 to 1979 and production has more than doubled.

Public perception of the product will hinder the Food and Drug Administration's approval of BST. "Consumers need to be convinced to drink milk with bovine growth hormone," Crowley said.

"This is the first time people are petitioning the FDA not to license a product because it works too well," said David Walton, American Cyanamid marketing manager. "BST has become a potential political football."

Washington activists are threatening to boycott dairy products made from BST produced milk. Some want to shut down the field trials, he explained. The Washington activists want to let food safety become an emotional issue not scientific, Walton continued.

Milk consumption has been adversely influenced on the University of Wisconsin campus, Crowley explained, because the college herd participated in an experiment with BST. A warning was circulated which cautioned against drinking milk by injecting cows with hormones, he noted.

Some producers will be unable to sell milk produced with BST, Crowley said, because of the public opinion. Dairies will not accept the milk.

Craig noted that the FDA scrutinized his practices and encountered some resistance in marketing his milk and cull cows from the experiment.

Walton stressed the need to educate consumers about BST. He noted the facts as: BST becomes biologically inactive in the digestive system because it is a protein. Enzymes in the digestive system break proteins into harmless component amino acids. BST offers potential benefits to both the consumer and producer.

"The real issue in my mind is whether dairymen have a choice to use it or not use it in the 1990s. Can the industry afford to shut out cost reducing technology," Walton commented. He emphasized the need to keep technological freedoms.

Not all cows are a candidate for BST injections, Crowley said. He questioned if 2-year-old cows respond sufficiently to BST to make use of the product economically feasible. Also problem cows, or nervous cows would not be candidates for the injections due to difficulty in administering the shots and less than expected returns. Not every cow responds to the product, he added.

"Even in herds that want to use the product can only realistically expect to use BST on half of the cows," Crowley stated. He cautioned against too much optimism with use of the product. If dairymen expect a 20 percent response from the product, this will yield an actual 10 percent annual increase in rolling herd average.

"We don't have all the answers, that's why we're still researching," he said.

Research

A leading researcher, Dr. William Chalupa, University of Pennsylvania professor of nutrition, explained "BST is a naturally occurring protein found in all animals and produced in the pituitary gland." BST works by coordinating the cow's metabolism to direct nutrients to milk instead of body tissue. This is the same response which is seen in genetically superior cows, he said.

BST research started in 1936, Chalupa noted, when investigators found that by taking crude pituitary extracts they could stimulate milk production.

A study which involved four universities and in which Chalupa participated showed no effect on the fat or protein composition of milk, he said, when energy and protein were balanced in the ration. "I have never seen tests where the fat was lower in BST treated cows," Chalupa said. He speculated the fat test could increase with BST depending on the cow's ration.

Feed intake increased correspondingly to production increase, he noted. "Cows responded like higher producing cows would."

Cows in the test produced more milk per unit feed consumed, Chalupa said, because of increased feed efficiency.

Long-term studies indicated no health problems, he commented. Reproductive factors remained the same or improved. "At 50 milligrams there was a small but significant increase in the SCC. There was no difference in smaller doses," Chalupa said.

While there were no adverse effects on health or reproduction in the university studies, "34 cows don't tell the whole story," he noted. Larger studies are in progress, Chalupa added.

A Management Tool

He described somatotropin as a management tool. It can convert good producers to better producers, better producers to excellent producers. In field trials, Chalupa said, increases of eight to 15 pounds of milk per cow per day were recorded.

Walton explained a likely production increase of 10 to 20 percent per cow could be expected from use of the protein.

"This is the first significant product of biotechnology for the dairy industry," he said. "The keyword here is bovine somatotropin potentially increases efficiency." Increased efficiency will increase income and decrease costs, he added.

He predicted a maximum adoption rate of BST by 50 percent of the dairymen in five years following approval by the FDA.

Echoing Chalupa's comments, Walton said that BST provides dairymen with other options. "It's a management tool."

With the use of BST there is no new capital investment and there is an immediate payback, he noted.

The degree of profit depends on the management level of the producer, Walton said. "To survive, dairymen need to work on efficiency. That's what BST is designed to do."

Presently, the FDA has not made any dosage recommendations. Nor has the product been priced, Walton added. The product must be priced fairly to yield profits for dairymen.

Dr. George Conneman, Cornell University professor of agricultural economics, speculated the adoption rate of BST would be slow. He added, the impact on the dairy industry would occur over a long period of time, not immediately.

Impact

"Some say that bGH will have a significant and immediate impact on the dairy industry," he said. He posted the following worst case scenario which many individuals accept as fact:

- Adoption by 85 percent of dairymen within three years after product introduction.

- A 25 to 30 percent increase in milk production per cow resulting in a "glut" of milk and increasing the surplus.

- A large decrease, of $1 to $2 or greater per hundredweight, in the price of milk.

- A 25 percent decline in the number of dairy farms and a 30 percent drop in cow numbers.

- A drastic one time increase in production of over 25 percent with immediate adoption.

He posted what he believes will likely happen:

- Routine use of bGH is further in the future than is suggested.

- FDA approval will take considerably longer than anticipated because of extensive field trials and consumer concern.

- A slower than predicted farmer adoption rate.

- Per cow responses will vary from 0 to 25 percent.

- The aggregate impact will be more like a 10 to 15 percent increase in milk per cow.

On the opening day of the Biotechnology Conference, Monday, Dr. Kenneth Butcher, manager DRPC, gave an outline of the DHIA data base that includes: genetic evaluation, production information, reproduction information, somatic cell count, health, cows leaving the herd, replacement females and herd survey comparisons.

Dr. Michael Tomaszewski from Texas A & M University, sought to creatively use the static data base that gives historical information and turn it into an intelligent projection base that will help dairymen make management decisions. "Profit equals sales minus cost," Tomaszewski said. "We should use our computers to help us forecast our business outcome."

Stephen Spencer, Penn State University, showed the progress in milking machine systems from buckets to pipelines and gave ideas on how new management possibilities might happen with milking systems automation.

Philip Dukas, director of technical development National DHIA, discussed milk weighing devices and identification. Dr. Paul Thompson, president of Dairy Equipment Company, had the topic milking systems. And Dale Gordon, product manager of Babson Brothers, discussed milking and feeding systems. Robert Kindig, Pennsylvania DHIA president opened the session and Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County dairy agent, was the moderator for Monday's session of the Biotechnology Conference.

Gray Named Legislator Of The Year

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman William H. Gray, III, 2nd district, has been recognized by the Pennsylvania Farmers union as Legislator of the Year for 1986.

Chester L. Reed, Executive Director of the general farm organization, said Gray received the award "because of his voting record and the understanding he has shown toward family farmers when Farmers Union visited with him over the last session of Congress."

"Congressman Gray has an appreciation for agriculture that you would expect from rural representatives," Reed said. "With farmers making up only a small percentage of the population, getting our message through to urban and suburban Congressmen like Representative Gray is essential," he added.

According to Reed, the message which all twenty-three Farmers Union state organizations carry to Congress is that family farmers are a vital part of the American economy, and they need a fair price for their product in order to survive.

"Farmers don't want government handouts," Reed said, "they just want a fair chance to compete."

is the recipient of the other end of the new computer technology. So there is nothing in our world from disarmament to foreign policy, to banking, to currency, to trade, to budget deficits that doesn't in some way include a farm issue.

"This shows how far the farmer has come and it is a recognition of how integrated our entire society has become with the overlapping and interlocking issues. No longer can any segment of our society live alone. And especially as farmers you are a part of every deliberation that goes in an individual congressman's office as well as in the White House itself," Gekas said.

Representative Samuel Morris, Chester County dairyman and chairman of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives Agricultural Committee told of the current proceedings for agriculture in Harrisburg. "We have a busy season ahead in the Pennsylvania State Ag Committee," Morris said. "Several bills have already been in and out of the agricultural committee. The first bill to appropriate $5 million through the Department of Agriculture will allocate to Pennsylvania State University funding for Extension Service and research. This will partly make up for the cut in the federal funding for Extension Service," Morris said. This bill passed the House last week without a negative vote.

Another bill out of the ag committee is the new commodity marketing bill, which will enable the advertising committees representing the producers of various agricultural commodities. Greater decision-making authority over the expenditure of moneys for marketing and research. These moneys were contributed entirely by the self-imposed assessments on the producer farmers. "As you may remember," Morris said, "the restraints placed on these boards by the general councils opinion in 1985 caused the apple growers to give up their participation in the program all together." This bill passed the House and is now in the Senate.

The land preservation bill that provides state money to be passed out to the counties to purchase conservation easements on farms has also been introduced. "It is rather costly," Morris said. "And we may have to cut down and accept less money if we can get it. But I have hopes of getting this money because it's the only sure way to preserve agricultural land in southeast Pennsylvania where the pressure for development is very heavy."

On local property, Morris said farmers are paying a disproportionate share. Local government bodies and school districts should have the option and flexibility of determining the mix of property and income tax. A bill is now before the House Finance Committee that would accomplish this. The Animal Health and Diagnostic Bill was reported out of committee last week and was referred to the Appropriations Committee. In summary Morris said I believe we can be optimistic about Pennsylvania's agriculture, our number one industry.

In the legislative breakfast Thursday morning, Keith Eckel, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, urged the farmers and congressmen to resist any efforts to make major changes in the 1985 Farm Act until it has had a chance to work. Noting that the programs under the 1985 farm law have barely been in operation a year, Eckel urged legislatures to give it time to achieve its goals of improved farm income, reduced surplus stocks and increased agricultural exports. "One of the biggest threats this farm program faces is the premature condemnation its getting from those persons who would like to see farmers close the borders to imports and exports," Eckel said. "Other people would like to make farmers more dependent on government. Farm programs in the past have suffered from continual meddling before they have had a chance to work or fail. That's happening now to the 1985 Food Security Act," Eckel said.

The PFA president told law makers that while the 1985 farm law is not perfect, it is a step toward a more market-based agriculture. We believe the farm program is moving U.S. agriculture in the right direction. Let's give the 1985 farm program a chance to succeed or fail before we send farmers through another torturous year trying to figure out what the government is going to do next.

Turning to other issues concerning farmers, Eckel said PFA supports adoption of a constitutional amendment to require a balanced federal budget. PFA also believes that spending cuts to balance a budget should be shared by all federal programs including entitlement programs.

Concerning the Reagan administration proposals for the upcoming farm budget, Eckel said

Farmers At Legislative Banquet.

PFA apopes plans to drastically limit farm program payments to each farmer and to increase annual cuts in program commodity target prices. Agricultural credit is once again a high priority item, Eckel also told congressmen. "Because our members borrow from various sources of credit and hold varying amount of debt, we are working on numerous ag credit initiatives," he said. "They include providing help for the farm credit system, which addresses all its problems and serves the best long-term interests of the system's borrowers. We also support the creation of a secondary mortgage market for agriculture to increase sources of credit," Eckel said. "And we support long-term debt rightoffs for banks and sufficient funding for the Farmers' Home Administration.

PFU Testifies In Favor Of Accelerated Milk Payments

MESHOPPEN — The Pennsylvania Farmers Union testified for accelerated milk payments to New York State Milk Producers at a milk hearing in Syracuse, N.Y. last week.

The hearing was called by Assemblyman Bill Brackman, chairman of the New York State Assembly agriculture committee. The agriculture committee is having a total of four hearings throughout the Empire State listening to views on milk and dairy problems.

Pennsylvania Farmers Union and the Northern Tier Farmers Union Milk Co-op's testimony was presented by Arden Tewksbury of Meshoppen.

Tewksbury testified in favor of a statewide milk licensing system in place of the present county-by-county system that currently exists in New York State.

Tewksbury strongly urged the committee to have language in the New York dairy bill which would "speed-up" the milk payments to dairy farmers. Tewksbury urged the advance payments dates be changed from the 10th of the month to the 5th of the month, and after the bill is law for one year then the payment date should be changed to the 1st day of the month. The dairy leader also urged the new bill to require dairy cooperatives to adhere to these payment dates.

The governor and the attorney general's office of New York State are drafting new legislation to cover the milk licensing probe in New York State. The legislation is also geared to improve payment dates to dairy farmers as well as improving the milk security fund in New York State.

Currently, the New York State law does not require milk handlers to post bonds, and there is approximately $3.5 million in the New York State milk Producer security fund.

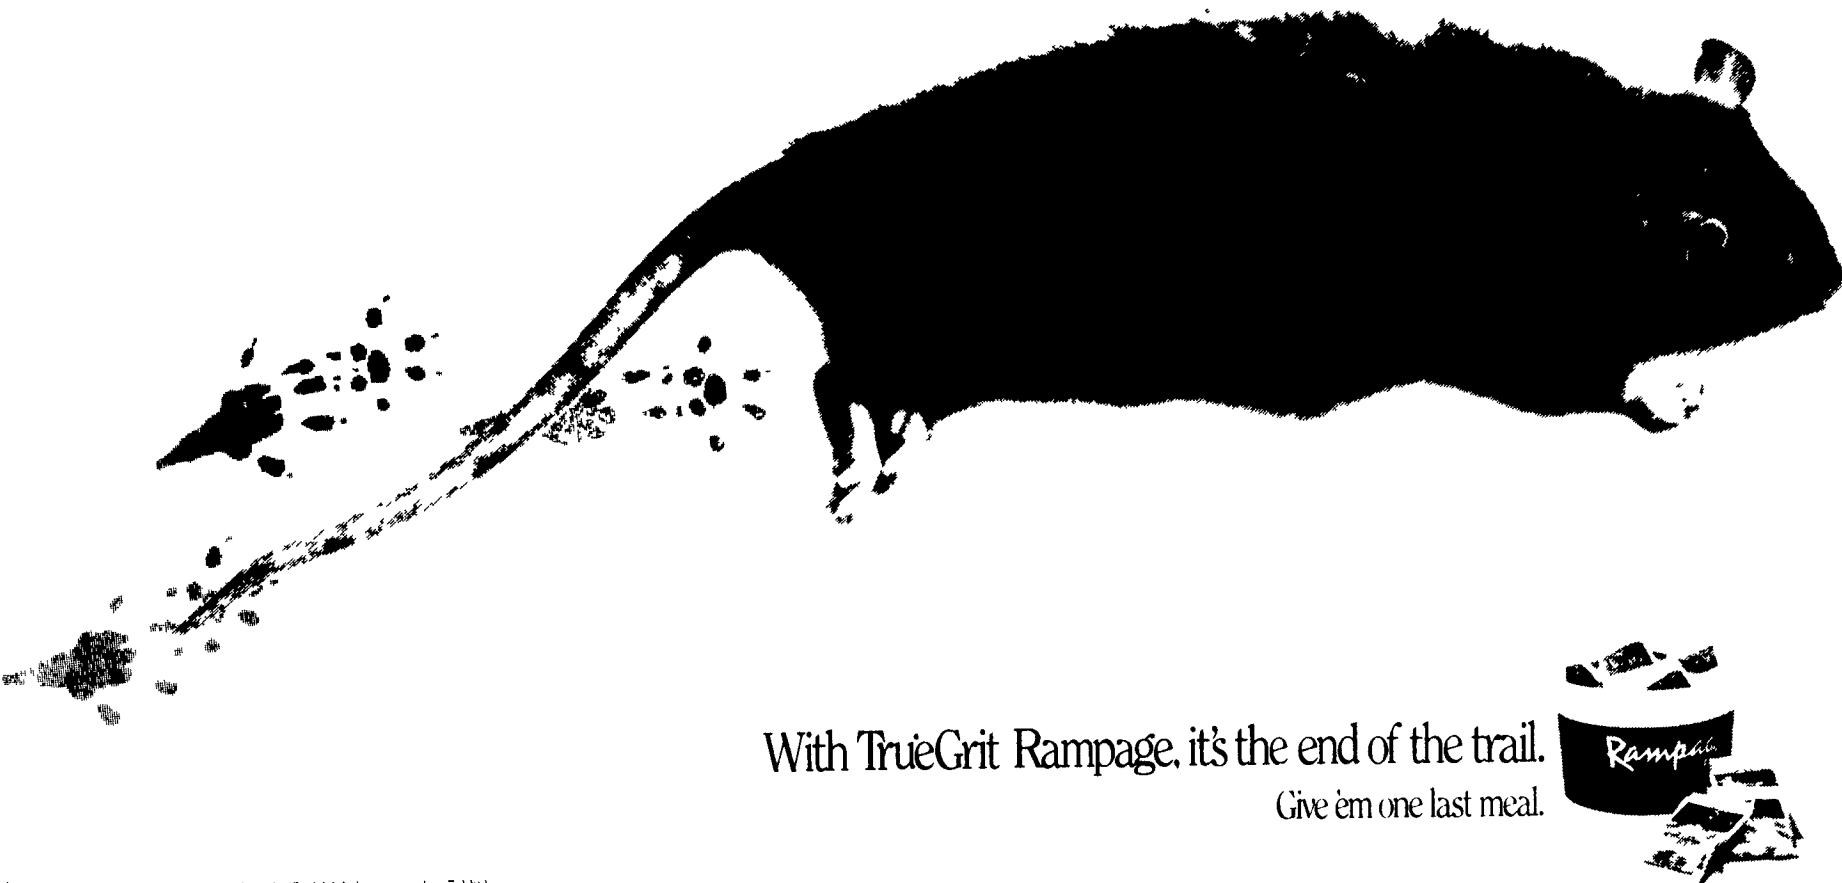

Tewksbury claims the present law gives dairy farmers inadequate protection and P.F.U. is urging the New York law to conform closer with the Pennsylvania law.

P.F.U. and Northern Tier are recommending that milk handlers who purchase milk from dairy farmers or dairy co-operatives should be required to post security bonds to cover 75 percent of their exposure on milk purchased.

If a milk handler is unable to post bonds at the 75 percent level then they should have the option of bonds at 40% of their milk purchases plus contributing 3 cents per hundredweight into an individual handler security fund. Tewksbury told the committee: the present law in New York State leaves dairy farmers in a precarious position and must be corrected.

Tewksbury urged the committee and the legislators to move with caution as they develop new legislation to replace the licensing laws in the Empire State. He concluded by stating while we favor statewide licensing for milk handlers, we do so only if the new law prohibits all milk handlers from selling milk below their cost of operation.

Reproduction Programs Explained

off with the stress of producing. "If you feed them right it shouldn't be a herd problem. This is usually an abused group, given low protein, deficient in minerals and no vitamin supplements." Belschner said the group will often have static ovaries at 120 to 150 days, and "this can be a significant problem."

Another group which doesn't receive proper attention, according to Belschner is the high producing older cow. He said, "Decreased cycling can be prevented with proper nutrition." He stressed drying the cows off properly with a balanced dry cow ration, and feeding adequate protein through the peak.

Pathological problems of reproduction include pyometra, which calls for better sanitation at calving. He urged routine postpartem exams for cows. Cystic ovaries are another significant problem, which usually increases with production. Early detection and treatment are the key to solving the problem.

Michael O'Connor, extension dairy specialist from Penn State, also spoke about controlled breeding programs and stressed that for it to be successful, both dairymen and the veterinarian must be committed to the program. He added that cows must be cycling normally, and accurate records and heat detection are essential.

Part of the success of the program depends upon the veterinarian's ability to palpate for functional corpus luteum. Also, adherence to a schedule is extremely important. He noted that there are programs which operate on a weekly, monthly or other time schedule.

O'Connor said considerations for using the programs include the cost of extra veterinarian visits, drugs, palpation and extra time involved. Benefits include fewer days open, more efficient heat detection, less semen because of increased conception rates and less culling, along with more frequent exams which makes the whole herd benefit. He concluded, "It is successful herds which benefit the most."

O'Connor also reviewed the use of kits to test progesterone levels in milk. He said, "If levels are low, a cow cannot be pregnant." He told dairymen to take into account such facts as how long the test takes, how difficult it is to read the color changes, the number of samples that can be taken and the cost per sample.

He said kits should be stored in the refrigerator. If milk samplers are cooled, they must be allowed to warm up before testing. Composite samples are preferable over the last strippings, and infected quarters should not be sampled.

Maryland Meeting To Feature

New Pasture Management

OAKLAND, Md. — One of the hottest subjects in the Agricultural circle today is the Voisin Pasture Management System. Several farmers in Pennsylvania and other areas have put the system into practice and have had very positive results. With proper management practices, forage from pastures can easily be increased 50 percent.

To better acquaint farmers with the system, along with other alternatives in pasture improvement, the Soil Conservation Service, the District Soil Conservation Supervisors and the Garrett County Extension Service have put together a program of valuable information for improving pastures. Whether you raise sheep, beef, or dairy, this may help you put more money in your pocket. The program is as follows:

- "Voisin Grazing System" - John D. Minnick - Agronomist, SCS
- "Less Intensive Grazing System - Managing for Quality and Maximum Economic Returns" -

Dr. Les Vough, agronomist, University of Maryland

- "Extending the Grazing Season" - Dr. Morris Decker - Agronomist, University of Maryland

• "The Place of Forages in Cattle Rations" - Dr. Kim Cassel, Animal Nutritionist, University of Maryland

The program will be held twice on Monday, March 23: 10 a.m., Bittering Fire Hall, Bittering, Md.; 7 p.m. - Old Swan Meadow School, Gortner, Md.

Check Forage Intake For Dairy Cattle

By R.S. Adams

Many of the economic and herd health problems that occur on some dairy farms may stem from lack of forage intake. When forage is lacking for milking animals fat test may be considerably reduced. This may lower the price received for milk by 50 cents per hundred weight or more on some farms. In addition milk production and herd health may be adversely affected. More metabolic and infectious problems may result and infertility may increase.

Lack of forage intake may occur because people feeding the herd do not realize how much material is needed. In other cases forage intake may be depressed due to overfeeding concentrates. Some feeders do not know the maximum levels that should be heeded to keep cows normal. Some nutritional consultants are prone to recommend levels of forage intake that are too low under normal circumstances.

Most cows should eat at least 2 pounds of hay-equivalent or 1.8 pounds of forage dry matter per cwt of bodyweight daily.

For example a 1,300 pound cow needs 26 pounds of hay-equivalent or 23.4 pound of forage dry matter daily. Somewhat lower levels may be tolerated for short periods of time. Concentrate intake should not exceed 2.5 percent of bodyweight daily as dry grain equivalent for most cows. It is important that larger cows have an opportunity to eat 15 to 20 percent more than the average-sized cow in the herd in order to meet their minimum forage needs.

Excessive forage intake also needs to be avoided, especially if it contains under 55 percent TDN on a dry matter basis. Feeding such forage at levels much over 2.25 pounds of hay-equivalent or 2 pounds of dry matter per cwt of bodyweight may reduce digestibility and intake of the entire ration as well as restrict milk production.

The AgMaster[®] Inoculant System Still Beats The Others Cold!

Here's the most cost-effective way to protect the feed value of your ensiled forage crops.

All silage inoculants are not created equal! Only AgMaster helps you

- Protect different ensiled crops with three separate inoculant products made specially for haylage/baled hay, corn silage, and high-moisture corn
- Get easy, thorough application to ensiled crops with two liquid applicator models (silo-site or in-field)
- Protect valuable fermentation bacteria with a special frozen shipment/storage method until you mix them with water and apply them directly to your forage

Take advantage of our Pre-season Discount Program and prove the AgMaster difference on your 1987 ensiled forage crops!

Place your order for haylage/baled hay, corn silage, and high-moisture corn inoculants before April 30, 1987. You will receive a 10% discount on AgMaster inoculants and save money on applicators too!

RCMA Plans Elections, Near 95 Percent Signup

BY MARTHA SHELTON
New York Correspondent

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency officials will evaluate the economic climate for triggering over-order prices as soon as elections of independent board members are completed in mid-April.

Following a board meeting on Wednesday in Syracuse, RCMA's President William Zuber announced meetings to elect independent board members to represent all 17 regions in the Northeast. The first meeting is slated for March 18.

"As soon as the elections are complete," Zuber said, "RCMA will evaluate the economic conditions and establish its over-order price as the economic environment dictates." Zuber hopes to be able to enact over-order premiums by July.

Both Zuber and RCMA Executive Director Edward Anna, whose full-time position and office are budgeted for the current year, are confident the agency will reach its 95 percent enrollment goal by the time the elections are complete. Neither, however, will venture to guess how much those over-order premiums will amount to per hundred pounds of milk shipped.

Zuber and Anna estimate RCMA can add between $100 million and $150 million to the pockets of Northeast dairy farmers during 1987.

Zuber said RCMA is within "a couple of points" of its 95 percent membership target. Pennsylvania continues to lag behind, Anna said, primarily because some handlers are actively discouraging producers from signing.

"There is no risk at all to farmers who join RCMA," Zuber said. "Today the board passed a resolution guaranteeing a market to any producer whose handler drops him because of his RCMA membership."

In addition, Zuber said the board agreed that if RCMA has to divert any producers milk away from his current handler, RCMA will pay that producer the regulated price plus, if funds are available, any premiums the producer had been receiving from his handler. Those premiums will be paid "for a reasonable length of time" Zuber said, although the board has not yet defined how long reasonable is.

Only those farmers who are members of RCMA on the day of the election will be able to vote for their representatives to the board of directors or to receive any of the money collected by RCMA. The money to run RCMA will be deducted from the over-order premiums paid by handlers, not collected directly from farmers. RCMA bylaws limit that cost deduction to 2 percent of the over-order premiums, but Zuber expects them to be considerably less.

Anna has been on board as the executive director for only eight weeks but said, "I refuse to see this thing drag on. This is a major step in finalizing RCMA."

Dates have been set for all but one of the regional meetings, but some of the locations have not yet been determined. Anna expects to finalize those locations next week.

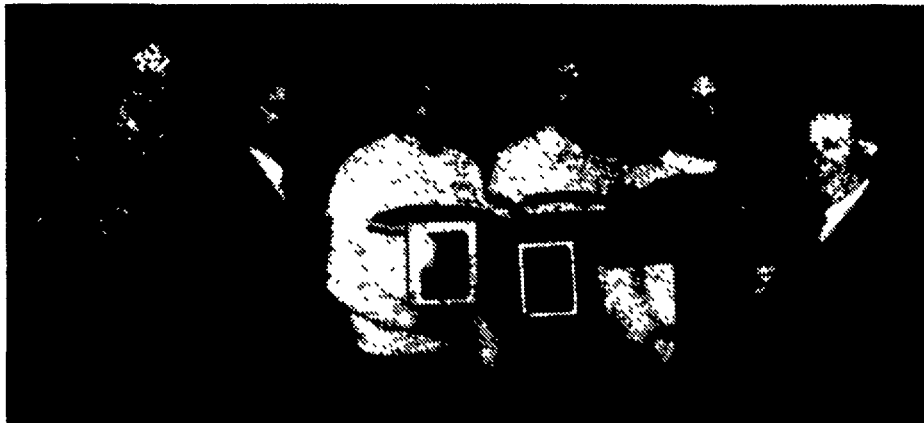

Regions and their meeting dates are:

- March 18, Region 1 — Augusta Civic Center, 1 p.m.
- March 19, Region 2 — Plainfield, New Hampshire, no time set
- March 24, Region 5 — Minerville Town Hall, 1 p.m.
- March 25, Region 6 — Wampsville Fireman's Park (Next to Madison City Courthouse), 1-3 p.m.
- March 26, Region 4 — Deerville Restaurant on Rt. 12, 1-3 p.m.
- March 27, Region 3 — West Potsdam Volunteer Fire Hall, 1 p.m.

Research Pigs Housed In Fancy Facilities

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

GREENFIELD, Ind. — Pigs housed in better climatic conditions than humans. That's how it is in the Eli Lilly and Company swine research facility here in the heartland of the U.S.A. As you know, Eli Lilly is a major pharmaceutical company with worldwide distribution of pharmacy products, medical devices, agricultural products and cosmetics.

The Greenfield lab is the testing ground for Elanco products, Lilly's ag division, as well as other compounds with potential in all of the world markets. Actually the Greenfield lab has an illustrious history prior to its involvement with agricultural products. Starting in 1914 the research center produced vaccines that conquered small pox, diphtheria, polio and tetanus.

Later during World War II, 1100 horses were housed at the research center to produce antitoxins for treatment of disease. While these horses are long gone, the horse barns, built according to Spanish architecture, have been refurbished into modern offices, and the buildings greet the visitor with a unique historic architecture that is on the National Registrar.

From its beginning when Eli Lilly purchased 156 acres of farm land at Greenfield 15 miles east of the pharmaceutical company's headquarters in Indianapolis, the research facility has grown to 1500 acres with 95 research buildings and 1,000 employees. All the products and compounds that Lilly and Company produce have been studied by scientists at the Greenfield laboratory.

It was in 1953 when Lilly started the research for byproducts from the company's human pharmaceutical business to be used in agriculture. Now research trials for new disease control and better farm commodity production cover all major areas of agriculture. The tour arranged for the National Farm Press on Monday in conjunction with the National Pork Congress concentrated on the swine laboratory facilities.

These new, modern barns have about 250 to 300 sows that produce litters to be used in the research trials from farrow to finish. Obviously, the buildings are much more elaborate than in regular commercial production facilities. The research facility looks for new approaches for increased weight gain and attempts to improve feed utilization to develop lean, well-muscled pork for greater quality.

The animals are housed in a totally controlled environment. Air is controlled by computer for heating and ventilation. Temperatures are monitored 24 hours a day. The fans in the building have the capacity for 60 room changes per hour. That's more than two times the normal capacity in commercial operations. The houses are better insulated than many homes. In fact, there is two to three times more insulation than most commercial hog barns. The cold air is brought into the attic of the buildings and mixed with the warmer inside air before getting it down into the room below. This eliminates the variances in temperatures. For hot weather, evaporating coolers are used and self-starting gas generators back up the operation in case of an electrical power failure.

The pigs enjoy a more uniform environment than most humans do in homes or offices. Feeds are produced in the on-farm mill. Each bag of feed is bar coded according to the needs of individual trial pens of hogs. The walls are fiberglass for easy cleaning, and the manure system uses a combination of aerobic and flush systems that use less water.

Artificial insemination is used to reduce the number of boars needed and to keep the genetic differences in the trial litters to a minimum for the research projects. This keeps litters uniform and reduces the differences from hereditary factors to insure more accuracy in the research projects.

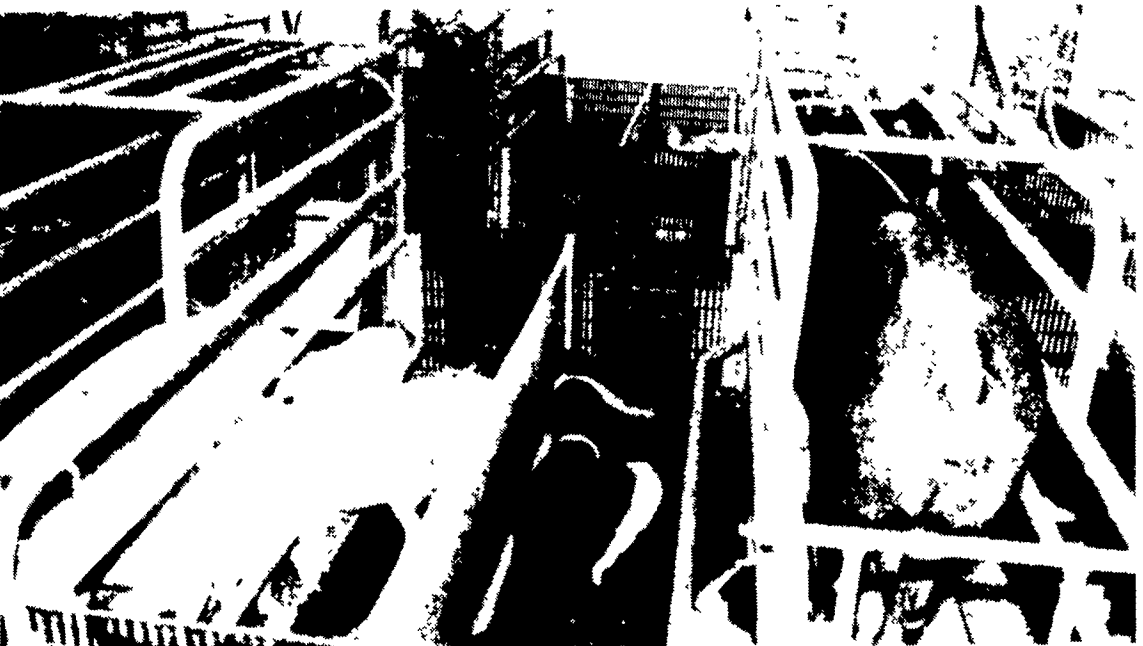

All in all, the research is a laborious undertaking. About 30,000 compounds may be studied each year, but only 10 will get to the advanced stages of research. And only about one new product will emerge on the market every two years. Whether it be the worldwide products of Eli Lilly or the agricultural products of Elanco research continues at Greenfield to help insure a more profitable and healthy world in which to live.

30 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

— June 17 to 20 is Extension Homemakers Week on the campus of the Pennsylvania State University, University Park, announces Miss Ruth Kimble, extension home economist, Lancaster County.

A varied program of interest groups, special activities, and speakers is planned for the three days. With special emphasis this year on music, women interested in music will be encouraged to participate in a chorus.

— Plans for a new 333,000 kilowatt steampower plant to be built on Brunners Island, 15 miles below Harrisburg, were announced Wednesday by Charles E. Oakes, president of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Co.

He said that the company expects to spend nearly $24 million this year in new construction and expansion of existing facilities.

The new unit will be twice as large as the largest present unit in the PP&L system. It will occupy a 766 acre site, which was purchased last spring. It has a potential capacity of two million kilowatts.

— The wet growing season last year made a sharp difference in crop yield figures from 1955 according to a release for the state department of agriculture.

Last year's rainfall totaled 29.69 inches between April and October, 6.17 inches above normal, while practically no rain fell between mid-June and mid-August of the preceding year.

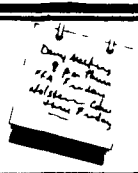

— The Lancaster Stockyards and the Christ Kunzler Packing Co. in Lancaster were visited Tuesday by an eight man livestock marketing and meat processing study team from Japan.

The tour was arranged by the International Cooperation Administration in cooperation with the Department of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania State University.

— Four tobacco seed cleaning and treating demonstrations were held this week on county farms by Dr. O. D. Burke and Harry S. Sloat.

The treatment they demonstrated consisted of cleaning the seed by sieving and blowing. A sieve with holes of about 1/32 inch diameter was used. To blow the light seeds and chaff out of the seed, they used a light separator powered by an electric fan.

of the 2-year-old milk and fat winner. Willows Big Tex Velvet produced 16,873 pounds of milk and 850 pounds of fat in 305 days.

Beth Clark owns both of the 3-year-olds that captured the top milk and fat titles. Misty Meadows Lad Clover, the milk winner, produced 14,252 pounds of milk, 600 pounds of fat in 305 days. Misty Meadows B. Cecile won the fat category with 645 pounds of fat and 14,159 pounds of milk.

Jennifer Yapple won the 5 years and over class with Yapples Lily who had 18,423 pounds of milk and 755 pounds of fat.

The open All-Pennsylvania competition recognized the following owners of the entrants: Ben W. and Regina M. Jackson and Kenneth E. Young, Columbia Cross Roads; Lori L. Campbell, Halifax; Scott and Elsie Wolff, Quarryville; John E. Marchezak, Bentleyville; Gary Fisher, Pottersville; Janice K. Garber, Willow Street; and Gary Fisher.

• Junior heifer calf, Hi Field Superman Bessie, owned by

• Intermediate calf, Keystone Fayette Angel, owned by Lori L. Campbell.

• Senior calf, Hi Field Telestar Biscuit, owned by David A. Guyer Jr. of Derry.

• Intermediate yearling, Willows Fayette Toshiya, owned by Janice K. Garber.

• 5-year-old, Lebanon Valley Atlantics Sadie, owned by Jon Andrew Zollers of Mertztown.

• 6-year-old and over, Foxie Spring Falcon Lady, owned by Jon

Andrew Zollers.

Sabrina Wagner, Meadville, the owner of the 1986 Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Shows champion Guernsey, received the honorary George W. Snyder Award.

The Sewickly Award, given to the 1987 Farm Show champion Guernsey in the junior division, was received by Janice K. Garber.

A highlight of the afternoon was the crowning of the Pennsylvania

Guernsey Queen. 1986 Guernsey Queen Elaine Hill crowned Jennifer Yapple as the 1987 queen.

Jennifer is the 17-year-old high school senior from Clearfield County. She is familiar with promoting since she has represented the Clearfield County dairy farmers as their local dairy princess. Jennifer said "By being crowned as queen, people will look to me for guidance and support and I hope to give that to them just as Elaine has done."

The two top awards in the junior category went to Angelique McDonald, Imbler, the 1987 Outstanding Guernsey Girl, and Heath Winsheimer, the 1987 Outstanding Guernsey Boy, Indiana. Angelique is the 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gaylen McDonald. Heath is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Winsheimer.

Order 4 Milk Priced At $14.30

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine today announced a Class I milk price of $14.30 per hundredweight for April 1987. This price is down 43 cents from March but is 48 cents above last April's Class I price.

Shine announced a Class II milk price of $11.31 per hundredweight for February 1987 and a butterfat differential of 15.7 cents for the month. The Class II price was down 44 cents from the previous month, while the butterfat differential decreased one-tenth of a cent. The April 1987 Class I price and the February 1987 Class II price are based on the February 1987 Minnesota-Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $11.27 per hundredweight at a 3.5 percent butterfat content.

The USDA reported that the wholesale price of Grade A butter at Chicago for February was $1.3675 per pound and the nonfat dry milk price was $.7940 per pound, f.o.b. plants in the Chicago area.

Farm Philosophy By Newton Bair

De-Bugging The Bugs

Whether we like to admit it or not, this generation of farmers has become obsessed with killing bugs. Nearly every crop we grow must be "protected" from the chewers, suckers and spoilers that crawl, fly or hatch on our private Eden. And the more we fight, the richer the Chemical Company gets.

It is not only the indestructible insect that we must fight. We must also do battle with fungi, bacteria, nematodes and virus. Add to that the weeds that choke and compete, and the battle never ends.

How did we come to this state of affairs, where the more we fight, the harder the battle becomes? Most defenders will say it was an economic necessity. We had to prove to ourselves that humans are really the dominant animals on this earth, and no pesky little critter is going to prevent us from having wormless apples, cabbage without holes, or green leafy alfalfa!

Greed has its good and bad points, I guess.

The struggle to "feed the world" has flooded the land with surplus food, while much of the world still goes hungry. Somehow, this strange enigma must be related to the warnings of "Silent Spring" that still go unheeded. Man has changed the ecological balance, and must face the consequence.

Not one single species of insect has been eradicated, nor has any plant disease or weed been totally conquered. Millions of dollars are spent each year in the attempt. All that is accomplished is a temporary protection of our investment, with the prospect of repeating the whole process next year, and the next, ad infinitum.

Our investment in field, garden and orchard is considerable, and simple economics will dictate that our investment must be protected. Chemical control of the pests that defile our crops makes good economic sense. Wormy and stunted fruit is not marketable, and weedy or moth eaten grain makes no profit.

But the other side of the equation is easily ignored. What is all this chemical spritzing and dunking going to do to the Planet Earth? And to you and your grandchildren? Are there alternatives?

The alternatives to chemical "quick fixes" are usually very slow acting and long term affairs. They may even be more costly. The so-called organic cures are often too expensive, and produce poor or no result. They often provide a vehicle for the charlatan to prey on the emotions and the pocketbook of the unwary. The terminology used in promoting the product is often vague and misleading. The only profit they achieve is for the promoter and his salesman. They tend to polarize the public into extremes of chemical users and organic fanatics, with no middle ground.

There is a middle ground, and we must all recognize it sooner or later. It can only be reached by taking a broad view of humanity. It requires much education, in fields of history, economics, sociology, and especially in science and natural history. The more we understand about the way our fellow creatures evolve, reproduce, and live, the better we will understand how they fit into the scheme of things without upsetting Man's dominion too much.

Fortunately we are beginning to pay more attention to developing plant varieties that are resistant to disease and insects. The door is opening wider to the ideas of biological control of pests, through the introduction of predators and parasites that keep crop pests within safe limits.

Cultural methods that inhibit pests and enhance crop quality are becoming more useful as we begin to understand that nature requires a balance in it's own favor.

Mankind's role in the domination of nature may not be to destroy the other life forms which seem to "bug" us.

The chief role of agriculturist of the future is to learn how mother nature uses her tricks. If you can't fool her, join her!

controlled environment is the reason.

Raising hogs isn't just a business . . . it's a science! In swine complexes like the one pictured above, thousands of gilts are introduced to the breeding process and closely monitored throughout gestation. Their young are cross fostered to insure a higher rate of survival, then registered by computer, so as to provide day by day progress reports for the highly specialized staff that operates the complex.

The amount of heat, humidity, water, and rations each hog receives has been carefully calculated and researched. Now, sturdy, well built equipment specially designed to meet these strict requirements carries the proper amounts of air, water, and nutrients to each hog.

The result is more hogs actually going from finisher to market . . . and that means profit!

If you want to raise hogs and make a profit, you need Hershey Equipment Company. Hershey researches, designs, manufacturers, and builds swine systems. Hershey even operates its own system profitably! Get the benefit of experience . . . Call Hershey Equipment Company today!

Tell me more about owning and operating a swine system. I'd like to see how I can profit from the experience of Hershey Equipment.

Rabies

And The Dairy Producer

By Dr. L. J. Hutchinson

During 1986, rabies continued its advance through Pennsylvania. As part of a northward move through the Appalachian range, rabies has spread from southcentral Pennsylvania, generally in a northward and eastward direction. Raccoons have been the main carrier, but other wild and domestic animals have been involved.

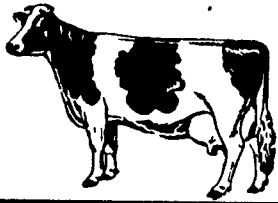

The total of laboratory-confirmed cases of rabies was 583 in Pennsylvania during 1986. Of these, 409 were raccoons, 101 skunks, 24 fox, 19 cats, 17 bats, five groundhogs, three cows, two dogs, two horses and one donkey. In many of the domestic animal cases, including all three cattle cases, humans were exposed and rabies treatments were advised.

A new Pennsylvania law requires rabies vaccination of dogs and cats. Barn cats are excluded from the requirement. Keep in mind that farm dogs and cats are at high risk of rabies exposure, especially in high-prevalence areas. Rabies-exposed, unvaccinated dogs and cats are a definite danger to your cattle and to humans. It may not be easy to get farm cats and dogs vaccinated, but it is worth the trouble.

What about vaccinating cattle and other livestock?

There is a vaccine available for use in cattle, sheep and horses. You should consider the chances of exposure in deciding whether to vaccinate. Risk of exposure depends on prevalence in wildlife in your area and animal environment (confinement vs. pasture). Discuss with your veterinarian the advisability of livestock vaccination and arrange how to have your cats and dogs vaccinated.

milk with a 5.5 test. Her twin sister classified Very Good with 1,000 pounds of fat. A maternal sister scored EX-91 as a 2 year old with an actual production of 15,000 milk. The next two dams classified EX-92.

A 6-month-old Shultz Performing Legend daughter sold for the second best price of $1,500.

Her dam, an Excellent Master Milestone C daughter, produced a top record of 14,560 milk with a 5.4 test. She has two Excellent maternal sisters.

The next dam classified Excellent and produced a top record of 18,560 milk with a 5.4 test as a 10 year old. Her lifetime record-to-date stands at 110,000 milk with an average test of 5.4 percent.

Larry Benson auctioneered the sale. The Massachusetts Jersey Cattle Club managed the sale. Sale chairman John Miller noted the average was slightly higher than last year. He added that a standing-room-only crowd witnessed the sale. Animals were sold to Canada, Idaho, Illinois, and throughout the Northeast.

HOLSTEIN
The MINNESOTA CONVENTION CLASSIC averaged $1,623 on 38 whole lots.

A VG-86 3-year-old, sired by Willow Farm Rockman Ivanhoe, topped the sale with a bid of $3,350.

Just-fresh and producing 94 pounds of milk a day, she completed a top record of 22,338 milk and 861 fat in 346 days.

Her dam, a VG-88 Elevation daughter, produced a high record of 28,920 milk and 1,147 fat in 365 days.

The next dam classified VG-87 with a top record of 25,490 milk and 910 fat.

Sired by Browndale Concord-ET, the second high lot sold for $3,000. A GP-84 3 year old, she produced a first-calf record of 22,500 milk. Her record-in-progress stands at 3,777 milk and 101 fat in 42 days. She sold bred to Enhancer.

Her dam, a VG-85 Elevation Ivan daughter, produced a top record of 26,130 milk and 897 fat in 365 days. The next dam classified VG-85.

John Hager auctioneered the sale and the Snyder-Hager Sales managed the sale. Mike Snyder noted the average increased over $200 from last year's sale.

The BADGER INVITATIONAL SALE held in Wisconsin averaged $2,130 on 54 Holsteins and $900 on eight Jerseys.

A 2-year-old cow by Valiant topped the sale by selling for $9,400. Classified VG-85, she will freshen in June to Coldsprings Levi. Her first record, in progress, stands at 14,544 milk and 603 fat in 241 days. She owns a Cow Index of plus 1,087 milk, plus .09 test, plus 56 fat and plus $152.

Her dam, an 86-point Walley daughter, produced a top record of 31,883 milk with a 4.3 percent test and 1,366 fat in 365 days. She owns a Cow Index of plus $159.

Selling for $4,000 and the second best price was an 82-point 3 year old. Fresh in January, the Lime Hollow Elevation Mars daughter completed a first lactation of 17,940 milk and 608 fat in 276 days. She has an EX-90 maternal sister with 22,500 milk and 878 fat.

Her dam is an Excellent Monitor daughter with a best record of 28,950 milk and 1,235 fat for a 4.3 test in 365 days. The next dam is an Excellent Bootmaker daughter with a top record of 25,780 milk and 976 fat in 365 days.

A first-calf 3 year old topped the Jersey portion of the sale with a bid of $1,675. Sired by Samson she freshened in January and classified VG-87.

Her dam, an 87-point JFD Empire daughter, produced a top record of 11,842 milk and 720 fat for a 6.1 test.

Over 600 people attended the sale. Dave Dixon, a professor at the University of Wisconsin, noted the crowd had a feeling of optimism about the dairy industry.

The sale crew consisted of volunteer alumni from the University of Wisconsin. Dan Schnell, a senior dairy science major, managed the sale. Tom Morris served as auctioneer. Jim Hoskens and Marlowe Nelson read pedigrees. The University of Wisconsin Dairy Science Club sponsored the sale.

McGinnis, Robinson Honored At NDHIA Banquet

PHILADELPHIA — Two men who work closely and influenced the DHIA on the state and national level were honored Thursday night at the close of the National Dairy Herd Improvement Convention.

W. Charles McGinnis, former president of the American Jersey Cattle Club, received the H. Victor Joachim Distinguished Leadership and Service Award. Renamed in honor of former NDHIA president H. Victor Joachim.

A past president of the NDHIA, McGinnis retired as a national DHIA last year after serving the maximum term of 10 years. The 58-year-old North Carolina native has served the South Carolina DHIA as a president for three years, vice president for three years, director for 14 years, and executive committee member for 12 years.

In addition to the office of president in the AJCC, McGinnis served as vice president and on the board of directors. He held the office of president in the South Carolina Jersey Cattle Club.

McGinnis has been active in the National Purebred Dairy Cattle Association, American Dairy Association, South Carolina PDCA, South Carolina Dairy Association, National Association of Farm Managers, and South Carolina Farm Bureau.

An active dairy cattle judge, McGinnis purchased the White Plains Ranch in Mountville, S.C., in 1979 and established a herd of 485 registered Jerseys.

Dean E. Robinson received the Outstanding Service Award.

Former general manager of the Virginia Federation of DHIA, Robinson served the DHIA program in Virginia for 31 years. He began his career as a milk tester for Grayson County in 1955. In 1964 Robinson advanced to fieldman and in 1969 became general manager of the Virginia Federation of DHIA.

As general manager, Robinson implemented computerized record keeping on the state level. He helped establish a centralized milk testing laboratory in Blacksburg, Va., and in the first year had all the herds enrolled in Virginia.

He was instrumental in the installation of a FOM-SCC machine in the lab, being the second state in the country to recognize this need. The former general manager started automatic testing of milk for fat, protein and lactose. Robinson was involved with developing the procedure for teleprocessing DHIA information from the testing lab to the records processing center at Raleigh, N.C.

Robinson devised the centralized accounting system with all funds handled by the state organization. He retired in July 1986 but continues to serve as administrator of the Virginia DHIA supervisors retirement trust.

Also recognized at the evening program were retiring board members J. George Smith, Illinois, after nine years; Richard Popp, New York, after six years; Bernard Monson, Iowa, after two years; and John Zonneveld, California, after six years.

Snyder Holstein Club Reorganizes

MIDDLEBURG — The Snyder County Holstein Club held its annual meeting recently in the Middleburg Fire Hall.

After a ham dinner, the members listened to a skit by Susan Waite, SUN area dairy princess. Robert Pardoe, RCMA representative, then updated the members on the status of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency. This was followed by a short discussion and slide series on the "Dairy of Distinction" program by Sue Reynolds from the American Dairy Association."

State director Ken Boyer of Selinsgrove reported that Snyder County passed its membership goal. The Snyder County Holstein Club received matching funds from the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Agency for the milk radio spots in Snyder County.

Neil Hornberger of Mount Pleasant Mills was re-elected to serve another two-year term on the Board of Directors for the club. Other directors include Jeffrey Shaffer from Beavertown, Ronald Reich, Selinsgrove, Alan Narehood, Beavertown, Dale Hornberger, Mount Pleasant Mills, Sam Risser, Middleburg, and Gerald Sheaffer of Mount Pleasant Mills.

Following the banquet, the directors met and elected the following officers: president, Jeff Shaffer, vice president, Ronald Reich, and secretary/treasurer, Alan Narehood. Anthony Weaver, from the Middleburg FFA Chapter was appointed youth director for the FFA and Steve Weller was reappointed for the 4-H representative.

Bills Gain Senate Committee Approval

HARRISBURG — Several ag-related bills were reported out of the State Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee following a committee meeting on Wednesday.

Sheila Miller, an assistant to committee chairman Edward Helfrick, reported that House Bill 73, a bill that would delay penalties under the new rabies law, received committee approval. The law calls for penalties of up to $300 per offense for the owners of unvaccinated dogs and housecats. HB 73 would give pet owners until Sept. 1, to have their animals vaccinated.

Also receiving the committee's stamp of approval was Senate Bill 429, that would provide protection for farm equipment dealers under contract with manufacturers. In the case of company mergers or consolidations, the bill calls for manufacturers to buy back any special tools or equipment that their dealers purchased at 100 percent of the the original dealer cost. The bill would also prevent dealer contracts from being broken without due cause. The legislation pertains to both large and small implement and equipment manufacturers.

Senate Bill 156, introduced by Senator Noah Wenger, was also approved. The legislation would provide funding for farmland preservation easements, whereby landowners would be reimbursed the difference between their property's value as farmland and its value on the open market when the land is sold. This bill was also reported out of the Senate Appropriations Committee on Tuesday and is ready for a full Senate vote.

Also approved was Senate Resolution 10, which requests that Virginia stop taxing eggs brought in from Pennsylvania. Virginia currently levies a 5-cent-per-case (30 dozen) excise tax on Pennsylvania eggs, with the money going toward egg promotion programs. Pennsylvania has no such reciprocal tax.

Another resolution, SR 20, calls for the establishment of a bipartisan committee to explore the possibility of creating a major Pennsylvania agriculture products exposition. The goal is to encourage other states and foreign countries to buy Pennsylvania products.

"We increased our milk income
by $30,000
this past year"

JIM WITTER
Witterdale Farms
Shippensburg, PA

"I believe Silo Guard II is partially responsible for this milk income increase due to the fact we've made no changes in our feeding program other than treating our haylage this past year with Silo Guard II.

I began noticing the untreated haylage was 'carmelizing' along with loosing excessive amounts of water. Treatment of the haylage with Silo Guard II eliminated this problem totally. The fed-out haylage now has a fresh, green appearance with a pleasant aroma. Our herd, 200 of which we're milking respond to the treated haylage very well, eagerly clean it up with no hesitation. I feel that the improved silage diet along with closer attention to milking and feeding programs have made the difference. I'm planning to treat other silages this year with Silo Guard II and strongly recommend it to other dairy farmers... it sure makes a profitable difference for me," says Jim.

to change by offering our customers a wide array of loan products. These products include fixed rate loans as well as variable rate loans, differentially-priced from both the quality as well as the size. We preceive these new loan products to be in the best interest of our customers," Swackhamer said. "If the individual borrowers have maintained sound operations and have invested a considerable amount of their own equity, they should get a preferential rate. And that's what we intend to do."

While our loan values are still declining, that is perhaps more from farmers' desire to curtail the use of farm credit than anything else. We feel our loan rates are far more competitive now in relation to alternate sources of credit than they were in 1986. So we expect to see our loan value stabilize and hold at about the present level of $2.8 billion on a combined basis.

One of the major discussions at this annual meeting was a proposal that's pending before the Farm Credit Systems Regulatory Agency to merge all of the Farm Credit Associations into one district-wide association. This combined association would be known as the Mid-Atlantic Production Credit Association and the Mid-Atlantic Federal Land Bank Association. Swackhamer said this merger would be primarily for administrative purposes. "The branch offices would remain as they exist today," Swackhamer said. "They would be the primary contact points for all borrowing including loan approval just as they are today. I would not expect there would be a noticeable change from a shareholder's or a borrower's point of view in terms of loan service or loan support," Swackhamer said. "We are a very decentralized system in the Baltimore district even though we have joint management. We want that part of the organization to remain the same. We want the branches to be a profit center. And the administrative support for that branch office is where the change would occur. Consolidation in some of the functions would give us the economy that will help us to adjust to a shrinking agricultural credit base. We believe we have taken joint management about as far as we can go to realize economy. To try to adjust further to the change in agriculture, we don't believe we can support 52 separate entities. That may look like dramatic change in the Farm Credit System. But if you look at history, in 1941 there were several thousand credit offices in the United States. And today there are about 355. So there has been ongoing change each decade. This is a continuation of it," Swackhamer said. "But I think this consolidation would position the Baltimore district very strongly to be able to capture efficiency of operation over the next decade. We are operating successfully. But based on the experience of other districts, it is in our interest to determine our own structure rather than to become a part of a broader Farm Credit System financial problem that might dictate to us a structure later on."

The Quilt Shop Offers Customers Abundant Stock Of Craft Supplies

BY SHARON SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

LITTLESTOWN — In 1979, Kitty Hillard cooked up a good idea in the 11-by-15 summer kitchen of her Littlestown, Pa. home. It was the start of The Quilt Patch, which is now regarded as one of the best sources of quilting supplies and unique gifts in the area.

At first, Kitty sold fabric gifts exclusively. In 1982, the business outgrew the summer kitchen, and her husband, Lewis, built an 18-by-24 addition. With about 35 bolts of calico fabric, The Quilt Patch was really cookin'.

But that was five years ago. In 1985, the business was growing so fast that it was bursting at the seams, and Lew constructed a 30-by-60 bank barn to house their successful enterprise.

"This was just supposed to be something to keep me out of trouble," said Kitty. "It has really mushroomed."

Now about 700 bolts of calico fabric fill the upper level of the barn while the lower level boasts handcrafted gifts from all over the country and from Europe. Kitty said the shop is frequented by "a lot of do-it yourselves." At the Quilt Patch customers can view quilts, pillows, and other items on the lower level, then purchase the materials to make the very same items from the supplies upstairs.

The lower level of the shop is a treat for those looking for fine country crafts. "We are both from Lancaster County," explained Lew. "We both graduated from Upper Leacock High School. We have an advantage having lived in Lancaster County," he said. Specifically, Lew was referring to their contacts with the Amish community and other fine craftsmen from the area.

The focal point of the gift shop area is the display of quilts that are for sale. It is perhaps best described by one customer who exclaimed, "I have died and gone to heaven!" The exquisite covers are beautiful in every detail. Patterns range from floral designs to geometric patterns to Grandma's patchwork quilt, and the colors are taken right from the rainbow.

The quilts are "sought out" by the Hillards on their trips through Pennsylvania. "A good many come from Lancaster County," said Kitty. "Guy and Edythe

Martin from Goodville, who are well-known in quilting circles, make some of the quilt tops," she explained.

Some of the designs that were on display are Double Wedding Ring, Log Cabin, Lancaster County Rose, Distelfink, Spring Flowers, Grandma's Fan, Mimosa Tea Leaf, and Lone Star. While there is a great selection of quilts at the shop, custom orders for design, colors, and size will be taken. The cost of the completed quilts starts at $375.

For those who wish to enjoy the beauty of a quilt, but don't want to actually sleep on it, wall hangings may be the answer. The quilted hangings feature one full block of a particular quilt pattern, and the cost, at $135, is considerably less than a full sized quilt.

Difficult as it is to leave the quilt corner of the shop, other display areas demand equal time for viewing unique handcrafted items. Lew singled out the perpetual calendars as one of the most popular items in the shop. "They are all hand done. They will last you a lifetime," he said. Kitty said the potpourri and potpourri burners are a year round favorite also.

It pays to walk around the shop very slowly in order to take in all the details. Most of the outside wall is covered with framed prints and pictures. Look carefully at the collection of small color prints near the picture window. Each picture has a quilt worked into the theme in some way. The intricate designs of the scherenschnitte (paper cutting) designs stand out from their backgrounds to form ornate silhouettes. Of the various designs offered, Lew said "Life is a Patch is very popular."

Reaching over to the barn door chimes, Lew gently lifted the three balls suspended on each guitar-like instrument and let them drop against the strings. The sound they made was a delightful chime, each one different from the other.

"Can't find this anyplace else," said Lew of the pictures formed from tobacco laths from Leola, Pa. The wooden strips that were once used to dry tobacco leaves are placed together within a frame and painted, to make a simple barnyard design. Stuffed Amish dolls are seated in the Lincoln Rockers made in Lancaster County by Amish families. Vicki Gilbert works in The Quilt Shop and makes many of the stuffed items that are found there.

For $89, the 20-by-24 framed, signed limited edition copy of Noah's Ark by Jean Smith is a real find. "The colors are so different," commented Lew. "It's different from any Noah's Ark picture I ever saw," he continued, "because this is after the flood." The print is hand stenciled and comes framed or unframed.

When examining the unique wares of the shop, don't overlook the pieces on which they are displayed. Underneath those German Smokers from the Black Forest, and the porcelain dolls, Williamsburg candles, pillows, handpainted Bavarian dishes, ceramic figurines, handknitted sweaters, pewter jewelry, and chow-chow, are handcrafted pieces of furniture which are like no other. The hutches, tables and benches are made from re-sawn lumber acquired from barns and covered bridges, mostly from the Lancaster County area.

Customers share the same problem that Kitty expressed; "tearing myself away from downstairs." But, the trip upstairs is worth it for needlecrafts.

There are about 150 different plastic quilting stencils from the selection of supplies. The walls are lined with 700 bolts of calico materials, most of them 100 percent cotton. It's like looking at a rainbow. There are about 135 different blues alone, in little prints, bigger prints, florals, checks, plaids, solids and borders.

The prints are priced from $3.59 to $3.79 per yard and the solids sell for $3.19 per yard. "We sell about 1,000 to 1,500 yards of material per month," estimated Lew.

Also available from the upper level are about 70 different pillow panels, imported lace panels from Belgium, France and Holland, needlecraft kits and quilting frames. Lew is currently expanding the upstairs area to accommodate more needlecraft kits. He makes the 110-inch long quilting frames in his shop. They sell for $125 — while they last.

"Quilting is a needlecraft that is here to stay," says Kitty. She assists her customers in planning quilt designs. "It makes you feel good when you've helped somebody," she said. One of the biggest thrills for Kitty is "when they bring their quilts in here to show me."

Kitty has become so involved with the quilting end of the business that she now offers classes for all abilities. "A lot of working girls want to do this, but don't have the time," she explained. That is the reason she established the "Speed Piecing" class in which students make five quilt tops in as many weeks. She brings in experts to lead the classes in cross-stitch, stenciling, and quilting.

Lew and Kitty Hillard operate The Quilt Patch with a goal in mind. "We always have stood on quality," said Kitty, "and it has paid off. It's pretty hard to sell something you're not proud of."

The Quilt Patch is located at 1897

Hanover Pike, Littlestown, Pennsylvania, 17340. For information on classes or to receive the newsletter, The Quilt Patch Dispatch, write or call 717-359-5940. Open year round, Monday through Saturday, 9:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. April 1 through Dec. 24, Sunday, 1 p.m. until 5 p.m.

The Quilt Patch is one of a trio of shops in the area which offers unique items. Koonys Barn at 1295 Frederick Pike, Littlestown, Pa. 17340, is a treat for those looking for treasures with a country flavor. It is "filled to the rafters" with primitive furniture, crocks, cupboards, restored trunks, Rowe pottery, whirligigs and more. 717-359-7411

The Smokehouse, located at 3830 Baltimore Pike, Littlestown, Pa. offers items from local folk artists in a pre-Civil War stone smokehouse near Gettysburg in the village of Frogtown. 717-359-4514.

York County 4-H Council

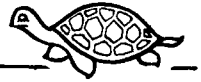

Members of York County 4-H Council met March 3 at the North Codorus Township Building. Gary Miller informed the group on plans for 4-H Alumni Night and Oona Hord reported on a successful officer's training.

Other old business discussed was the 4-H Auction, Washington Weekend, Hospital Fete Petting Zoo and square dancing at Pleasant Acres.

Members later observed a court hearing with Magistrate Paul M. Diehl Jr. presiding. A question and answer session followed the hearing.

The next meeting will be held March 31 at Roll-R-Way at the Delco Plaza from 7 to 10 p.m. This will be the only skating party held this year. All 4-H'ers are encouraged to support the event.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Last week I made fasnachts. As I made only one-half of a recipe I had some leftover yeast. I'd recently cleaned out some storage closets and found rye flour that remained from the time that my girls were home and made bread, so I decided to bake rye bread too.

Now this might not sound like much of a decision to you but it has been over 30 years since I baked bread. At that time, I had a bad experience and so I did not want to have the same thing happen again.

That day, many years ago, I was kneading dough when it was time to meet the school bus. As it's nearest stop was one mile from our house, we usually drove the car to get the smaller children. This was a winter day with snow and ice on the roads. I glanced out the window and saw my husband and a salesman busily talking. They made no move to end their half-hour discussion. And so, I prepared to drive to the bus instead of my husband, who is a better driver on icy roads.

Well, on the way, a tree jumped out in front of me and stopped the car. Now we needed a new light and a new fender. I was quite upset. When anyone heard about the accident they asked how the car had fared. Finally one of my many sisters asked me how I was. You see, I was expecting a baby in a few weeks and that didn't help anything. I'll always be grateful to that sister who thought about me instead of the car.

Now you know why I have not baked any bread for years. I suppose you could say that I'm superstitious. Now the end of this long story is that the fasnachts got okay but the bread was a flop again.

Rebersburg Mother Graduates To Greenhouse Career

UNIVERSITY PARK — Rebersburg has an unusual nursery and a remarkable grower. Roberts Greenhouse and Nursery in Brush Valley is an energy-efficient and chemical-free operation that specializes in wholesale containerized perennial and ornamental landscape plants for garden shops and holiday flowers for retail flower shops.

Its owner, manager and principal employee, Janice C. Roberts, mother of four and grandmother of one, is on her way to a new career and a dream come true.

"After 19 years as a psychiatric nurse, I thought it was time for a change. I've always been good at growing things and when I saw a brochure about the two-year ornamental horticulture program at Penn State, I thought, this is it." Since returning to Pennsylvania after years of nursing in Oregon, she has worked at The Meadows clinic, Laurelton Center. Mrs. Roberts, of Star Route 1, graduated Feb. 28 from Penn State's technical program in ornamental nursery management. The program combines on-campus instruction with on-the-job training and is designed for those who already have some experience and want to pursue professional careers in the landscape industry. It is offered by the Department of Horticulture in cooperation with a number of other departments in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

"I've been taking Penn State courses since the '70s, but this was entirely different," Mrs. Roberts says. She did her internship portion with Carl Vesper at Twin View Nursery in Boalsburg, doing a little bit of everything. "I worked in the propagation area quite a bit and sometimes helped customers with design ideas," she says.

After celebrating graduation with her family (most of whom, including her mother and three of her four daughters, also have Penn State degrees) she quickly put them all to work getting plants ready for spring sales. The help of her family and her own energy have already put her business in operation.

"I've been supplying holiday plants to a flower kiosk in Baltimore ever since I started the program and am now developing a production nursery of perennials and ornamentals for wholesale," she says.

Cook's Question Corner

If you are looking for a recipe but can't seem to find it anywhere, send your recipe request to Cook's Question Corner, care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 366, Lititz, Pa. 17543. There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION - Mrs. Florence Nauman, Manheim, would like a recipe for black cherry forest cake.

QUESTION - K. H. Bowman, Myerstown, would like to know how to prepare Shad Roe.

QUESTION - Margaret Bomgardner, Ono, would like a recipe for crackling biscuits. It has a raised yeast dough.

QUESTION - Mrs. Clara Scarff, Whitehall, Md., would like a recipe for a coconut cake that uses the liquid inside a fresh coconut.

QUESTION - Mrs. Ammon Gruber, Emmaus, would like a recipe for creamed mushroom soup.

QUESTION - W. J. Coddington, Rahway, N.J., would like a recipe for mocha icing.

QUESTION - Miss Ellen Hoover, New Holland, would like a recipe for homemade batter-dipped chicken.

QUESTION - Mrs. Ronald Kamoda of Monongahela would like to know how to cook a young chicken in a Dutch oven so it gets soft instead of crispy.

ANSWER - Mrs. Ammon Gruber, Emmaus, requested a recipe for cream of broccoli soup. Thanks go to Mrs. Jean Troutman, Matamoras, for the following recipe and to all others who shared broccoli soup recipes.

Cream of Broccoli Soup

- 1 pound broccoli, fresh or frozen
- ½ pound butter
- 1 cup flour
- 1 quart chicken stock
- 1 quart half-and-half
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper

Cut broccoli into ½-inch pieces. Steam in ½ cup water until tender. Do not drain. Set aside. Melt butter in saucepan over medium heat. Add flour to make a roux. Cook for 2 to 4 minutes. Add chicken stock, stirring, and bring to a boil. Turn heat to low. Add broccoli, half-and-half, salt and pepper. Heat but do not boil.

ANSWER - W. J. Coddington, Rahway, N.J., requested a recipe for rhubarb cake. Thanks go to Esther Shertzer, Columbia, and K. H. Bowman, Myerstown, for the following recipes and to all others who shared rhubarb cake recipes. (Look for another rhubarb cake recipe on page B2.)

Rhubarb Cake

- 1½ cups brown sugar
- ½ cup shortening
- 1 egg
- 2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1½ to 2 cups rhubarb, cut into ½-inch pieces

Cream together the brown sugar, shortening and egg. Thoroughly stir together flour, soda and salt; add to creamed mixture alternately with sour cream. Stir in rhubarb. Turn into greased and floured 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan. Sprinkle with topping. Bake at 350°F for 45 to 50 minutes. Serve warm or cool.

Topping

- ½ cup granulated sugar
- ½ cup chopped nuts
- ½ cup coconut (optional)
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon

Mix ingredients together until crumbly. Spread on top of cake before baking.

Rhubarb Coffeecake

- 1 cup coarsely chopped pecans
- ½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 2½ cups all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup unsalted butter or margarine, softened
- 1½ cups sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 20-ounce package of frozen rhubarb, thawed and well drained OR about 1 pound fresh rhubarb, cut into ½-inch pieces (about 4 cups)
- ½ cup sour cream

Preheat oven to 350°F. Grease a 10-inch bundt pan; set aside. In medium bowl, combine pecans, brown sugar and cinnamon until well mixed. In large bowl, sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. In large bowl with electric mixer on medium speed, cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Beat in vanilla. Stir flour mixture into butter mixture until smooth. Fold in rhubarb and sour cream. Sprinkle one third of the nut mixture evenly over bottom of prepared pan. Spread half of batter over nut mixture, then spread with remaining batter. Bake 50 to 55 minutes or until a cake tester inserted near center comes out clean. Cool in pan on wire rack 10 minutes. Then invert the cake onto a wire rack and cool completely.

ANSWER - Mrs. Ed Haldeman, Doylestown, wanted to know methods for preparing scrapple other than pan frying. Debbie Berger of Kutztown, wrote to say her family likes broiled scrapple. She writes: "I love broiling my scrapple. It gets nice and crispy. Most of the grease or fat bakes off into my broiler pan. My kids and husband will eat it no other way."

Esther Shertzer of Columbia also suggested broiling scrapple.

Liverwurst

Cover 1 quart of liver with water; cook until quite soft. Mash or put through grinder or chop in blender with enough of the broth so it will operate. Stir in to taste: salt, pepper, nutmeg, allspice, cinnamon, onion salt or garlic salt. Add small amounts of mayonnaise, mustard and broth to desired consistency. Refrigerate or freeze in airtight boxes. A handful of bacon-bits adds a different flavor. You may also use a handful of cooked mashed soybeans or purchased soy protein as an extender.

Note: I use this with chicken or lamb livers (plus other organ pieces) but I'm sure it would also work with beef or pork.

York County 4-H Baby Beef Club

The York County 4-H Baby Beef Club met March 2 at the 4-H Center for a joint program with the Swine and Lamb Clubs.

Richard Beck Jr., a former York County 4-H member now associated with the American Angus Hall of Fame in Smithville, Mo., discussed how 4-H has helped him.

Joe Druck instructed beef club members to fill out their IBM forms to receive mailings from the Extension office.

The group will meet April 6 at the 4-H Center at 7:30 p.m. Parents and new members are welcome to attend.

SOCK-IT-TO-ME-CAKE

- 1 box yellow cake mix
 - ¾ cup oil
 - 4 eggs
 - ½ cup soft margarine
 - 1 cup chopped nuts
 - 1 cup sour cream
 - 2 tablespoons sugar
 - 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- Mix cake mix, oil and margarine. Blend in eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Beat 2 minutes more. Fold in sour cream and nuts. Pour half of batter into a tube or bundt pan. Sprinkle half of cinnamon-sugar mixture over batter. Pour remaining batter into pan and cover with remaining sugar. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 50 minutes.

Marie Martin

RHUBARB CAKE

- Dice 2 cups rhubarb and add ½ cup sugar; set aside.
 - 1½ cups sugar
 - ½ cup shortening
 - 1 egg
 - 1 cup sour milk
 - 2 cups flour
 - Dash of salt
 - 1 teaspoon soda
 - 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Cream sugar and shortening; add egg and sour milk. Add dry ingredients and rhubarb. Pour into greased 9x12-inch pan. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees. Sprinkle with confectioner's sugar or when cool cover with a cream cheese frosting.

Virginia W. Button
Millerton

HOT MILK CAKE

- 4 eggs, beaten light
 - 2 cups sugar
 - ¼ pound butter
 - 1 cup milk
 - 2 cups flour
 - 1 teaspoon baking powder
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Beat eggs and add sugar, flour and baking powder. Add butter which has been melted in milk and add vanilla. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour.

Sewing For Profit Seminar To Promote Home-Based Business

Home-based sewing businesses appear to be the up and coming trend in employment opportunities. The increased flexibility of time schedules, the reduction of fixed rent and transportation costs, and the advantage of being your own boss are some reasons people are staying home to work. Sewing oriented businesses include such specialties as monogramming, drapery and custom home furnishings, crafts, custom sewing, quilting, alterations, bridal wear, and more. A one-day seminar on Sewing for Profit is set for Wednesday, April 1 at the Holiday Inn of Valley Forge. This informative day is sponsored by the Pennsylvania State University Cooperative Extension Service and is open to the public. The seminar hours are 9 to 4 p.m. The $25 fee for the day includes lunch and all materials. Keynote speaker Joyce Smith, Extension clothing specialist from Ohio State University, will address "Is a Home Sewing Business for You?" This will cover family considerations, physical facilities, management practices, and finding your clientele. John Becker, specialist from Penn State University, will cover legal issues such as zoning, taxes, insurance and copyright laws. The "Proper Steps for Starting a Business" will be the topic covered by Joyce Izbicki from the Pa. Small Business Action Center in Harrisburg. She will be followed by Mary C. Saylor, Pennsylvania State University, who will discuss marketing techniques and advertising. A panel of persons involved in various types of home-based sewing businesses will answer concerns from the audience and discuss the good and bad points of this type of business venture. The highlight of the day will be commercial exhibitors displaying and demonstrating new fabrics, notions, patterns, sewing machines, and more. Participants will also be eligible to receive one of the many door prizes that will be given away that day. For anyone presently involved in a home-based business or considering starting one, the day is sure to answer many questions and give much needed advice. Interested persons may contact their County Extension office. Pre-registration is required and registration is limited. Don't miss this valuable opportunity to learn how to operate a profitable home-based business.

17-Year Cicadas To Appear This Spring

WASHINGTON — A huge and mysterious family, whose ancestors the Pilgrims noted with horror, will pop up for one of its infrequent but unerringly predictable visits this spring.

The expected visitors will be 17-year cicadas. Countless millions of them will emerge from the ground in the northeastern quarter of the United States between mid-May and early June.

The nymphs, as undeveloped cicadas are called, will climb up tree trunks, fence posts, weed stalks, and other convenient vertical objects. There they'll split their skins, leaving abandoned husks all over the place, and emerge, soft and white.

Within a few hours, their shells will harden and turn black and their orange-veined wings will stiffen. Then the transformed nature insects, red-eyed and an inch and a half long, will fly to the treetops.

There the males will sing their loud mating song. Oh, how they'll sing. For several cacophonous weeks, from dawn to dusk, the noisemaking membranes on their abdomens will make the insects an insistent and unavoidable presence.

"There's a general din," says Richard C. Froeschner, a Smithsonian Institution entomologist. "In a woods where they're abundant, you have to shout to be heard."

But Froeschner and other entomologists are quick to defend the unloved cicadas. Except for harmless sap-sucking, says Froeschner, "These things don't eat anything."

Gene Wood, a professor of entomology at the University of Maryland, goes a step further. "They don't hurt anybody and they're not a health threat," he says, "so we might as well enjoy them while we can."

There are some exceptions, however. After the cicadas have mated, the females deposit 400 to 600 eggs in slits they carve at the ends of branches. In six or seven weeks, nymphs hatch, fall to the ground, and tunnel in for their 17-year burial. On a mature tree, the tip of the branch dies, but the tree is usually not harmed.

Not as formidable as it looks, the 17-year cicada is scheduled to make one of its unerringly predictable visits to the northeastern quarter of the United States this spring. Millions of the black-bodied insects will sing, mate, lay eggs and die within a month after they emerge from the ground, starting in mid-May. They're an inch and a half long and have red eyes and orange-veined wings. But they don't bite or sting and cause little damage.

Young trees are something else. Loss of the branch tips, a process known as "flagging," can weaken or kill them. This can grieve homeowners and orchardists alike. Wood recommends covering young trees with plastic mesh. He prefers this method to insecticide sprays, because sprays harm other forms of life.

Some Scared Badly

Another exception is people who go beyond common aversion to insects and suffer from an insect phobia. While cicadas neither bite nor sting, their noise and numbers combine to make a formidable presence.

"I can imagine it would make some people incredibly anxious, to the point where they would have anxiety attacks," says Paul A. Buongiorno, a Fairfax, Va., psychiatrist.

But somehow, in the view of the entomologists, the mild-mannered creatures deserve a friendlier reception than they receive from an unappreciative public.

After all, they're by far the longest-living insects on earth.

Distinctive to the United States, they're divided into 20 broods. Brood X, for number 10, is the largest of all. It's the one due to arrive in the East this spring. Scarcely a year goes by without the appearance of a brood somewhere.

The last emergence of Brood X was in 1970. It coincided with the arrival of a brood of 13-year cicadas — relatives that live in the South and Midwest — for the first time since 1742 in a joint appearance that occurs only every 221 years. Next show: 2184.

Records of Brood X date back to 1715. Periodical cicadas — not to be confused with every late summer's common cicadas, also called harvest flies and dog-days cicadas — have been known in this country since 1634, when they dropped in on the Pilgrims.

But the deeply religious Pilgrims misnamed the cicadas locusts, thinking the insects were the ravenous type referred to in the stories of Biblical plagues.

Conrad Weiser FFA Chapter Honors Outstanding Members

ROBESONIA — The annual Conrad Weiser FFA Banquet was held Thursday, March 5th at the high school.

Following a buffet style beef and ham dinner, families, faculty, and special guests gathered in the auditorium for the presentation of awards.

Second, third, and fourth grade students who received trophies last October at the chapter's Annual Pumpkin Contest were presented with trophies.

In the best decorated category, prizes were awarded to Sonja Root, second grade; Amie Forry, third grade; and Michele Ruscio, fourth grade.

Prizes for the heaviest pumpkin went to Adam Murdough, second grade; Jimmy Latshaw, third grade; and Jason Kleinfelter, fourth grade.

Most unusually shaped pumpkin awards were presented to Lindsay Phillips, second grade; Matt Auchenbach, third grade; and Steven Ulrich, fourth grade.

Becky Sonnen, chapter vice-president, presented Certificates of Appreciation to Richard and Darlene Kuhn, Kuhn's Trophies; Robesonia Flowers and Gifts, a local florist; Paul Sell, a night custodian; David Hanagan, H&H Porters; and Ferdinand Kuczala, an art teacher.

Karen Fessler, chapter reporter, presented special awards to Kim Noel, Karen Hartman, Sylvia Alexander, and Christy Aulenbach, business students who serve as secretaries for the FFA Chapter and the agriculture department. The chapter officers presented the Honorary FFA Degree to Glenn and Joan Fessler, the parents of chapter president Kay Fessler, Joe Butcavage, a member of the night custodial staff, and Norman Luckenbill, manager of the Agway store at Leesport.

Kirk Sattazahn, chapter chaplain, presented the Blue and Gold Award to David Moerder. Moerder is an industrial arts teacher, and each year helps the chapter with the slide show.

An FFA member in each grade is presented with a scholarship award. The award is given to the member receiving the highest grade point average. The following received this award: ninth grade, Jason Stewart; tenth grade, Karen Fessler; eleventh grade, Becky Sonnen.

Leadership awards were presented to Karen Fessler and Kirk Sattazahn. Nathan Snyder placed first in the Chapter Creed Speaking Contest and received an FFA jacket. Christine Houck and Jason Stewart received desk plaques for placing second and third.

High sales awards were presented. Doug Putt won the High Sales Award for the processed meats sale as well as the Overall High Chapter Sales Award.

The high salesmen for the citrus sale were recognized. Kirk Sattazahn was first, Karen Fessler was second, and Tim Pajski was third.

The following members received trophies in recognition for their performance at the State FFA Contests held at the Pennsylvania State University last June.

Kay Fessler, a junior, received a gold emblem for placing sixth in the Conservation Public Speaking Contest.

Brenda McFarland, a sophomore, received a gold emblem for placing fourth in the FFA Creed Contest.

Kirk Sattazahn, a sophomore, received a gold emblem for placing first in the FFA Creed Contest.

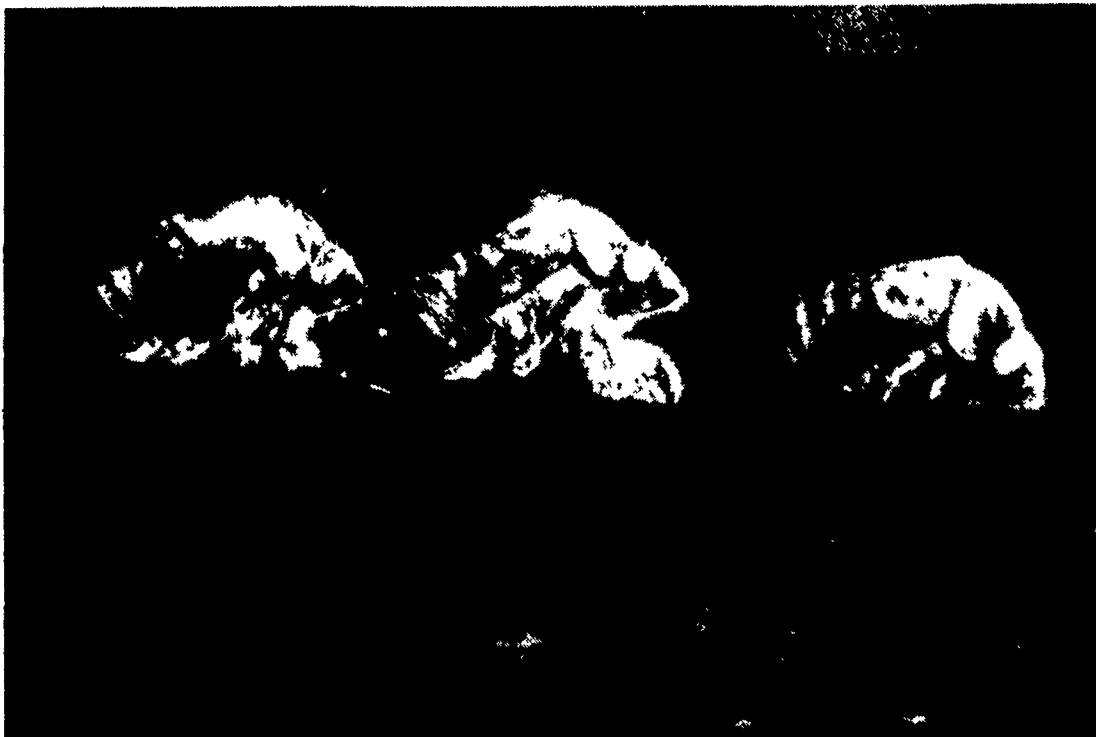

Karen Fessler, a sophomore, received a gold emblem for placing first in the Dairy Foods Contest.

Steven Miller, chapter advisor, presented plaques to honor C. Andrew Hess and Scott Troutman for receiving their American Farmer Degrees. Mary Jo Cancelmo was recognized as a recipient of the Honorary Keystone Farmer Degree.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Deborah Bowers, a former Conrad Weiser FFA member, state officer, and a graduate of Penn State University. The chapter officers presented a slide show entitled, "A Year To Remember." It featured major chapter events of the past year, classroom work, and Supervised Occupational Experience projects. David Moerder helped the officers produce the program with his professional sound mixing equipment.

FFA Foundation Awards are given to members who have outstanding supervised occupational experience projects. Each student had to complete a state proficiency award application. The applications were then judged by the C.W. FFA Alumni members. Mark Wolfskill, president of the Alumni, presented the awards. The following awards were presented: Sheep Production, Karen Fessler; Feed and Grain Production, Kirk Sattazahn, Chris Blatt and Jim Blatt; Dairy Production, Becky Sonnen; Swine Production, Kay Fessler; and Placement in Agricultural Production, Jeff Lutz.

FFA awards were given to Chris Blatt, who was named the Star Chapter Greenhand. Kay Fessler received the Star Chapter Farmer Award and the Star Agribusinessman was Karen Fessler. The outstanding vocational agriculture senior for 1987 was Troy Small. He was presented with the Dekalb award.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Ah, mud. Sticky, gooey, clingy mud. And, wonderful, beautiful, terrific mud.

See, last year there was virtually no mud. Moisture must be present to concoct mud, and last spring, there was precious little water in the soil.

So, my vow for the season is to appreciate mud for its promise of water.

There will be no complaining about the telltale prints across the kitchen floor. Nor will I lament sweeping away the hunks of outside environment that turn up on the inside environment, shaped mysteriously like the deep cleats in the soles of certain males' barn boots.

None of the dairy cows seems to mind the squishy soil either. At least one per day appears to be giving herself a total mud-beauty-bath, with special emphasis of the therapeutic cosmetic treatment to the udder area. That takes an extra measure of pre-milking scrubbing with warm water and towels, until the "milking equipment" is properly cleaned and dried.

The cows most ticklish about being washed always manage to find the gooiest mudholes, and then dance a jig, like a toddler being tickled on the tummy, at cleanup time. Indeed, there are days when it would just be handy to run the herd through a car wash on its way into the barn.

Mud also thrives in our vegetable garden, low-lying and sometimes dotted with tiny springs. So, it's rare to be able to start planting there as early as a March, cabin-fever-mentality urges. Smoothing and raking a seed bed in muck that would hang up a bulldozer poses a slight problem.

Still, late last week, I simply couldn't stand it any longer. True, the vegetable patch was still squishy. But, the flower border had kissed the mud stage goodbye, and the soil was the perfect crumbly texture.

Like an addict, I was helpless against the magnetic lure of a couple of metal cans stashed away on a cool, dark windowsill in the basement. There would be no peace for me while the sun shone brightly, and a breeze teased the fluffy hairs of Goober the kitten rolling in the freshly-raked soil.

So down on my knees I went, paying tribute to the season in a timeless ritual.

With a small trowel, a tiny section of the border soil was loosened and miniature furrows — crooked as usual — traced in the damp richness. And into them went tiny seeds, radishes and spring onions and chard. Across another freshly-raked section leaf lettuce seed was broadcast.

Never mind that the honest-to-goodness spring is not yet even in its infancy. Or that a dusting or two of snow is inevitable. Or even that four cats and 12 chickens kept vigil, laying plans to invade the loosened soil the very instant my back was turned.

As indeed they did. By the time I headed out to feed calves that evening, a freshly dug mound of soil made a tiny pyramid between the hoped-for-rows of radish and onion.

I covered part of the miniscule furrowed plot with a plastic feed bag, weighted it with flat stones, and turned the hose on the rest to settle the soil and discourage such enthusiastic invasions by little feet.

Perhaps the cats and the chickens, the whims of weather or weeds, and the inevitable heifers escaping to stomp through the plot will interfere with this mini-planting of promise.

But for now, the very first garden seeds are in the soil. Planting season is nearly here for real. And, once again, with the optimism that keeps farmers putting seeds into the ground year after year, hope for a bountiful season springs eternal.

And the mud? Just a temporary inconvenience for a more permanent improvement.

Lancaster Society 12

Lancaster Society 12 will meet March 17 at the home of Mrs. Emma Bleacher at 9 a.m. for a pound auction. Members should also bring a craft to work on or to demonstrate.

Lancaster Society 20

Members of Lancaster Society 20 met March 5 at the home of Jane

Ferguson with Valaria Ferguson as co-hostess.

In the morning, members sewed 316 bed pads, then enjoyed a covered dish meal.

Following devotions by Valaria Ferguson, president Mary Shirk conducted the business meeting. The group made plans for a food sale at the Andrews Bridge Horse Show and Fox Hunt March 21.

The Sunshine Committee sent two sympathy cards, two baby congratulations cards and a basket of fruit for the month.

Society president Mary Shirk presented Sara Conroy with a pin honoring her 80th birthday and installed Martha Hart as a new member.

Members and their husbands will have a party March 14 at the home of Vera Herr.

Lancaster Society 24

Members of Lancaster Society 24 met Feb. 24 at the home of Mrs. B. Roy Witmer, New Holland. President Carol Groff conducted the business meeting.

Lancaster Society 28

Members of Lancaster Society 28 met Feb. 26 in the home of Joyce Slaymaker. The January meeting was cancelled because of snow.

Program for the evening was by Moore Bears. For roll call, each member told about her first teddy bear.

Esther Meck led the devotional meditation. Joyce Slaymaker and Ruth Dean served refreshments.

Berks County Executive Board

The Berks County Farm Women Executive Board met recently in the 4-H room of the ag center.

State cookbooks are being published and will be ready for sale by the Spring Rally at Elizabethtown College May 20.

All Lancaster County Farm Women are invited to a luncheon/business meeting by Agri-Business at the Gilbertsville Fire Company March 19.

The group will purchase flannel nightgowns for the Hamburg Center and pictures for the walls at Berks Heim.

The next Executive Board meeting will be held May 4.

Analyze Your Eating Habits

Do not be fooled by exaggerated advertising. Diets that work and help you keep your weight within limits require patience. It took time to put all that weight on and you should expect to spend some time taking it off.

Analyzing your eating habits should be your first step toward permanent weight loss. Ask yourself "what is my weakness?" For some people, it's second helpings. For others it's desserts, TV snacks or a lack of exercise.

Each of us has to identify our own patterns of excess before we can improve our eating habits. If we don't change our habits, when we diet, the unwanted weight just comes right back.

Once you have acknowledged a problem eating pattern, begin by making small changes that can become automatic after a week or two. For instance, try eating only one serving, or stop eating jams or honey on your breakfast toast. Substitute fresh fruits for gooey pastries and calorie-rich desserts. An alteration is usually better than cutting out whole parts of your meal.

Once you have made one change and gotten used to it, introduce another, gradually making permanent changes in the way you eat and the way you prepare your menus. Have toast but have it plain and then try having one slice instead of two.

Chart your progress each week. Record your weight loss and post it where you can see it to remind you of your progress. You might also post a record of your calorie intake each day and list the number of minutes you exercise. A visual record comparing one week with another can help you turn diet habits into eating habits for a permanently trimmer, slimmer you.

Attitude Important In Stress Management

Are the stresses of your everyday life getting to you? Do you find yourself thinking that you need to make some real changes in your life in order to lower the stress level?

Actually, a much more realistic way of dealing with stress is to change your outlook on life. Once you begin to realize that you are contributing to your own tension, the closer you will become to managing your stress.

Learn to think positively. Viewing the world negatively only creates unnecessary tensions which are physically and emotionally tiring. A positive attitude is best for your health and productivity.

Try to recognize and accept your limitations. Many of us set unrealistic goals and then find that we cannot live up to them. We are all different people having unique strong and weak points. If we can know and accept our strengths as well as our limitations we will become better stress managers.

Learn to be an organized person. This will lead to an outlook of "being in control." You can manage stress better when the daily events of your life are under control and not ruled by circumstances.

Do not forget one extremely important asset for healthy living — a sense of humor. Be able to laugh at yourself occasionally. We all make mistakes and sometimes we tend to take ourselves a little too seriously. You will probably be less likely to fall victim to stress if you can adopt this attitude.

Pa. 4-H'ers Travel To National Center For Weekend Of Sharing

BY SALLY BAIR

Lancaster County Correspondent
WASHINGTON, D.C. — For 125 Pennsylvania 4-H'ers and leaders, "Washington Farms" at the National 4-H Center in Washington, D.C., provided insight into the opportunities in the 4-H program and some concrete advice in putting leadership into action. It was a perfect prelude to Pennsylvania 4-H Week which begins Monday, March 16.

Roxanne Price, 4-H agent in York County, explained that one reason the southeastern region organizes the event is to "get leaders and teens away from their local club situation and see the resources that are available. It is a renewal, a sharing."

This year 12 counties from throughout the state sent young people to participate in the Friday to Sunday event, which has been held every two years for the past eight years. Roxanne says, "For many it is the first time they have come to the Center. It is a new experience and it makes them aware of the opportunities the National 4-H Center has to offer. We try to have a happy medium of socialization between the counties and leadership development."

Indeed, the weekend seemed to offer a composite of everything a 4-H event should be — fun, educational, fellowship, recreation.

The most popular session of the weekend proved to be a workshop presented by Dorothy Emerson, a 94-year-old former Maryland state 4-H leader, who inspired the young people to have confidence to stand before a group. Exhorting them to speak unafraid, Emerson said, "Think of what you are saying, not of how you look or who you are. What you say right now is right for you."

Using signs with maxims such as

"Talk Less and Say More," "Speak Up," "Mistakes are Learning Experiences," and "Next Time I'll Do Better," Emerson got the shyest of the 4-H'ers to live through the experience of speaking into a microphone to a group of peers.

In a remarkable cross generational understanding, Emerson challenged, cajoled, encouraged and aided the children. She taught the group such simple but effective public speaking techniques as repeating a question that is asked before answering it. She explained, "It enhances you and makes you talk longer with the answer."

Emerson has been conducting workshops at 4-H citizenship events for dozens of years. When she encouraged the 4-H'ers to ask questions of her, she was asked how many children she has. Her reply, "I have thousands of children," in reference to the thousands of 4-H'ers who have passed through the National 4-H Center and whose lives she has influenced. When asked to be frank about what they thought when they first saw her, the teens expressed amazement that someone so old should be on the program. They also quickly pointed out how much they had learned from her.

Darby Miller, York County, summed up the feelings of many when she said, "Dot made you think about what you're talking about, not what everyone else is thinking." Amy Bowman, Dauphin County, agreed that Emerson's workshop was effective, saying, "She taught us that our opinion is as important as everyone else's is."

Another popular speaker was Captain Jack Fellows, a Vietnam veteran who spent seven years in a North Vietnamese Prisoner of War camp. His patriotic speech enlightened this generation of teenagers about the horrors of war and prison camp while reminding them of the precious freedom they enjoy as Americans. When they were given an American flag at the conclusion of the weekend, it struck a responsive and receptive chord.

One workshop, led by former 4-H'er Jody Day, gave the 4-H'ers an informal lesson on the process of passing a bill in the Congress. Hill, legislative assistant to Senator Richard Lugar, Indiana, explained how the system works, and had each group choose a bill they would like to pass. Increasing the minimum speed limit, lowering the drinking age, increased health benefits for senior citizens and increased price supports for the dairy industry were some that were considered. Hill also explained to the groups how to have their voice heard in expressing opinions to their elected officials.

Leaders in their respective counties, the teens and adults attended workshops which ranged from filling out "blue forms," to using videos, to learning about various judging techniques, to working with other leaders to keep the 4-H program healthy.

Speaking to teens and leaders, Mary Grim from Adams County encouraged them to be willing to serve on committees and to express their opinions when programs or projects are not up to expectations. She told the groups of leaders and teens, "You can make a difference."

Wendy Debnam, York County, said the weekend experience taught her, "Don't be afraid of anything." Her mother, a 4-H leader, said she thought the conference was useful, because of the opportunity for 4-H'ers to share learning experiences. "It is nice to be in the nation's capital because it gives them a sense of patriotism and of importance."

For Donna Romita, a two year horse club leader from Adams County, the experience showed her "what a nice place the National 4-H Center is, and that it is not just for 4-H, but for their families and other activities."

Other highlights for the teens and leaders were a visit to a dinner theatre, a first for most of them, and the opportunity to worship at the National Cathedral in Washington.

The Weekend experience was a unique opportunity for learning about 4-H in the nation's capital at the hub of 4-H activities on a national level. With Pennsylvania 4-H Week beginning Monday, it was an exceptional opportunity for teens and their leaders to garner the enthusiasm which will take them through a new and busy 4-H season.

'After School Kids' Program Takes On 4-H Nutrition Project

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LITITZ — When Bertha Ford walked into Kissel Hill Elementary School with a bag of potato chips peeking from the top of her grocery bag, the kids in the after school program there feared she had lost her mind.

One of the youngsters walked up to me and whispered, "Has Mrs. Ford lost her mind?" recalls Maryann Richards, director of the after school program at Kissel Hill Elementary.

To the 15 kids in the program, Bertha 'Bert' Ford is "Mrs. Nutrition." A nutrition aide with the Penn State Extension Service in Lancaster County, Bert visits the school once a month to teach the children nutrition basics.

As the youngster's comment illustrates, Bert's message is making an impression on the young minds. The potato chips in the shopping bag were one of several items she included in a test designed to measure the success of her nutrition campaign.

Students were told to select four nutritious items — one from each of the food groups — from an array that included cookies, candy, and an assortment of nutritious snacks. The response was overwhelming, Bert reports. All but two of the youngsters selected nutritious foods over junk food. And, the two boys who opted for the sweets confessed they selected the candy only because they thought they would get to eat their selections. "They wanted to make sure they got cookies and candy," Bert said with a good-natured grin.

Two years ago she was invited to participate in the after school program by Lester Rudisill, pastor of the Lutheran Church in Ephrata. Reverend Rudisill started the After School Kids or ASK program at Bergstrasse Elementary as an alternative activity for young children who normally return to an empty house after school. Kids participating in the program range in age from five to about 10 or 11.

The program begins when school is dismissed and children stay until their parents have finished work and come to pick them up. Some stay only a short time, while others remain until 5:30 p.m.

Similar programs have taken root in three other area elementary schools — Lititz Elementary, John Beck Elementary and Kissel Hill Elementary. Next year, several more elementary schools in the Ephrata area will participate.

Without a second thought, Bert immediately accepted the Reverend's invitation to share her nutrition knowledge with the youngsters. It was only after she had met the kids that she thought of forming a 4-H club with the group. Using the 4-H foods project book, Bert set out to familiarize the students with the four food groups.

Her mission, she said, is to provide them with the knowledge they will need to make wise selections when they become responsible for meeting their own nutritional needs. To accomplish that goal, she tries to make learning fun and not too much like school, she said.

During her monthly sessions with each of the four 4-H clubs, she spends a few minutes on a lesson in the project book. It usually takes two meetings to get through a single lesson and an entire year to complete the project.

Following the formal learning time, Bert helps the kids prepare a simple, nutritious snack. Favorites they have tried include ice cream in a can, cheese popcorn, milkshakes, bugs on a log (peanut butter and raisins on celery) and

When speaking to the students, Bert sometimes tries to trick them with an incorrect fact. For example, when discussing the nutrients in a milkshake, she pointed out the quantity of vitamin C included in the beverage. The students quickly corrected her, reminding her that the milkshake is a good source of calcium, but not of vitamin C.

"I know that I'm getting through with something," she says.

Through their children, parents of the After School Kids are becoming more conscious of good nutrition. One mother said her daughter will not permit her to put the salt shaker on the table anymore.

Program director Maryann Richards noted that her four-year-old, who attends ASK with her, questioned the absence of two vegetables at dinner one evening. "I feel real positive about them understanding the four food groups," she noted.

Nutrition knowledge isn't the only byproduct of the 4-H sessions. The youngsters also learn the 4-H pledge and 4-H songs. In addition, they learn the value of cooperation, community involvement, manners, and cleanliness, Bert noted.

She encourages them to join a 4-H club in the summer when the ASK program is in recess. "We just want them all to be able to join in a 4-H group in the summer."

The ASK program is just a small part of Bert's job as a nutrition aide. Through the Expanded Foods and Nutrition Education Program, she works with youth and low-income families to help them improve their diets and to make better use of their resources.

And, although she enjoys all aspects of her job, the time she spends with the children is the most pleasurable. "They just lift your spirits," she says.

Mid-Atlantic Workshop For Disabled Focuses On Practical Applications

BY SHARON SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Farming is one of the most hazardous occupations of all. Dr. William Field of Purdue University has identified farmers as "one of the highest of any segment of the population affected by physical impairments."

Disabilities related to the farming community were addressed in the third Mid-Atlantic Workshop for Disabled Individuals and Their Families in Rural and Agricultural Communities on March 6 and 7 at the Ag Center in Westminster, Md.

The focus of the workshop was on practical applications for those who have difficulty, due to physical impairments, in completing everyday tasks. Vera Stauffer, an Extension agent from Pennsylvania State University specializing in rehabilitation, outlined the steps to problem solving in her presentation of Task Analysis.

"What is your problem, anyway?" asked Stauffer. Whether the task is home management or farm management, Stauffer said individuals must learn to maximize the benefits of their resources. Resources such as "time, physical and psychological energy, money, skills and knowledge, and environmental" must be considered when completing a task, she said.

Taking it a step further, Stauffer said that problem solving can be likened to a philosophy of mechanics to which she subscribes — "they didn't build it all in one piece;" just as a piece of machinery can be taken apart, your problems can be solved by examining the parts more closely.

"Define the problem, look at the alternatives, choose the best alternative, take action and take the responsibility for that action, and evaluate," suggested Stauffer. One method of attack is to break the task down into parts. "Look at the three W's — the Work, the Worker and the Workplace," she added.

Tom Rothrock, 41 years old and blind from birth, made his second appearance at the conference this year, by popular demand. Rothrock offered specific suggestions for ways of "doing things without looking at them." His bag of tricks included handy devices such as a Braille writer, a talking calculator, and a knife with a built in cutting guide for regulated thickness.

"A lot of us are impatient," cautioned Rothrock. He advised the audience to be "slow and systematic and to keep everything in a certain place." Rothrock said dealing with denial of an acquired impairment is one of the most difficult things. Through practice and the aid of friends he has run three marathons, including a 50 mile hike and run in Hagerstown, Md.

Joann Guthrie, associate professor of home economics at West Virginia State University, gave an enthusiastic and informative presentation on Adapting the Farm Home. While assisting West Virginia families to adapt their rural homes to accommodate a handicapped person, Guthrie is often faced with the problem of low financial resources and even homes with no indoor plumbing.

"Housing for the handicapped doesn't look different," said Guthrie. In her slide presentation she showed completed projects such as ramps for accessibility, widened doorways, handrails, removed doors, etc., and all at little or no cost to anyone. Guthrie said she helps families to procure items from second hand stores, and helps them to see low-cost ways of modifying their own homes. "For years, vocational rehabilitation has paid a lot of attention to the interface areas of workplaces. They pay a lot of attention to placing a person in a job; I contend they have not paid nearly enough attention to the same man's driveway," said Guthrie.

Many brochures were available at the workshop. Some were geared to adapting homes and clothing, and many were resources for farmers and rural families. Tractor lifts, starting at about $800, can be designed to lift a farmer in his wheelchair right to the tractor seat. "Breaking New Ground" is probably the most innovative and complete resource guide for farmers. The publication is produced by Purdue University.

Attendance to the workshop was down from about 50 last year to just a handful. "We have the information, but the people who need it just aren't here," said program coordinator Gary Smith of the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. Some of the resources for information and/or equipment to aid persons with disabilities follow.

Maryland Women's Ag Forum Explores International Trade

BY SHARON SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent
COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The Maryland Women's Agricultural Forum met March 5 to examine "International Trade and It's Impact on Maryland Agriculture," at the University of Maryland, College Park campus.

The forum was scheduled as a follow-up to the panel discussion of the same issue at the group's fall meeting in Annapolis. Many attendees of the prior forum went away feeling there had not been enough time to delve into the issue of international trade thoroughly, thus, the March follow-up.

Dr. Earl Brown, international trade specialist, gave an overview of the agricultural trade situation with the presentation of a film. "Agricultural trade is a large, complex, and very competitive business. The stakes are high. The rewards can be excellent. But the risks can be devastating," advised the narrator.

"There are about 200 million metric tons of grain traded in the world every year," said Brown. "The United States accounts for about 35 percent of that." Brown explained that the long run demand for "the big three" — corn, wheat and soybeans — will be in the less developed countries of the world.

Brown attributed the decrease in U.S. agricultural exports from $44 billion in 1981 to $26 billion last year, to factors such as a stronger dollar, overpricing, and a worldwide recession. He said tonnage will go up in 1987, "because we've lowered the prices. It looks like we are going to have a lot of excess production and every country is going to have to reduce production until prices get back to normal."

Dr. Raymond Miller, vice president for agricultural affairs and dean of the College of Agriculture at the University of Maryland, served as moderator for a panel discussion on "The Future For Agricultural Trade." Members of the panel were James Vertrees of the U.S.D.A., Dennis Avery of the U.S. Department of State, and Paul Drazek, assistant director of national affairs for the American Farm Bureau Federation.

"Here we are, locked in this strange, stunted, agricultural global competition," said Avery. "The biggest problem for our farmers is that farm subsidies have raised our production costs to the point where we're not as competitive as we could and should be," he added. In summation, he said, "a lot of things are going to change — they are going to have to change. The production and demand trends do not compute."

"Foreign countries are downright angry with us right now," said Drazek in his overview. Bruno Julien, European economic community representative to the United States, concurred with that opinion of how the United States is viewed by the rest of the world with regard to agricultural trade.

Drazek said, "What we need to do, by bringing the market price down, is send a signal to these countries that perhaps you should reduce production and don't expect the United States to do the whole thing for you as we did in 1983. We're not going to do it by ourselves."

Vertrees echoed this sentiment. "By and large we bear the burden of the world's adjustment to trade balance because we are the largest producer."

Louis LoBianco, deputy administrator, sales and marketing for the Port of Baltimore, was present to promote use of the port. "We're not moving a lot of grain through Baltimore," reported LoBianco. "We've got 12 million ton capacity. We moved less than 2 million tons last year," he said. "Let me assure you that there is a commitment from the thousands of people that work for the port that we are very interested in working with ag, in trying to help them find markets, and trying to help them become competitive in those markets," he said. "If it takes a sacrifice on the part of labor, we think they're going to give it," he added.

Panelists and members of the audience also place the blame for today's agricultural trade crisis on "lack of preparation and innovativeness. What we need are some market development frontiersmen," suggested one observer. Peter Willoughby of the Maryland Department of Agriculture addressed this concern with practical ideas that he brought back from his recent tour through the European Community. He called his presentation a "show and tell" session.

"What does the customer want?" he asked. "Create it," he suggested, with reference to gourmet vegetables, custom grown products that bear logos or are in specific shapes. People laughed when yogurt went on the market in the United States. Now those producers are "laughing all the way to the bank," said Willoughby. Drinkable yogurt is the most recent innovation to hit the European market, and it is reportedly a big hit.

He showed several examples of "value added" products, such as the potato pancakes being marketed by Ireland. Promotion is an important part of marketing. He illustrated the point with brochures promoting beef, dairy products and even Texas Barbecue on the state, county and local levels in Europe.

"Seventy-one percent of Canadian products will find their way into U.S. markets," said Willoughby. He suggested that the U.S. agricultural community needs to "do our homework."

Bruno Julien, European Economic Community Agriculture representative to the United States, was one of several people who discussed international trade at the March 5 Maryland Women's Agricultural Forum.

The most important stage in the life of a corn plant is the first six weeks after planting.

In those first weeks, the corn plant's most vulnerable to lasting harm from soil pests including rootworms, wireworms, seed corn maggots and nematodes.

If that weren't bad enough, a second wave of above-ground pests like armyworms, billbugs, corn borers, stalk borers and flea beetles arrive to damage the corn plant's stalk and leaves.

It's a long, grim list for a young corn plant to face.

In fact the only list that's just as long is the one on the label of a bag of Furadan®.

Because Furadan insecticide-nematicide can easily control the broadest spectrum of pests, while suppressing cutworms, it'll help your corn plants get off to a faster and a healthier start.

What makes that critically important is that the corn plants protected against infestation and the diseases that come with infestation have a much greater chance of yielding more corn.

And more yield means you get more of what you plant for.

So if you're using another insecticide or nothing at all, it's time you use Furadan.

And help your youngsters reach their full potential.

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

Let Eby Custom Build One For You!

When you've got livestock to haul, you don't want to worry about your trailer. Consider one made of aluminum from M.H. Eby. They're built tough - tough enough to stand up to years and years of hauling. And they're nearly maintenance free. They'll never come apart at the seams or need expensive paint jobs. Eby custom builds all-aluminum livestock trailers in nearly any size or shape - from bumper hitch models like the one on the left to 48' possum bellies. Please give us a call or write for more information.

Chances are, you'll replace this heifer before you replace this alfalfa stand.

Like animals, your alfalfa's most productive years are numbered.

Once past its prime, a cow or alfalfa can cost you more than it's worth.

That's why it pays to put your money into things that are bred to perform over the years — like Pioneer® brand alfalfa varieties.

Pioneer varieties provide long stand life. So, while some alfalfa stands begin to thin out and weeds begin to take over, stands of Pioneer varieties remain thick and leafy — giving you more protein for more good years.

For alfalfa stands that weather the years well, talk to your Pioneer sales representative about Pioneer brand alfalfa.

Wilt, good resistance to Fusarium Wilt and produces impressive yields. The first cutting is a bit later than with 531 or 532.

531

Tolerates Anthracnose infestations and fights off Fusarium and Bacterial Wilt. First cutting is early, and the fine stemmed, leafy plants bounce back fast after harvest.

NEW 5432

With excellent resistance to Verticillium Wilt and Phytophthora Root Rot, 5432 delivers extra tonnage for hay or silage. It has fast regrowth, early spring recovery along with very good winterhardiness and excellent seedling vigor.

For a longer, better stand.

We Start More Tractors Than John Deere, Kubota And Ford Put Together.

To keep farms running like well-oiled machines, farmers need well-oiled machinery. And, from time to time, that means new machinery.

Farm Credit can help you with a special equipment loan. For a tractor or combine. A baler, harvester or loader. Even a new pick-up truck.

Right now, our rates are as competitive as ever. And our terms won't remind you of a tractor pull.

Farm Credit has been helping farmers start their farms, and keep them running, for 70 years. With loans for land, houses, seed and fertilizer, as well as new equipment.

There's a good reason why we want farmers to prosper. It's because we're farmers, too. Farm Credit is owned and controlled by the same farmers who use its services.

Which probably explains why we've started more John Deeres, Kubotas and Fords than anyone else in the field.

ANOTHER WAY TO HANDLE LIQUID MANURE WASTE
LHManurigator
What makes it different, Makes it better.

Handles The Heavy Load

- high capacity of up to 30,000 gallons per hour for liquid waste irrigation
- rugged, simple drive train, with economic hydraulic reduction for complete adjustment and high torque power plus double chain friction drive that keeps pulling during the worst conditions
- high density polyethylene pipe specially formulated for high strength and elasticity Up to 1,200 feet long with a 3 year warranty

Easy Come, Easy Go

- ease of operation for fast pull changes and increased overall capacity
- hitch bar allows for tractor seat operation
- high floatation, low centre of gravity and balanced draw bar weight for better manoeuvrability

In For The Long Run

- large, painted steel tube frame with galvanized parts for long life
- modular construction with subassemblies removed easily for repairs
- gun cart completely galvanized with solid construction, heavy wall plumbing and no moving parts for low maintenance

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. Is Ready To Make A Good Deal On A New High Performance Tractor That's Got More Of What You Need...TOP PERFORMANCE And FUEL EFFICIENCY

Call (717) 626-4705 And Trade Up Now!

TAKE A CLOSE LOOK AT "TOTAL PERFORMANCE"

There's Sure To Be A "Total Performance"
Tractor That Belongs On Your Farm.

Whether you farm 200 or 2,000 acres, you probably have at least one tractor in the 95 to 182 horsepower range.

The 96 Series, with the 95 PTO hp 1896 and 115 PTO hp 2096, handle chores from feedlot work all the way through the toughest primary tillage operation.

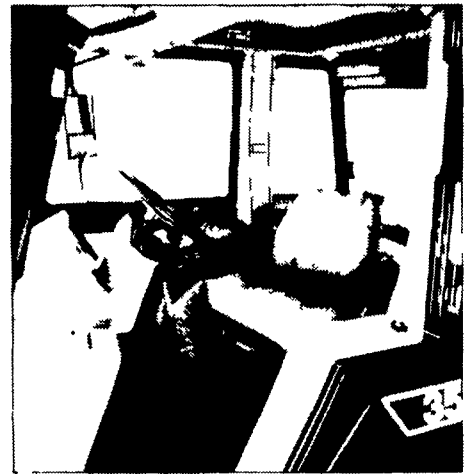

Electro-hydraulically controlled power shift transmissions improve efficiency and make shifting to the optimum gear a pleasure, not a chore. A high capacity, Category II 3-point hitch, Case IH CON TROL hydraulics and dual speed PTO allow maximum use of new and existing equipment.

Moving up in power, the five 94 Series tractors share the total performance features of the 96 Series. The 2294 - 131 PTO hp, 2394 - 162 PTO hp, 3394 - 162 PTO hp, 2594 - 182 PTO hp and 3594 - 182 PTO hp; each one a tractor with its own unique capabilities.

One look at these heavy-weights and you'll see why the Case IH reputation is growing. Massive inboard planetary final drives easily handle the stresses delivered to them under the toughest drawbar loads.

The 2294 has special features like dual speed PTO to handle a wide range of implements while the larger models are available with electro-hydraulically controlled 24-speed power shift transmissions for maximizing drawbar efficiency and fine-tuned planting and chemical application.

Silent Guardian cabs virtually isolate you from sound and weather. Deluxe, fully-adjustable air/oil seat gives you a ride that rivals luxury cars. Advanced electronic instrumentation and convenient controls make operation almost second nature.

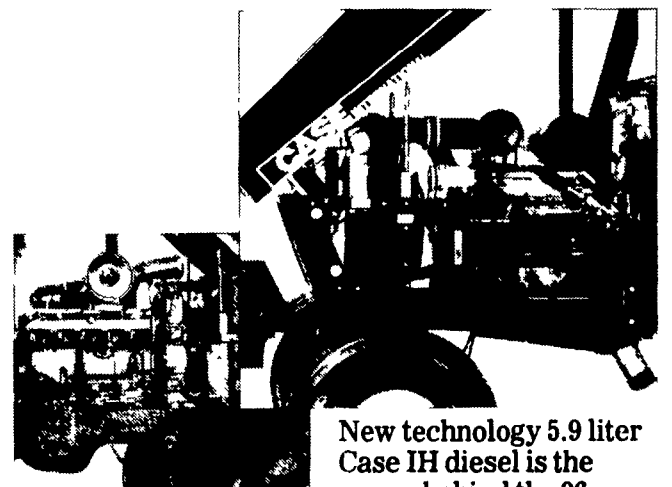

The 5.9 liter six-cylinder Case IH diesel in the 96 Series incorporates the latest proven diesel technology, computer-assisted design and advanced manufacturing techniques.

Both the 1896 and 2096 are turbocharged for improved efficiency and the 2096 gets an additional boost through aftercooling.

The 94 Series tractors are powered by 504 cubic inch turbo-charged diesels.

All engines are turbocharged, high-torque diesels to bring you optimum performance and fuel economy. Turbocharging packs more air into each cylinder where precision designed pistons thoroughly mix fuel and air for complete, controlled combustion. The high-torque characteristics of these engines provide increased lugging ability for greater productivity. The wide rpm operating range of these engines get loads moving quickly and hang on to keep you pulling without need for frequent shifts.

Mechanical Front Drive on the 1896, 2096, 2294, 3394 and 3594 provide Case IH 4-wheel drive efficiency throughout this power class. The high clearance, fully mechanical drive uses limited-slip front differentials to provide improved traction over competitive models.

This big turbocharged 504 cubic inch diesel provides the power for the 94 Series. Spring-assist hinged hood allows easy access for maintenance.

New technology 5.9 liter Case IH diesel is the power behind the 96 Series. Computer-assisted design has helped improve fuel economy and reliability.

The leader for more than 30 years

THE MOST PRACTICAL, LOW-COST IMPLEMENT YOU CAN OWN!

- Prepares Finer Seedbeds
- Incorporates Herbicides (see overleaf)
- Sheds Trash As It Works
- Scatters Livestock Droppings

- Maintains, Renovates Pastures
- Works in Seed, Fertilizer
- Maintains Tracks, Rings, Ball Diamonds, Golf Courses, Lawns and Parks

From early spring to late fall you will find the Fuerst Flexible Tine Harrow the most simple yet versatile tool ever developed. It scatters livestock droppings, helps control parasites, increases pasture usage, aerifies pastures and turf areas, prepares seedbeds, works fertilizer and seed into new seed beds and established sod, incorporates herbicides, maintains pastures, lawns, lanes, tracks, rings, parks, golf courses and ball diamonds. Specially designed tines flex to cover every inch of ground while performing all types of harrowing, dragging, smoothing, floating and scarifying operations. Adjust to all working conditions: maximum penetration, light penetration and as drag mat. The Fuerst F-l-e-x-i-b-l-e Tine Harrow can be used alone or behind plows, disks, spring-tooth harrows, seeders, fertilizer spreaders. Fuerst Harrows are easy to store, virtually indestructible, never need maintenance. No parts to grease, oil or tighten. From day to day and season to season — the Fuerst F-l-e-x-i-b-l-e Tine Harrow is a must for the progressive farmer, rancher, horse owner, contractor, grounds keeper.

After driving your tractor tire up on a Snap-on Circoloc dual wheel, the Snap-on Circoloc dual will align itself.

Snap-on duals

Only Snap-on Circoloc duals offer such a simple, non-alignment method of installation. They can be mounted or removed in minutes by one man, unlike bolt on wheel systems.

No special tools are required for Snap-on Circoloc installation. It's so easy, you can install duals and change back to singles 10 times in a season.

The convenience of snap-on duals makes them perfect for operations which demand versatility. Such as when you want a single wheel in the furrow and dual wheels on the land side during plowing. Or, if you want to switch duals from your tractor to your combine, it can be done in minutes right in your yard.

Anytime you need to use multiple wheels in a less than semi-permanent situation, Unverfith Snap-on Circoloc is the answer.

CS224 step-down clamp to secure Circoloc duals made with deep well nuts.

CS33 Circoloc snap-on handle.

Designed Around A Ring:

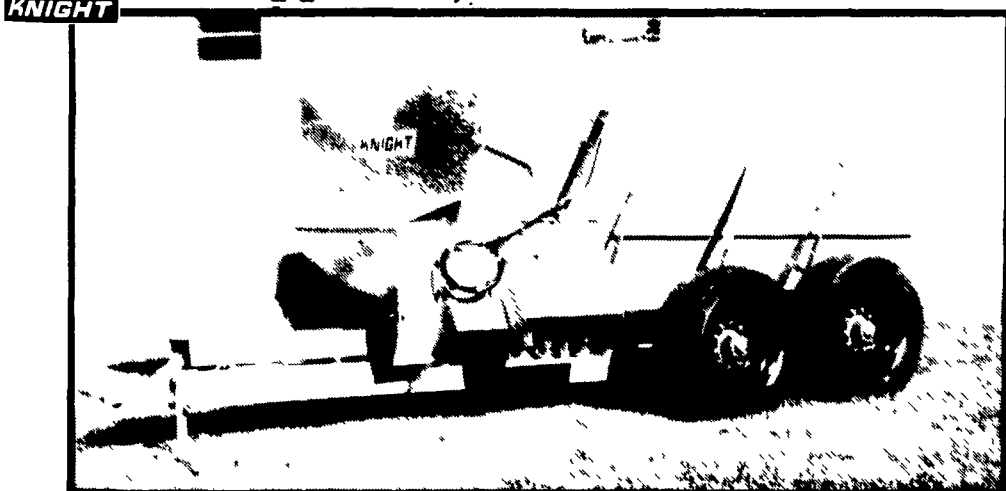

No Lost Clamps, No Bent Rims Or Rails

The round shape of the ring insures against lost clamps. The wedge-shaped leverage foot transfers support load from ring to the rim.

We Stock Complete Sets Of Circoloc Duals And Lots Of Parts, Also Hub Mount Duals & Parts.

SEVERAL UNITS IN STOCK READY FOR WORK!

THE NEW 300 SERIES GEHL
LINE OF QUALITY
SCAVENGER SPREADERS

From Liquid To Stable Manure To Make Hauling A Pleasure

HANDLES ALL KINDS OF MANURE — LIQUID, SEMI-SOLID, PEN PACKED, EVEN FROZEN

The Big Difference: A Square Auger

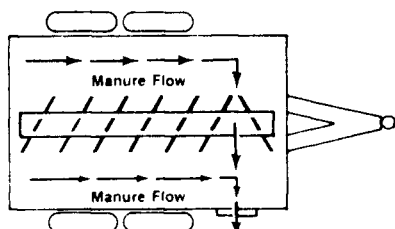

300 Series auger

Conventional auger

The right pitch is important, because round augers with unusually large pitches often move manure too quickly to the front of the spreader where it overflows before the discharge is able to spread it.

Hydraulic power helps the auger solve two of your biggest spreading problems. Move the auger up and down to chop through bridging. And in winter, park the auger in the up position, then power down to slice through frozen material.

Fewer Moving Parts, Fewer Breakdowns

Let's face it...no one likes to handle manure. Or worse, struggle with broken-down manure handling equipment.

A Gehl "300" is a simple spreader. One with no unreliable flails. No leaky endgates. No brittle apron chains. A solid, durable spreader. With sealed, welded Unibody construction. Ruggedly built to give you top performance... year after year.

With a full 10-year warranty against rust-through on the tank.

THE LANDSMAN

by Krause

An Implement That Can Cut Time And Labor Costs
By 50%

Non-Folding Models - 12 ft. to 15 ft.

Folding Flex Wing Models - 18 ft. to 36 ft.

Preparing a seedbed used to take a lot of time, a lot of fuel, and a lot of money.

But now there's a smarter way to get the job done — with a Krause Landsman. It's a unique tillage implement that discs, incorporates chemicals (either deep or shallow), cultivates, and finishes all at once — to prepare your seedbeds with just one pass.

Built with heavy-duty features like these:

"K-Tine™" shanks feature a high point load to keep sweeps level and still provide aggressive mixing action.

Choice of two cultivator shanks, both offering 25" of clearance under frame... Spring-cushioned shanks have rear-mounted shock and come with 10" sweeps. Heavy-duty on uneven ground — a feature most competitors don't offer. Built from heavy 4"x6" steel tubing.

Staggered only 18" so you can make tight turns without harmful side loading. Regreaseable bearings.

Walking tandem wheels flex over obstacles individually and follow contour of the land for uniform working depth.

Massive hitch is an extra-heavy design, proven on Krause disc harrows. It is spring-cushioned to reduce frame stress mounting herbicide equipment. Flexible rubber spray shields are optional for high-speed application.

Wide incorporation area is provided in the 42" space between disc gang and front row of field cultivator shanks. Lots of room for

KRAUSE DOES IT AGAIN

By Equipping The 2880 LANDSAVER™ COULTER-CHISEL With A Combination Of SPRING RESET SUB-SOIL SHANKS And CHISEL SHANKS

Hydraulic coulters assembly features spring-mounted bearing arms to flex over buried rocks.

All the Soil Conservation people are talking about combining subsoiling while you chisel plow. Krause has done just that.

Increase water retention and decrease run-off at the same time.

A KRAUSE TILLAGE MACHINE FROM

NEW PRODUCT! MANY APPLICATIONS!
TO REVITALIZE THE SOIL & INCREASE YIELD

Applications:

- Aeration • Compaction Relief
- Fertilizer & Lime Movement
- Rotovation • Erosion Control
- Conservation Tillage
- Waterlogged Soil Relief
- Seed Bed Preparation
- Renovation of Pastures, Etc.

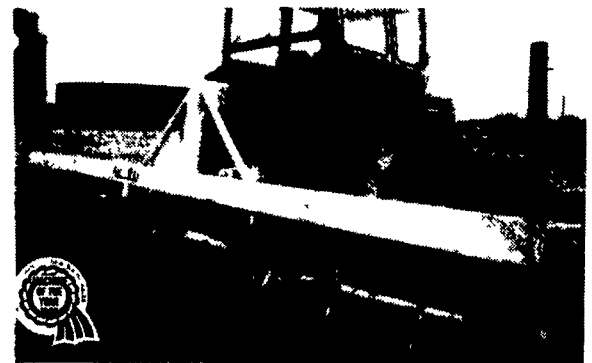

The AER-WAY is a utility implement that relieves compaction, aerates, cultivates and renovates. It can function as a rotary hoe, a disc, a roller and a harrow. It saves fuel, time and fertilizer. It increases water percolation, bacterial life and root growth. It is an implement for pastureland, grasslands, horse paddocks, general field crops, vegetable production, orchards, vineyards and turfgrass.

The AER-WAY will increase your profits through lower costs and higher yields.

BERTHOUD-~~A~~ Agrotec MODEL C-400 "CANNON"

Versatile Sprayer For Many Different
Applications Of Insecticides And Fungicides!

Aerodynamic Design Of The "Cannon"
Head Delivers
MORE AIR!

39" fan produces 280 MPH air speed. Allows you to cover 100-130 feet which means fewer trips thru the fields, fewer drive roads and more crop per acre. This design gives a well-defined, easily controlled mist, yet small cannon covers crop close to tractor.

MORE PENETRATION!

High air velocity produces a finer mist which penetrates short dense growth or tall crops such as sweet corn. Also allows smaller volumes of water with excellent coverage and fewer trips to the water tank.

5 MODELS IN STOCK...

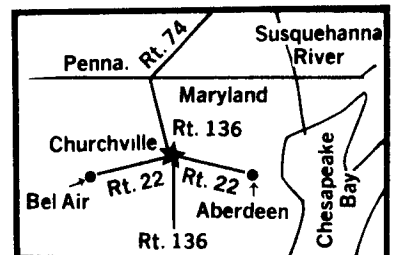

Ready To Meet Your Spring Spraying Needs!!

RIDOMIL STOPS DISEASE IN TOBACCO FIELDS.

The only way to ward off disease is to put Ridomil® out there. Just one application, before transplanting, protects tobacco against black shank and blue mold all season long. And with disease under control, you can grow better quality tobacco, and more of it.

No black shank. Ridomil stops the black shank that can rob you of hundreds of pounds per acre. Studies in burley fields show an average yield increase of 483 pounds an acre when they're treated with Ridomil. In 1986, Ridomil was especially important when black shank losses in tobacco reached an all-time high.

No blue mold. Ridomil used at label rates protects your tobacco from the roots all the way to the top. Its systemic properties keep the entire plant safe from blue mold all season long. Blue mold's airborne spores can travel 100 miles a day, and devastate crops in their path. Blue mold can spread quickly, but Ridomil can stop it from doing damage.

Nothing less than Ridomil. If you want better quality tobacco, Ridomil is the only choice. It not only stops disease that can ruin your tobacco crop, but helps tobacco plants develop a healthier root system and get the most out of their environment.

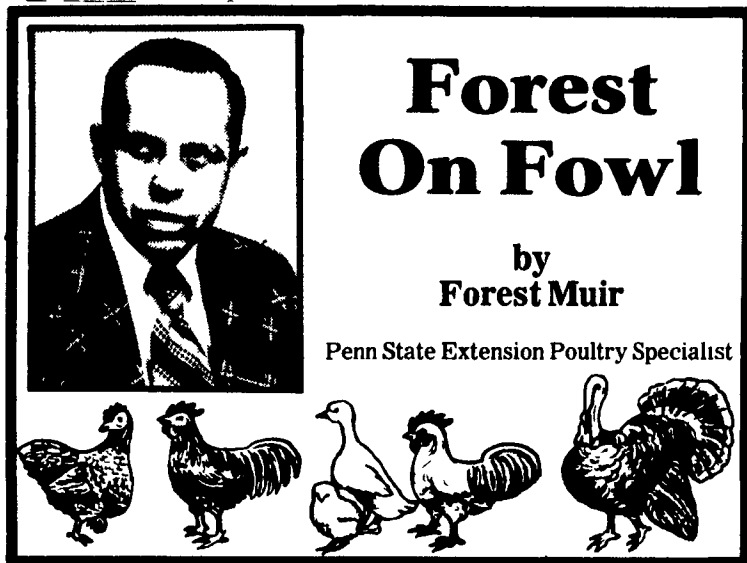

With healthier roots, plants get maximum use of water and nutrients in the soil. They grow more vigorously and show an increased resistance to other diseases. The end result is a higher quality tobacco.

And more of it. Make Ridomil part of your tobacco program this year.

Careers In Poultry

Choosing one's life career is one of the most important decisions that must be made. Young persons making this decision will want a job that will stimulate their interest, use their talents, provide a challenge and offer satisfaction. They will want a monetary return to support the life style they desire and will want to be sure of finding a job when they graduate. The poultry industry offers all this.

A generation ago, a career in poultry would have been limited to raising chickens or processing eggs or poultry for market. Now this dynamic industry is so diverse that it encompasses almost every phase of modern living and its future appears boundless. Agriculture is the largest industry in Pennsylvania and poultry is the second largest agricultural industry in the Commonwealth, generating approximately 500 million dollars in farm income in 1985.

Per-capita poultry consumption in the United States continues to increase each year. Poultry meat consumption exceeded pork consumption in 1985, and projections indicate that poultry meat consumption will probably pass beef consumption in 1987. Poultry industry growth and expansion are expected to continue due to inexpensive product prices, the development of new, easily prepared poultry products, and the consumer's recognition of the nutritional value of poultry products.

The growing poultry industry will continue to generate new jobs and career opportunities. Over the last five years, every graduate of the Poultry Technology and Management program at Penn State has found immediate employment in the poultry industry. This is the best job placement record in the College of Agriculture.

Some of the jobs in the poultry industry do allow for direct care of birds; however, due to the highly intensive and automated nature of modern poultry management practices, most of the growth in poultry industry employment has been in sales and service, technical skills, and business sectors.

The modern poultry industry offers many career opportunities. A rural background is not essential to prepare for these careers. Poultry Technology and Management graduates should be prepared to gain experience in entry-level positions, in anticipation of promotion to management-level careers. Large and small private companies offer opportunities in feed manufacturing, breeding, hatchery management, marketing, food science, and technical services. State and Federal agencies offer career opportunities in product grading and regulatory areas, and in the Cooperative Extension Service. Opportunities in veterinary medicine, research, and college teaching require professional or graduate training beyond the baccalaureate level. The Poultry Technology and Management program includes the option to select courses appropriate for admission to advanced programs.

A new brochure describing the career opportunities in the poultry industry has been prepared by the Penn State Poultry Science Department in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation. Copies of this brochure or information concerning the Poultry Technology and Management program can be obtained by contacting:

Disease Diagnosis Discussed At Poultry Progress Day

BY JACK HUBLEY

LANCASTER — Troubleshotting your poultry flock's health problems isn't difficult—if you know what to look for. That was veterinarian Sherrill Davison's message at Lancaster County's Poultry Progress Day held on March 5 at the Farm and Home Center.

Davison, a veterinarian at New Bolton Center's Poultry Diagnostic Laboratory, said that farmers may be able to identify diseases either through observation in the poultry house or through post-mortem examination. Beyond these steps, laboratory testing may be necessary.

The veterinarian pointed out that a number of clues can help farmers to process of elimination. For example, laryngotracheitis (LT) has not been found in birds less than four weeks old, and aspergillosis often occurs in young birds from one day to two weeks of age.

The species of poultry can also be an important clue. While avian influenza and mycoplasma gallisepticum (MG) can be found in both chickens and turkeys, infectious bronchitis is more common in chickens.

Davison also urged producers to pay attention to where the disease first appeared in the poultry house, its duration and what events within the past two weeks might have contributed to the infection. She pointed out that LT can be expected to spread slowly, while Newcastle disease will move faster. While LT typically hangs on up to a month, MG is an ailment that crops up repeatedly.

Egg production patterns can also point to specific ailments. Bronchitis, for instance, may cause a drop in production for a few weeks, followed by recovery. MG, on the other hand, often results in a continuous suppression of egg production up to 10 percent.

Look to egg quality fluctuations as another disease indicator, said the veterinarian. Soft shells, watery whites and misshapen eggs may point to Newcastle or bronchitis, while AI and MG may result in shell-less eggs.

Increased mortality and a drop in feed or water consumption are also good indications that problems exist, although they may not implicate specific diseases, said Davison.

The veterinarian also recommended that farmers perform post-mortem exams on at least six dead birds and six birds that are obviously sick when problems occur.

Birds suffering from plugs in the trachea may be victims of infectious bronchitis or avian flu, while mucous in the trachea and an inflamed heart or liver could point to MG. Hemorrhaging and plugs in the trachea may indicate LT, said the veterinarian.

Bacteria cultures, ELISA flock profiles, virus isolations, histology and serology tests are some of the tools used to define problems in the laboratory, said Davison. Producers should try to obtain test results within a few days of submitting samples, she said.

Water Quality

While occasional bouts with poultry diseases are a fact of life, producers can exercise control over ailments related to poor water quality, said Robert Graham of Lancaster Laboratories.

Graham pointed out that high nitrate levels, as well as the presence of E. coli, have been associated with lower egg production. He also urged poultrymen to test for solids, hardness, pH, iron and calcium.

Graham said that an acid-iron water may have a pH below 6 and is an aggressive water that can cause pitting in metal plumbing.

Hard water can also cause plumbing problems, but Graham pointed out that softened water is not recommended for poultry because of the increased sodium level.

Although iron is not considered a health hazard, it may lead to leaky waterers, Graham cautioned.

He recommended testing poultry flock water sources every six months, while water used in the home should be tested at least every two years. Always test water when a well site is disturbed or a pump is removed for maintenance, said the speaker.

New wells should be placed uphill and at least 100 feet from septic systems, said Graham. The well should be at least 100 feet deep with casing to the 50-foot level. Groundwater shallower than 50 feet is probably contaminated, he said.

ASA Begins 'SimBeef' Eartag Program

BOZEMAN, Mont. — The American Simmental Association has announced the implementation of a "SimBeef" eartag program, designed to increase the identity and recognition of Simmental and Simbrah cattle as they move from producer to feeder to packer.

"Since Simmental and Simbrah cattle do not have a consistent color pattern, there often is difficulty in identifying the two breeds", said Earl B. Peterson, ASA Executive Vice President. "Because cattle with Simmental and Simbrah breeding consistently perform well in the feedlot and on the rail, the ASA Trustees adopted the SimBeef identification system to help increase the recognition factor".

Adopting a program that has been highly successful in other Simmental producing countries such as New Zealand and Australia. ASA is offering eartags in a variety of colors and styles with the word "SimBeef" imprinted in bold letters across the lower portion of the tag.

"Our membership is enthusiastic about increasing the visibility of their cattle", Peterson said. "A great deal of interest has been expressed since news of the program has been circulated".

Persons interested in obtaining the SimBeef eartags should write the ASA office at One Simmental Way, Bozeman, MT 59715 or call 800-548-0205.

Lebanon 4-H Livestock Club Honors Outstanding Members

LEBANON — Although neither Lebanon County's Outstanding Rookie 4-H'er or its Outstanding Junior Member hale from farms, they are active livestock enthusiasts. Tony Ebling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Ebling of Schaefferstown, received the 4-H Livestock Clubs' top first-year member award at the club's annual recognition banquet held at Kenbrook Bible Camp on Feb. 27.

Twelve-year-old Ebling has completed market hog and carcass hog projects, sold Lebanon Area Fair ham and chicken barbecue tickets, Lebanon Expo Corporation steer raffle tickets, and spent five hours selling refreshments at the fair. According to Judy Atkins, swine club organization leaders, "You can always count on Tony to pitch in when you need help."

Each year the club selects outstanding members for Rookie, Junior and Senior honors, and this year Myerstown's Jay Kleinfelter went home with the Outstanding Junior Member award. The son of Harold and Mary Kleinfelter, Jay is the oldest of three brothers who are actively engaged in swine production on their two-acre farmette. Jay spearheads the trio's swine breeding herd of six sows which are currently raising 56 piglets. Jay is currently inputting his herd records into Penn State's Pork Profit Planner Record-keeping System to see how they stack up with other producers from across Pennsylvania and the United States. His projects include swine breeding, market hogs, and market steers. He is a member of Lebanon's Livestock Judging Team and state winning Pork Bowl Team.

Jay is the third of the Kleinfelter brothers to have been chosen outstanding members. Last year Michael was named Outstanding Rookie, while Donald won the same award the year before. Ken Winebark, Lebanon County agent says, "The Kleinfelter's are really into raising good hogs. Their hard work paid off this year at the Farm Show as Donald and Jay stood first and second in the Junior Market Hog Show at the Farm Show and Donald's pig went on to be lightweight champion. These pigs were out of one of their sows that they purchased from Larry Arnold."

Melanie Bow

Unlike this year's Rookie and Junior members, Melanie Bow, the club's Outstanding Senior Member is into sheep. Her parents, Ben and Mary Bow, Annville, operate a commercial flock and Melanie has played an integral part in its development. She owns a purebred Suffolk flock of her own.

Melanie's 4-H career has kept her actively involved in agriculture, which has led her to Penn State where she is enrolled as a freshman in Animal Science. "Melanie has been a tremendous influence on our club," states Ken Winebark, "her leadership, club involvement, and enthusiasm has gotten the club really rolling."

Melanie has won numerous 4-H awards including Pennsylvania's winner for the National Sheep Proficiency Award and the state nominee for the Who's Who Career Scholarship. She also won the 1987 Sheep Blocking and Grooming Contest at the Farm Show.

According to Winebark, "There were more than 90 firms that supported the 4-H club at the county fair, winter roundup, and junior livestock sale at Farm Show." Winebark expects the club's enrollments to continue to grow from the record 63 members in 1986. He attributes this to "the good leaders and more educational projects the club is taking on such as 1986's Pork and Lamb Carcass Contest and the 1987 Pork Bowl Team." Following is a list of club members honored for their show season accomplishments.

Moldy Corn Can Be Fatal To Horses

CHAMBERSBURG — Many local horse owners are extremely concerned about reports of horses dying in Maryland and other areas due to eating moldy corn.

Dry weather conditions this past summer were very stressful to corn and other summer annuals in parts of Pennsylvania and farther south. This was, in many cases, followed by a rather wet harvest season. Grain such as corn grown under these conditions is prone to the production of Leucoencephalomalacia (ELEM) also referred to as moldy corn disease. Wet corn improperly dried or damaged by birds or insects in the field allows molds to move in that produce toxins called mycotoxins.

ELEM, the result of mycotoxins, is an acute non-infectious and highly fatal neurological disease in horses. ELEM is caused by feeding moldy corn, corn by-products and other grains. Recent outbreaks in Maryland and other states report symptoms of edema in the nose and lips followed by partial paralysis of the tongue, head and eyes. Sleepiness, food refusal, unwillingness to move, blindness, incoordination, and seizures or convulsions may also be seen. Horses that survive ELEM generally have permanent neurologic problems. Five to 10 days usually elapse between the initial signs and death.

Many molds discolor grain kernels, but the mold that causes ELEM cannot be detected by sight or smell. We cannot expect to eliminate all feedstuffs that may contain mold from a horse ration; however, it is recommended to apply sound management practices in selecting and storing feed. The following suggestions from James Gallagher, Extension horse specialist at Penn State University are offered for your consideration:

1. Examine bins, and other storage areas for moisture.
2. Buy only good quality grain from reputable sources.
3. Avoid buying damaged grain.
4. Avoid buying grain high in moisture (stored grain should contain no more than 12-14 percent moisture.)
5. Substitute barley, oats or other grain for corn.

Poultry: No Fledgling Industry

BY HERBERT JORDAN
Penn State University

The Pennsylvania poultry industry is a collection of many industries, large and small. This makes it one of the most versatile industries in America.

This industry includes the annual production of 100 million broiler chickens, 18 million laying hens, 9 million started pullets, one million roasters, 7.8 million turkeys, 1.5 million game birds, 200,000 capons, 100,000 guineas, 800,000 waterfowl, 50,000 show, hobby or fancy poultry, 30,000 chickens for hackle feathers for tying fishing flies, 50,000 pigeons, 2,000 fighting cocks, 100,000 ornamental or pet birds, — and 1 million rabbits — which are considered part of the poultry industry.

We also have 1 million breeders of all species in Pennsylvania. This large, versatile industry handles $729 million annually or $3.3 million every day. The poultry industry is capital intensive.

Each day an estimated 100,000 people get up and go to work in the poultry industry. Quietly, these people do more responsible work, handle more capital, and feed more people than most other industries.

In addition to poultry production, Pennsylvania firms buy one billion eggs, 5 million turkeys, and 26 million broilers from out-of-state and process them here. Many people all over the world are employed or fed by investors and workers in the Pennsylvania poultry industry.

USDA Proposes Renaming 'Good' Beef To 'Select'

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently proposed to rename the "USDA Good" grade of beef to "USDA Select."

"The change is being proposed in response to a petition from Public Voice for Food and Health Policy," said J. Patrick Boyle, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service. "The change has been endorsed by a number of other health-oriented consumer groups and by beef-industry groups."

Boyle said that the proposed name, "select" would present a more positive image of this grade of beef, and help calorie-conscious consumers to select leaner cuts of meat.

The "good" grade of meat has less marbling and fat than the "prime" or "choice" grades. Standards for all of the grades would remain unchanged under the proposal.

Notice of the proposal was published in the Federal Register March 4. Public comments may be submitted no later than May 4 in the office of Michael L. May, Chief, Standardization and Review Branch, Livestock and Seed Division, AMS, USDA, Room 2649-S, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Feeder Lamb Sale In Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — A feeder lamb sale will be held Saturday, March 28, at 10 a.m. at Hickory Hill Farms, the Delaware State College Research Center west of Cheswold on Route 42.

The lambs will be on view from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. Prior to the sale, University of Delaware extension agricultural agent Richard Barczewski will discuss how to handle the new lamb at home.

The sale is an opportunity for Delaware 4-H and FFA members interested in a livestock project to buy a 45- to 60-pound lamb to show at the state fair. According to state 4-H leader Marty Butterfield, a lamb project only requires a small shed for shelter, a secure exercise area and a source of food and water.

The sale is sponsored by the Delaware Sheep and Wool Producers Association and the Delaware Cooperative Extension System.

NY Cattlemen Plan 'Beef Weekend'

ITHACA, N.Y. — Plans have been finalized for a Beef Weekend May 1 and 2 at Ithaca and nearby Dryden in conjunction with the annual New York Bull Test Sale at 7 p.m. May 1 at the Livestock Pavilion on the Cornell University campus.

To encourage producers to upgrade their herd genetics, the "Trade-A-Bull Rebate Program" is again being offered. Participants who sell an older bull at the Empire Market at Dryden May 1 will receive a predetermined price per pound for the bull and a $100 rebate certificate to be used toward the purchase of a certified bull at the Bull Test Sale that night.

Information about the New York Bull Test and Bull Test Sale which are jointly sponsored by the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association, Cornell University Animals Science Department, Cooperative Extension and the Department of Ag & Markets, may be obtained from William Greene, Morrison Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. 14853 or call 607-255-2856.

A New York Commercial Cow/Calf Sale featuring 75 cow/calf pairs has been scheduled at 10 a.m. May 2 at the Empire Livestock Market at Dryden. It is designed to provide beef producers with a source of female seedstock with nursing calves at side to complement herd sires purchased at the Bull Test Sale or to add cow/calf pairs to their herds. Producers are also encouraged to consign to this first New York Cow/Calf Sale and are reminded nominations close March 27. Sale entry forms and information may be obtained from Lee Kraszewski, RD1, Box 120, Corning, N.Y. 14830 or 607-732-8619.

The Beef Weekend will open at 9 a.m. May 1 with a feedlot tour to see about 400 head of feeder cattle purchased at the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association 1986 Tel-auction. The tour begins at the Teaching and Research Center at Harford where Center manager Debbie Duhaime will discuss how the cattle have performed and will also discuss the type of cattle she prefers to feed. The tour will then move to the Glen Mar Farms of Henry Weissmann of Harpursville where there are currently 1,000 head on feed. He, too, will discuss what he looks for when buying feeders. Tour cost including a box lunch is $10 and reservations are due before April 10 to William Greene or Lee Kraszewski.

John Deere Honors Pa. Dealerships

SYRACUSE, NY — Two Pennsylvania firms were recently named to the Manager's Club of the John Deere Company of Syracuse. Cited as two of the top 15 agricultural dealers in a branch territory that includes 15 eastern states were the Tobias Equipment Co., Inc., of Halifax and Landis Brothers, Inc., of Lancaster.

Selection to the Manager's Club is based on superior performance in all phases of the dealership's operation.

Representatives from both companies were recently honored at a banquet in New York City sponsored by Scott Monroe and the John Deere Company.

Also honored as John Deere Managers Club members were Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Hoffman (left) of Tobias Equipment Co., Inc., Halifax.

Shorthorn Congress Scheduled

OMAHA, Nebr. — It is time again for the National Polled Shorthorn Congress. This year's activities for the annual show and sale are scheduled for March 27 and 28, and it will again be held at Ak-Sar-Ben Field, Omaha, Nebraska.

This is strictly a polled sale, with consignments coming from throughout the nation. Cattlemen will have the opportunity to purchase some of the most valuable genetics in the breed, as bulls and females from the top herds in the nation are being offered in the sale.

The headquarters of the National Polled Shorthorn Congress will be the Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, 72nd and I-80, Omaha, Nebraska. Reservations should be made through the American Shorthorn Association, 8288 Hascall St., Omaha, Ne. 68124, 402-393-7200. Reservations should be made no later than March 20, 1987.

Additional information pertaining to the event may be obtained by contacting the American Shorthorn Association, 8288 Hascall St., Omaha, Ne. 68124, 402-393-7200.

Merrick Checkoff Nets $32,000 For Pork Producers

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Merrick's, Inc., the dry fat and baby animal nutrition specialists, presented a check for $32,475 to the National Pork Producers Council at the American Pork Congress to assist their efforts in the promotion of pork.

Merrick's president, William J. Merrick, III, presented the check. This concluded Merrick's one-year

Checkoff Program of five cents per bag on their Soweena brand line. These products include: Soweena Dry Fat 7-60 and 4-80, Soweena Litter Life Milk Replacer, Soweena Milk Replacer, Soweena Day 14 Milk pellets, Ho Milc Energy Crumbles, and Fatlets.

Merrick cited the continued need for producers and industry to work together to promote and market their products. "The support we received from our customers during this period was "unbelievable" added Merrick. "It proves that our industry is willing to contribute toward the success of their products through marketing and promotion."

Merrick's extends a sincere thank you to all their customers who helped them achieve their goal of $30,000.

Tyrone Milling Holds Soybean Meeting

TYRONE — Tyrone Milling hosted 86 farmers for a late January soybean meeting. The meeting was held in the new office-showroom complex at the site of the mill. Bud Boom and David Hershey, owners of Tyrone Milling, believe that with the new showroom they will be able to display a broader selection of products. The increased office space will allow better facilities for agronomic and feed programming, two important services offered to local farmers.

The concept of growing and feeding beans in the Huntingdon-Blair county area is relatively new. Tyrone Milling can now offer an outlet for beans produced by crop farmers and in return supply feed made with soybeans at a competitive price.

The first speaker of the day was Jack Gaudette, sales manager at Stanford Seed Company. Stanford uses a triple testing program to insure a 90 percent germination of their seed. This assures a high quality product, far better than the normal single tested products with 80 percent germination.

Also on the program, from Stanford, was Chris Frame, manager of research and product development. Since bean planting in this area is new, Chris covered management tips needed to provide a good crop. These are similar to those needed for a good corn crop:

- Lime the soil to get a pH of 6.0 to 6.5.
- Use soil testing to derive the proper fertilizer usage.
- Control weeds and insects.
- Consider using no-till.
- Prepare the seed bed so that seed placement is at a 1 to 1½ inch depth.

Show-Ease Receives

District Badger Award

KAUKAUNA, Wisc. — Show-Ease Badger of Lancaster, Pa., has been recognized for special performance in 1986 by Badger Northland Each year Badger Northland recognizes one dealer in each of its sales districts for outstanding performance within his trade area. The criteria for selecting the dealer for this prestigious award include:

- Quality of the dealership's service and installation work.
- Appearance of the dealership facilities including store, vehicles, service area, and employees.
- Participation in Badger programs including service and sales schools, retail sales programs, advanced factory order writing programs, etc.
- Dealer's attitude toward his customers, his employees, and Badger Northland.
- Sales promotion activity such as consistent local advertising, participation in local fairs and shows, and other community activities.

Each dealer in the sales district is judged as to his activities in these areas. The dealership with the best overall performance is then recognized for his performance and receives the coveted "District Special Performance Award."

Red Angus Sale Slated

SCOTTSVILLE, Va. — Coleman Sales Inc., in cooperation with the Mason-Dixon Red Angus Association has scheduled the Mason-Dixon Red Angus Association's Registered Red Angus Annual Production Sale to be held in the Graham Livestock Building on the North Carolina State Fairgrounds in Raleigh, North Carolina on Saturday, March 28, starting at 1.

Red Angus cattle originated from the Black Angus breed and are solid red in color. They are a very adaptable breed that can be found in any type of climate or environment.

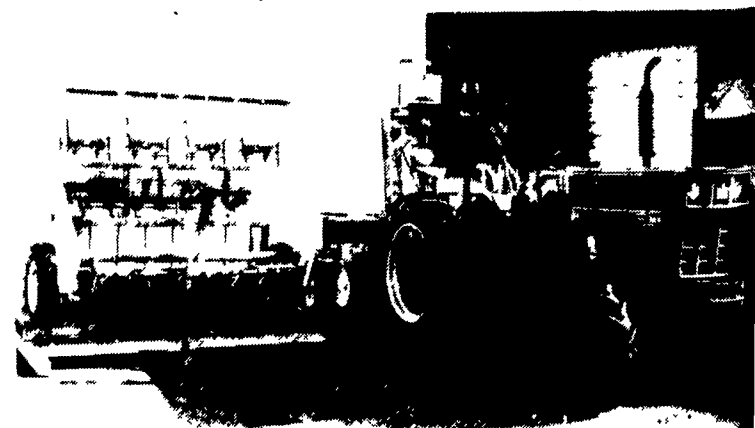

Red Angus cattle are performance cattle known to have light birth weights and ease of calving with rapid weight gain after birth.

The cattle consigned to this sale are from leading Mid-Atlantic Red Angus herds. Approximately 53 lots will sell consisting of three bulls, 14 open heifers, seven bred heifers, 18 bred cows, five cows/calf pairs and six calves. Further information regarding the sale is available from Coleman Sales Inc., Rt. 4, Box 14, Scottsville, VA. 24590.

Hoffman Seeds Hosts Agronomy Days

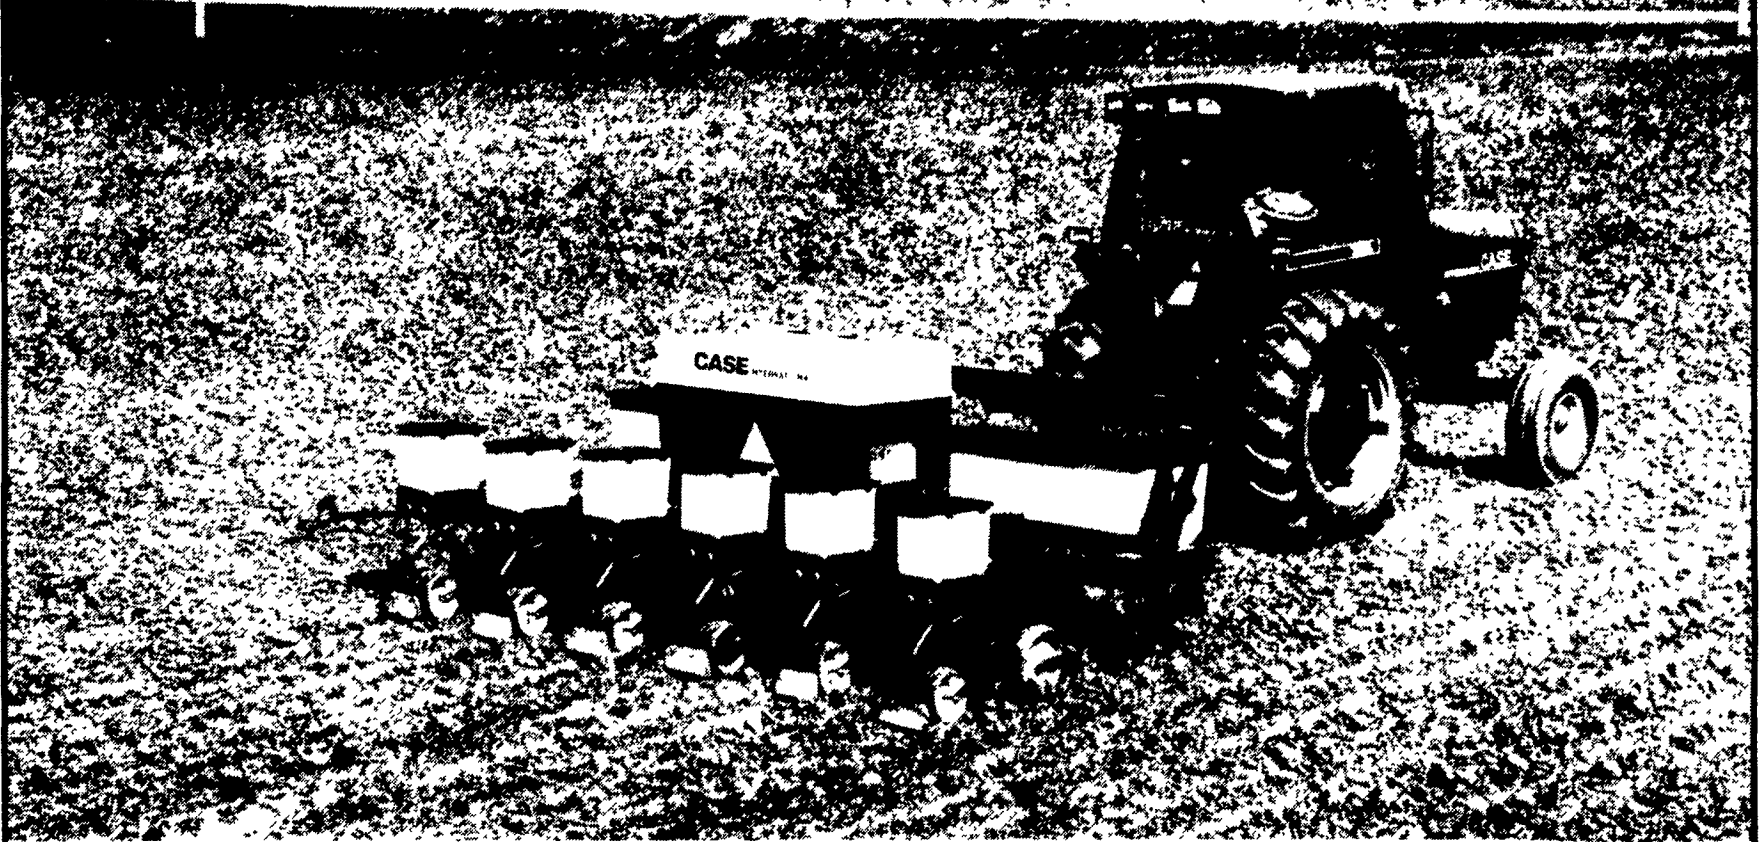

Fred Lepley (left), director of market development, and Steve Smith, marketing specialist, explain seeding options to James Pulice, Susquehanna dairymen, and Glynn Corey, Hoffman Seeds representative, Susquehanna County. Hoffman Seeds hosted their annual agronomy days last week which featured an open house and educational presentations.

New field testing equipment was on display at Hoffman Seeds' Agronomy Days. Shown are planting implements for alfalfa and wheat (left) and soybean plots where agronomic trials are conducted.

Now, There's A Better Way To Cover All Your Ground

NEW CASE IH 900 SERIES EARLY RISER PLANTERS

No matter what type of tillage you practice — conventional, no-till or min-till — the new 900 Series Early Riser planters are your answer. Their improved state of the art row unit design, with exclusive staggered Earth Metal® double-disk openers, patented furrow firming points and staggered inverted closing disks assure good penetration and seed furrow closing in no-till sod as well as lightly or conventionally tilled seedbeds. Which means you can switch from conventional till to no-till without adding weights or special coulters. These latest Case IH 900 Series planters have new features, options and improved frames, metering systems and row units to make them better than ever. Isn't it time for an Early Riser to plant all your ground?

EARLY RISER CYCLO® AIR-PLANTERS

Syntex Offers Time-Release Sulfa Boluses For Cattle

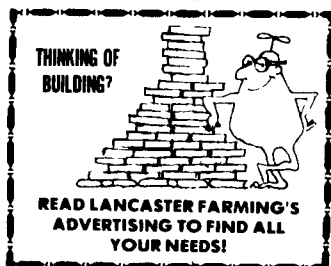

WEST DES MOINES, Iowa — Syntex Animal Health, Inc., has introduced a new line of boluses for cattle and calves that eliminates much of the labor and inconveniences of normal treatments.

TRX 72 Cattle Bolus and TRX 72 Calf Bolus contain sulfamethazine in a time-release formulation that keeps the active ingredient working at therapeutic levels for up to 72 hours. In the case of the calf bolus, this eliminates the need for daily administrations characteristic of most other calf treatments on the market.

Effective against shipping fever complex, bacterial pneumonia and scours, foot rot, acute mastitis and acute metritis, the cattle bolus is designed for beef and non-lactating dairy cattle weighing from 200 to 1,000 pounds. The calf bolus, which is less than half the size of the large bolus, is designed for treating bacterial pneumonia, scours and calf diphtheria in animals weighing from 100 to 300 pounds. Both boluses are intended for oral administration.

For further information on this and other Syntex products, contact Syntex Animal Health, 4800 Westown Parkway, Suite 200, West Des Moines, Iowa 50265, phone: 1-800-247-2210.

Long Backhoe Well Suited To Farm Work

TARBORO, N.C. — Long Mfg. N.C. Inc. announces the latest addition to its line of 3-point hitch backhoes. The Long Model 1198 is designed to work with most tractors equipped with a category II or larger hitch and is available with an optional PTO mounted pump.

With a digging depth of 7 foot 6 inch and a digging force of 5000 pounds, this backhoe is well suited for excavation around the farm or for light construction work. Its compact design makes the 1198 ideal for working in tight situations. The 10 gallon-per-minute optional PTO pump allows for rapid operation while the hydraulically operated stabilizers provide safe and easy relocation.

The Model 1198 3-Point Hitch Backhoe joins a line of quick-attach loaders and hydraulic operated box scrapers.

Long's model 1198 backhoe exerts 5,000 pounds of pressure to depths of more than seven feet.

8344 JUST TOOK ITS PLACE.

Your old favorite used to be on top of the world. Now it's our turn.

8344 stands alone as the best all-round hybrid in its maturity.

For starters, 8344 has stalks and roots that are at least 30% better than the former leader in its maturity. And they're running neck-and-neck for top yield honors.

Compared to everything else, 8344 dominates the yield trials. It consistently tops the charts for agronomics and disease resistance, too.

And 8344 loves a challenge. It even outyields the best competitors under tough drought and stress conditions. That's why we call it "44 Magnum."

Give your Garst Seed salesman a call for all the details. Garst 8344 is coming on strong. And your old favorite just hit a dead end.

Setting Your Own Milk Prices

If you had the opportunity to set your own milk price, would it be higher, lower, or the same as what you are now receiving? If grain prices were near normal and feed prices were higher, how might this affect your answer to the previous question?

When the price you receive for milk changes 50 cents per hundred, how much does this change the price consumers have to pay? It only amounts to about 1 cent per quart, or ¼ cent per glass. That 50 cents has a major impact on your returns, but it has very little impact on the consumer, providing no other costs are tacked on from the time milk leaves the farm until it reaches the consumer.

Who gets the most for the milk you produce, you or the waitress who serves it? When you receive $12 per hundred, your share of the price of a half-pint glass of milk is about 6 cents. When that glass of milk is priced at 40 cents on a restaurant menu, the waitress who serves that milk receives 6 cents a glass in tips.

Who sets your milk price? You, the handler, the government or the consumer? Basically, the Federal Order establishes the prevailing prices paid in an area, and they are influenced in part by supply and demand. Generally, the prices hang around the minimum levels set by the Federal Order. Notice the emphasis on minimum.

Buyers can pay more if they wish, but then they risk losing their competitive advantage in the market place — unless all other buyers agree to pay higher prices, too. In the competitive world of marketing that is unlikely to happen, unless supplies are tight.

Fortunately, the Federal Order price support system puts a floor under milk prices, and helps prevent unreasonable price wars and complete chaos in the market place. It helps create the stability that is so crucial to a business like dairy.

However, many producers are not happy with Federal Order prices. They would like to see them slightly higher, but they also remember the surplus problem that was created by the higher support prices of previous years. But, was that surplus problem created by the higher price or by the fact that the government agreed to purchase all the milk that was available?

If the CCC would have purchased only the amount of dairy products it needed to fill its orders and to have a small reserve for the Nation's good, and refused to purchase anything in excess of that as any other smart customer would do — would there have been a surplus, even at the higher support price?

Would the dairy industry have been thrown into the economic and political turmoil it has experienced in recent years? It's something to think about.

RCMA

Dairymen in the Northeast are attempting to elevate their milk prices above the minimum Federal Order levels. To accomplish this, they are attempting to unite into one big "bargaining" group known as the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency Inc. This is not a new concept; dairymen have been doing it successfully in other parts of the country. To be successful though, RCMA feels they need the cooperation of about 95 percent of the shippers in the Northeast.

In the next few weeks, you may be asked to make a decision about whether or not you will be a part of this united effort. It's an important decision, and it may be a long time before dairymen could get another opportunity to unite for higher prices. Perhaps you have some questions about over-order pricing and RCMA. Perhaps you don't feel prepared to make an informed decision. Get the facts and make sure you make a decision that is right for you — one that you won't regret later.

Extension Meeting

The Lancaster County Extension Service will be conducting a meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, March 23 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. Over-order pricing, RCMA and the ramifications of belonging to RCMA will be discussed. There will also be time for questions and answers.

What is RCMA?

I'll attempt to explain it in my words as simply as I can, and as I understand it. It is a bonafide cooperative of dairymen, organized for the purpose of bargaining for over order prices for Class 1 milk shipped by its members. Members pay no dues. RCMA's expenses are to be covered by a portion of the increase in the Class 1 price they hope to be able to attain for their members.

RCMA members would continue to ship to their present handlers, whether they be independent or a cooperative, providing the handler is willing to pay RCMA's price. Dairymen would continue to receive checks from their present handler for the blend price of milk less any dues, assessments, hauling, etc. normally deducted by the handler.

RCMA would bargain with all handlers for a higher Class 1 price. As long as the milk supply is tight, they are in a good position to bargain for higher prices. However, they dare not ask for too much. Otherwise, handlers will be tempted to pay additional transportation costs to bring in outside milk. If the price gets too high they could also risk losing too much of the consumer market.

If RCMA is successful in negotiating an increase in Class 1 prices, its members would receive an additional check from RCMA for the amount of the increase over the handlers price, less a deduction for RCMA's expenses. Non-members, even though they ship to the same handler, would not share the increase in price.

If handlers refuse to pay RCMA's price, RCMA has the right to withhold members milk from that handler and market it elsewhere. That's why they want 95 percent participation of dairymen; it ties up nearly all local sources of milk, making it unavailable to buyers who are not willing to pay the price.

Many handlers would like to pay their shippers more for their milk, but are not in a position to do so because of economic pressures and competition in the market place. That pressure keeps driving the price downward, toward the minimum Federal Order level. It's a costly and risky step for any handler to be the first to offer shippers a higher price and to pass that cost on to their buyers.

If higher prices are desired, someone has to take the lead. Through RCMA, dairymen are attempting to do that by raising the price of milk to all handlers simultaneously, thus minimizing inequities to dealers.

As a producer, you may wonder if you risk losing your present milk market if you join RCMA.

Will you have the freedom to choose your own market, whether it be an independent handler or a cooperative?

Are you guaranteed a milk market, and at what milk prices?

Am I guaranteed payment for the milk I ship?

How would membership in RCMA affect my membership in other milk marketing cooperatives?

What do milk handlers think about over order pricing and RCMA?

Who will control RCMA — farmers, cooperatives, etc.?

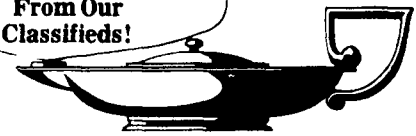

Is there any increased risk of me not getting paid, or of being assessed for RCMA's losses, if there are any?

If I sign up, can I get out later? If I don't sign up now, can I sign up later?

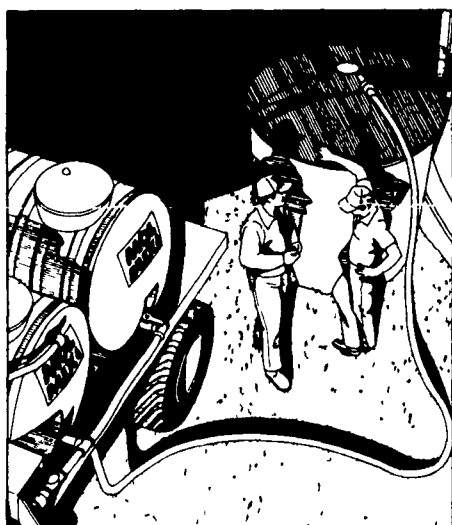

I've attempted to present a few concepts about milk pricing and about RCMA, and raised a few questions which some of you have been asking. The meeting on March 23 will present more detailed information, give different viewpoints, and help answer dairymen's questions.

ANNOUNCING SURPASS

The First All-In-One, Liquid Bypass Protein Available For Dairy Cows

You want maximum milk production from your herd. That means your cows must eat more homegrown feed. They can if their bypass protein is concentrated in liquid form, not dry. And that's Surpass, the result of six years of research and testing at Mol-Mix.

Surpass is economical. Because it's a liquid, Surpass makes the feed more palatable. It's nutritionally stable and has an excellent shelf life. And there's no need to worry about rodent or insect infestation losses.

Surpass is easy. Surpass is easier to handle than a dry supplement. Choose gravity or a simple pump. Your Mol-Mix dealer can set you up in no time.

Ask Your Dealer About
The Special Program
For Surpass

Surpass is nutritious. Its formula has more protein by volume than dry feed or soybean meal and contains the minerals and vitamins your cows need for most rations.

Choose the flexible supplement progressive feeders use: Surpass from Mol-Mix.

Kubota Transmission Shifts Without Clutching

COMPTON, Calif. — America's first tractor with Glide Shift transmission (GST) has just been introduced by the Kubota Tractor Corporation. The new L2550 GST 4 WD tractor allows an operator to shift gears without conventional clutching or footwork, improving tractor efficiency while reducing stress on the engine.

The Kubota L2550 GST is equipped with a three-cylinder, liquid-cooled diesel engine and 23.5 PTO horsepower. This new tractor is ideal for many applications including light construction work, general or weekend farming, mowing and tilling, general turf maintenance and towing applications.

Direct fuel injection on the L2550 reduces heat and friction on engine parts, while providing greater engine power, fuel savings and low exhaust emission. A powerful main hydraulic system provides powerful lifting capabilities for front loading and other applications requiring implements.

For more information about these tractors, or other Kubota products, please contact Kubota Tractor Corporation at 550 West Artesia Boulevard, Compton, California 90220.

The Kubota L2550 GST features a Glide Shift transmission that permits the operator to shift gears without conventional clutching.

Can Older Farm Equipment Survive On Unleaded Fuel?

UNIVERSITY PARK — As the Environmental Protection Agency takes steps to phase out leaded fuel as early as 1988, many farmers who own older equipment are wondering about the effect unleaded fuel will have on their machinery.

"The agricultural community is concerned about the potentially high cost of the lead ban if engines are damaged by running on lead-free fuel," says Penn State agricultural engineer James Garthe.

Regular gasoline contained 2.5 grams of lead per gallon until 1973, when it was reduced to 1.1 grams per gallon. Under current regulations, which went into effect Jan. 1, 1986, no more than 0.1 grams of lead per gallon is permitted.

EPA initially enacted regulations to reduce the level of lead in fuel because lead is a pollutant transmitted from exhaust pipes through air, soil and water and into humans.

Eliminating lead from fuels, according to EPA, will reduce maintenance costs for new engines and improve the population's health.

Congress has required the Environmental Protection Agency, in cooperation with USDA, to study how the lead ban will affect agricultural machinery. Findings from tests of a wide range of types and ages of engines common on agricultural equipment should be available in the near future.

Lead, in the form of tetraethyl lead, was initially put into use as an additive to gasoline to boost octane ratings, thus reducing engine knock, and as a valve lubricant. "In an engine running at 3,000 rpms, a valve opens and closes 25 times per second," Garthe explains. "Tetraethyl lead, when burned with the gasoline, forms deposits on the valve seats and prevents the valves from grinding their way into the valve seats."

Since 1974, all automotive and agricultural engines have been designed to use lead-free gasoline. Design changes include hardened valves and valve seats that don't need the lubrication that lead provides. But thousands of tractors and combines manufactured before 1974 are still being used on farms.

"Farmers whose equipment has such engines have a number of options," says Garthe. "One is to have valve seat inserts installed to protect valve seats from wear. Newer engines have these inserts, which are made of steel, case-hardened iron or Stellite, a steel alloy. Installing valve seat inserts is fairly routine—many automotive and machine shops are now doing it. It costs between $100 and $300, but that's really nothing compared to the cost of a new engine or a failure at cropping time," Garthe recommends insisting on Stellite valve seat inserts, as opposed to steel or case-hardened iron, because Stellite is the hardest and most wear-resistant material of the three.

Because engine modifications are available that eliminate the need for lead's lubricating qualities, lead's main function is now to raise octane levels. While various octane boosters are added at refineries, many of them are needed in much larger amounts to produce the same anti-knock effect that tetraethyl lead produces. Ethyl alcohol, a proven octane booster, takes 158 times the amount of tetraethyl lead to prevent knock, and it doesn't have the lubricating qualities of lead.

Some additives are available now in automotive stores and tractor dealerships, but tests have revealed that they don't work as well as their labels claim. "I'd say to steer clear of these additives because tests have not shown them to be a viable option," Garthe says.

If farmers who have older equipment must run it on unleaded fuel, they can protect the engines by observing certain operating conditions. Engines run at lower speeds and lighter loads will not have to work as hard. "Farmers should keep their engines tuned and timed properly," Garthe recommends.

Cut Firewood Now For Next Winter

NEWARK, Del. — If you want to be sure of a roaring blaze in your fireplace or woodstove next winter, now's the time to cut firewood, according to University of Delaware extension agricultural engineer Dr. Jim Scarborough. "Firewood needs to be seasoned properly before burning, or a lot of the hard work, and money put into it is wasted," he says.

Wood produces more heat and less creosote if it has been seasoned (air-dried) for at least six months before burning. Fresh-cut wood may weigh two to three tons per cord, but green wood has a lower heat value than cured wood because some of the heat of burning must be used to drive off excess moisture. Seasoning allows the sun's energy to draw off the water in firewood before burning.

"While it can take as much as a year for split and stacked wood to reach a fully stable, air-dry condition, the time left before next winter is enough for firewood that's cut now to attain over 90 percent of its potential heat value," Scarborough says.

To speed the seasoning process, he suggests stacking split wood off the ground in an open area. A transparent cover, which also helps keep off rain, and unrestricted air flow around the wood will act as solar driers. "At minimum, a tarp should be used as a cover," Scarborough says. Just remember to leave the sides of the stack uncovered so air can circulate through it. Don't store firewood in your garage or basement in order to dry it. You may be inviting termites and other insects into your home."

When buying wood, think heavy, the engineer advises. While firewood is generally sold by the cord, a stack 4 by 4 by 8 feet, the value of air-dried wood depends mostly on its weight, not its volume. Hickories and oaks are the heaviest woods, weighing nearly two tons per cord air-dry; ash weighs more than one and a half tons; pine and most soft hardwoods weigh less than one and a half tons; while yellow poplar weighs barely one ton per cord.

Other factors to be considered when buying firewood include the wood's heat value versus its cost, aroma, tendency to smoke, ease of lighting, tendency to spark, burning time or intensity, and ease of splitting.

"If you cut your own wood," Scarborough says, "make chainsaw safety your top priority. A chainsaw is the most dangerous tool most people ever handle. Few chainsaw injuries are minor."

When cutting wood from your own lot, also consider the timber and esthetic value of the trees. Cut low-value ones first—those which are small, crooked or partly rotted. Cutting them can improve your woodlot by allowing the remaining trees to grow faster.

The Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service (NRAES) has published a 90-page booklet, "NRAES-23, Burning Wood and Coal," to aid people who want to use firewood as a fuel. This booklet describes the characteristics of commonly burned woods, tells how to season and store wood, and also provides much useful information on selecting and using stoves and fireplaces. Copies of this publication are available for $4.95 by writing: Extension Agricultural Engineer—Plan Service, Room 058 Townsend Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19717-1303.

Make checks payable to the University of Delaware and be sure to specify NRAES-23 when ordering.

BOU-MATIC Offers New Plate Cooler

MADISON, Wisc. — You can preserve milk quality and prevent possible income loss with the new BOU-MATIC Dari-Kool Plate Cooler from Dairy Equipment Co., Madison, Wis.

This new plate cooler offers more efficient cooling at a very economical price. Special herringbone design causes the warm milk and cool water to "roll" as they pass through alternate stainless steel plates, thereby transferring maximum heat out of the milk. The resulting lower tank blend temperature keeps bacteria count down, and prevents excessive agitation — important for preserving milk quality.

A Dari-Kool Plate Cooler also cuts compressor run time (how much depends on flow rates and water temperature). This saves wear on the compressor and can extend its life. The Dari-Kool plate cooler is very compact, and cleans-in-place during the wash cycle. It can be easily expanded for increased milk flow.

For more information, contact BOU-MATIC Milking Systems • Dairy Equipment Company • P.O. Box 8050 • Madison, WI 53708.

Cornell Spearheads Drive Against Three Cattle Diseases

ITHACA, N.Y. — New York State is waging an all-out war against three major cattle diseases that create a heavy financial toll of the state's dairy and beef animals. The targets are John's disease, bovine leukosis and bluetongue.

These diseases cost the state's cattle industry more than $200 million annually in lost productivity and export markets, according to Donald H. Lein, a Cornell University scientist who is leading the drive. Eradication of these diseases will enable New York to compete more effectively with other states in cattle exports, he said.

Spearheading the statewide effort are the Diagnostic Laboratory in the New York State College of Veterinary Medicine at Cornell and the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

"The third crucial party in this unprecedented undertaking is the farmer," emphasized Lein, an associate professor of pathology and theriogenology, who serves as acting director of the Diagnostic Laboratory. He was instrumental in establishing and launching the programs two years ago.

The state agency, which finances the three programs, works closely with the Diagnostic Laboratory at Cornell in carrying out the programs.

"After initial tests to establish the disease status in herds, farmers have the option of continuing the program to have their herds certified free of the diseases," Lein said.

Bluetongue is a viral disease of domestic and wild ruminants. Although bluetongue is primarily a disease of sheep, cattle can be a major reservoir of the virus in the United States. The disease has few overt signs in cattle, but occasionally it causes abortions and congenital defects.

Bovine leukosis, which also is a viral disease, is found in most cattle populations of the world.

The incidence of clinical disease as manifested by the development of leukemia and tumors (lymphosarcoma) is relatively rare in most cattle populations, according to Lein. An occasional herd will experience clinical disease and livestock losses.

John's disease, also called paratuberculosis, is a bacterial infection causing a profuse, chronic diarrhea fatal to the animal.

"We have no cures for these diseases, and the only way to control them is to weed out infected animals from herds," Lein said.

Any herd in the state is eligible for the programs. Farmers can request a single herd test for each of the programs without further obligation before deciding whether to enroll in any or all of the programs to have their herds tested and eventually certified free of the diseases.

Initiated in 1985, the programs for the elimination of the three diseases thus far have involved scores of herds consisting of thousands of animals. Many more herds are expected to take part in the programs in the future.

Eradication of the three diseases is a must if New York's dairy industry is to remain strong and competitive in domestic and international markets, Lein said. The state's dairy business, which ranks among the top three in the nation, is the backbone of New York's $3 billion agricultural industry.

New York now is the only state in the nation with programs to eradicate both bluetongue and leukosis. As for John's disease, several other states, including Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin and Minnesota have eradication programs.

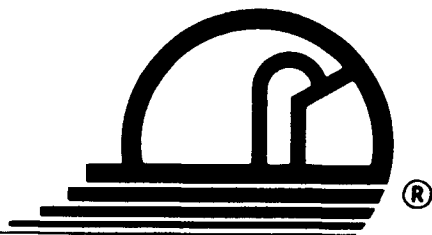

Dealers Attend Berg/Farmway Seminar

LONDON, Ont. — Donald O. Rovenolt and Donald M. Rovenolt of Rovenolt Supply Dist., Watertown, Pa., recently attended a Berg/Farmway Product Informational Dealer Seminar hosted by Berg Equipment Company. The seminar was held at one of the firm's branch offices in London, Ontario. Rovenolt has been a Berg dealer for 14 years.

A Wisconsin-based company, Berg Equipment manufactures dairy barn equipment, including manure handling, feeding, fencing and ventilation systems, as well as stanchions and stalls.

Dairy Management System Quality Features of FARMTRONIX Feeders

- Stainless Steel Construction - Bins and structural parts are made of Type 304 Stainless Steel — the same as used in bulk milk tanks. Rustproof, corrosion resistant.
- Cow Identifier - The same proven IDENT00007 identifier unit is used on all models, is compatible with standard Farmtronix neck tags. Utilizes radio signal, is unaffected by dirt, moisture.
- Drive System - Hardened steel gears, sealed needle bearings, heavy duty roller chain used throughout. One fractional horsepower gear motor drives the augers for each feed station.
- Processor - All units are operated and controlled by any Farmtronix Processor, a proven computer system.
- Non-Bridging Hoppers - All hoppers are engineered with flat vertical sides to prevent bridging of feed. High Moisture Corn Feeders consistently handle 35% moisture ground cob/corn.
- Weatherproof - All units are designed to resist moisture. Flat hopper covers and grilles are available for larger models.
- Ground Fault Protection - Electrical components are protected with a ground fault system which trips with a few milliamps of current leakage.
- Printed Circuit Boards - All operation is controlled through printed circuit boards of latest technology, for reliable operation under all operating conditions.

Cooper Celebrates 25 Years With Extension

UNIVERSITY PARK — “The decision to leave farming wasn’t an easy one. There’s nothing else like it,” says Jesse Cooper, who was a fifth generation farmer. “I wanted to keep working in agriculture, and Extension offered me that particular opportunity to work with rural people.” Jesse is now celebrating 25 years as an Extension farm management specialist. A 1942 graduate of Penn State with a B.S. in agronomy, he returned for his master’s degree in ag economics after his family farm partnership was terminated in the mid 1950s.

Jesse has to deal mostly with solving financial problems of managing a farm. He says, “It’s a matter of financial distress, which means farmers with very high debt loads and low income can’t meet their financial obligations. As an extension farm manager, I try to help people resolve their financial management problems. That includes adjusting the debt load, taking a look at how much money they’re spending on family living, and looking at the cost-effectiveness of their farming program.” He says, “My favorite part of the job is sitting around a farmer’s kitchen table talking about farming with the family. It’s a two-headed type of thing, though. I get the most pleasure from it, but it can also be the most frustrating because of the financial situation of some of the farmers.”

This is where Jesse’s experience as a farmer comes in. “Sometimes I need to recommend closing down the farm, and having been a farmer I understand how tough that is. It’s important to be able to ‘walk in the other person’s shoes’”. Jesse is quick to point out, though, that not all farmers are in distress. He says, “There are farmers who are quite secure financially.”

Another of Jesse’s major obligations involves state and federal income tax preparation. He supplies the farmers with information they need to put together their tax returns. He explains, “Over time we’ve broadened our coverage, so we work with farmers and accountants. As farmers got involved in a wider range of business functions, current income tax educational activities have also expanded to meet new needs for assistance with tax management decisions and guidance on proper tax preparation.” Jesse’s other farm management related activities include planning partnerships for farming operations, being involved in estate farm planning, and generally keeping interested in people coming into and going out of agriculture.

Jesse lives in Centre County with his wife, Mary Elizabeth, whom he calls “the best mother and housewife around.” They have three children, all Penn State graduates; sons Jay and Ross are both attorneys and daughter Kathryn is self-employed.

New Idea Announces 2 High Capacity Balers

COLDWATER, Ohio — New Idea introduces two new high capacity rectangular balers, Models 571, twine tie, and 571W, wire tie, to their line of hay and forage equipment. The new machines are designed to specifically meet the needs of large-scale farmers and custom haying operations.

Models 571 and 571W, twine and wire tie, respectively, feature a wide pickup with an effective width of 71 inches. The 132 tines on six bars permit a clean sweep of large or scattered windrows. The packer finger cross feed moves the crop into the large 287-square-inch feed opening for high capacity, efficient baling.

The plunger rides on seven rollers for increased plunger stability and longer life while the counterweighted plunger crank arm maintains smooth operation. A plunger speed of 87 strokes per minute accelerates high capacity baling. Spring-tensioned top and bottom bale chamber control and easy adjust panels on each side of the bale chamber build dense, uniform bales.

The Model 571, twine tie, is equipped with a dependable Deering-type knoter for reliable operation and secure knots with sisal or plastic twine. Both models are equipped with 80 degree constant velocity PTO and pickup gauge wheel as standard equipment.

The Model 571 is one of two New Idea rectangular balers being built for larger farms and custom operators.

New Dairy Products Should Boost Dairy Product Sales

SOUTHAMPTON — The future of the dairy industry may well lie in research and development of new products, believes Edward A. Peterson, chief executive officer of United Dairy Industry Association. UDIA is the coordinating arm of the major dairy-related organizations in the country.

Peterson made his remarks at the 66th annual meeting of Dairy Council Inc., Southampton, a nutrition education organization that is affiliated with National Dairy Council, one of the companies operating under the aegis of UDIA.

Peterson said that Dairy Research Inc., the product and process research arm of the dairy industry, with laboratories in Illinois, has been developing a high-calcium milk product that should be ready for mass manufacture later in this year.

This product is designed for those people who do not get the recommended amount of calcium.

Preliminary testing of this dairy-derived national product is going on now.

"This product," Peterson says, "is free of the chalky aftertaste from added chemicals that is often found in other high-calcium milk currently on the market." By drinking only 1.5 glasses of this milk, a consumer can satisfy the USDA requirement of 1,000 milligram of calcium daily.

This high-calcium product has the same nutrient value as the source of the milk used in the process. If skim milk is used, the nutrient value would be equal to that of skim.

The calorie count would also be equal to the number of calories in the source of milk used. Flavored high-calcium milks may contain a slightly higher number of calories, depending on the amount of sweetener used.

Carbonated milk is another product at the testing stage. Carbonated milk is skim milk to which carbonation (carbon dioxide) has been added. Flavored sweeteners can also be added.

Carbonated milk has the nutritional benefits of skim milk — an eight-ounce glass has 302 milligrams of calcium along with the other vitamins and minerals found in the milk.

"We're about two years from putting carbonated milk on the market," Peterson says. "We've got the carbonation process down pretty well, and we're applying for a patent."

Spreadable butter is another product that could be in the marketplace during the first half of 1987. It is certain to appeal to consumers who want an all-dairy butter spread with reduced calorie, fat, and cholesterol. It can be stored, soft, in tubs or form, in quarters, and spread right from the refrigerator. Since it contains less fat, it has 35 to 40 percent fewer calories than butter or margarine. One teaspoon has 23 calories as opposed to the 36 calories found in butter and margarine.

Researchers are experimenting with flavored butter, as well, such as herb, chives and garlic.

These new products are sure to appeal to consumers who want natural products in an economical and easy form, says Dairy Council. They are also products that will appeal to consumers who enjoy entertaining or who want something "different" for the family dinner table.

THEY HOLD DOWN MORE THAN ONE JOB.

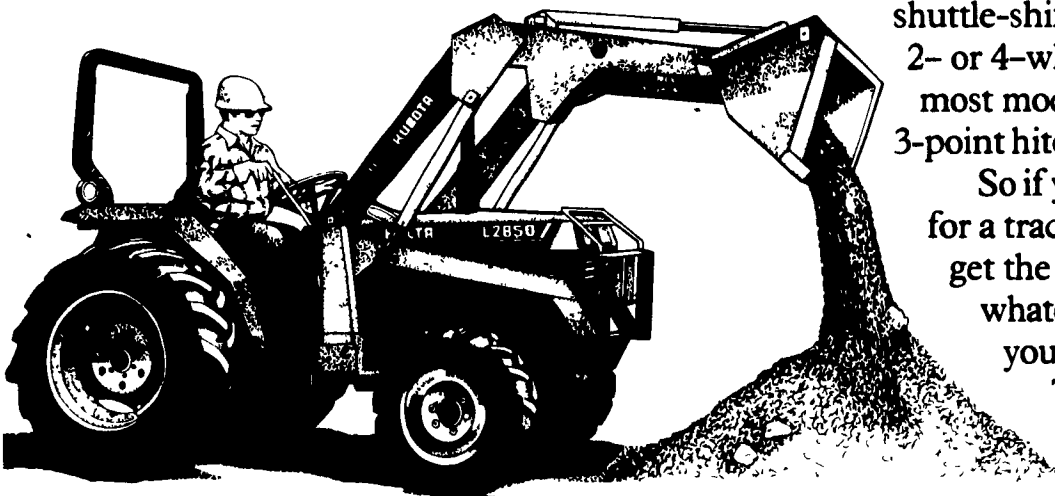

Kubota's mid-sized tractors are very versatile. You'll find them at work on farms, in parks, nurseries, estate homes and even on construction sites.

The reason is simple. Our L-Series tractors come with features you'd expect to find only on bigger, heavier machines. For example, 3-, 4-, or 5-cylinder diesel engines with PTO horsepower from 21 to 40.

Other features you can select include 8x7 or 8x8 mechanical or hydraulic shuttle-shift. A choice of 2- or 4-wheel drive on most models. A hefty 3-point hitch. And more.

So if you're looking for a tractor that can get the job done, whatever it is, you've found it.

Farm Lending Takes

New Direction

RACINE, Wisc. — For years, cartoonists like Ace Reid and Jerry Palen have poked fun at bankers with such lines as "I haven't been able to get in to see my banker. He's changed the locks." In the meantime, ag lenders have been portrayed as the villain by both the media and Hollywood.

According to some financial experts, agricultural lending is simply a mirror of the challenges facing today's farmers. And as farming changes, so will ag finance.

Three-tier banking

"We're already seeing the shift in agriculture to large megafarms and part-time operations," says David Kohl, associate professor of ag economics and finance at Virginia Polytechnical Institute. "So commercial banks, as well as the Farm Credit System, are trying to target their future customer and shift their services to meet his needs."

Consequently, Kohl predicts future commercial banking will fall into three categories — traditional banks, money center banks and large metro banks.

"The money bank is the one we typically think of with the large ag portfolio and a high ag loan to asset ratio," he explains. These banks, which serve most of the farms, today, are declining in numbers.

In their place, farmers are encountering money center banks, with headquarters in such agribusiness trade centers as Des Moines and Sioux Falls, Iowa, and Lancaster, Pa. Kohl claims these money centers eventually will have ag loan to asset ratios of 10 percent or less with funds being distributed through a network of their branch area banks.

The large commercial banks, according to Kohl, will be located in metropolitan areas like New York, Chicago or San Francisco.

These banks will "target themselves to the large commercial producer and offer credit that is very competitively priced."

The cooperative lender's role

While private lending institutions are redefining their commitment to agriculture, the Farm Credit System is quickly repositioning itself to fill ag's needs.

H. Brent Beesley, president and CEO of the Farm Credit Corporation of America, notes that "the Farm Credit System is the only lending institution in the nation which is totally dedicated to agriculture and rural America. Thus, the system is 100 percent exposed to the risk of the ag economy."

But the system will need to make changes to increase profitability and charge comparable rates to compete with other institutions, he contends.

To be both competitive and profitable, he insists the new Farm Credit System needs to excel at extending good credit and quality service, managing interest rate risk and operating efficiently.

Beesley explains that the system must become immune to changes in interest rate levels through a matching of assets and liabilities.

"Our system shouldn't assume interest rate risks can simply be passed on to borrowers in the form of adjustable rate loans," he says.

Instead, the remodeled system will offer a wide range of maturities on fixed and variable rate loans.

Finally, the FCCA plans to reduce its expenses in order to become a "low cost operator."

"Perhaps large and expensive branch offices can be replaced with more personal services delivered to the borrower around the kitchen table," says Beesley. "At the very least, it will mean the consolidation of Federal Land Banks and PCA offices in some locations."

More bookkeeping ahead

Regardless of where a farmer applies for a loan, he should be prepared to document his ability to repay it, says Dr. Tom Frey, professor of agricultural finance at the University of Illinois.

No longer will loans be based on assets or tax statements, he claims.

"Instead, farmers will have to provide financial statements that include a balance sheet, an income statement and a cash flow projection that compares anticipated revenue with expenditures."

Educational assistance

To help farmers understand these demands, the University of Illinois introduced a course last year called "Your financial condition." The program was then offered to farmers on a county level.

"The results were extremely exciting," Frey says. "In less than a year we had over 2,000 people participate. So this year we've added three more modules."

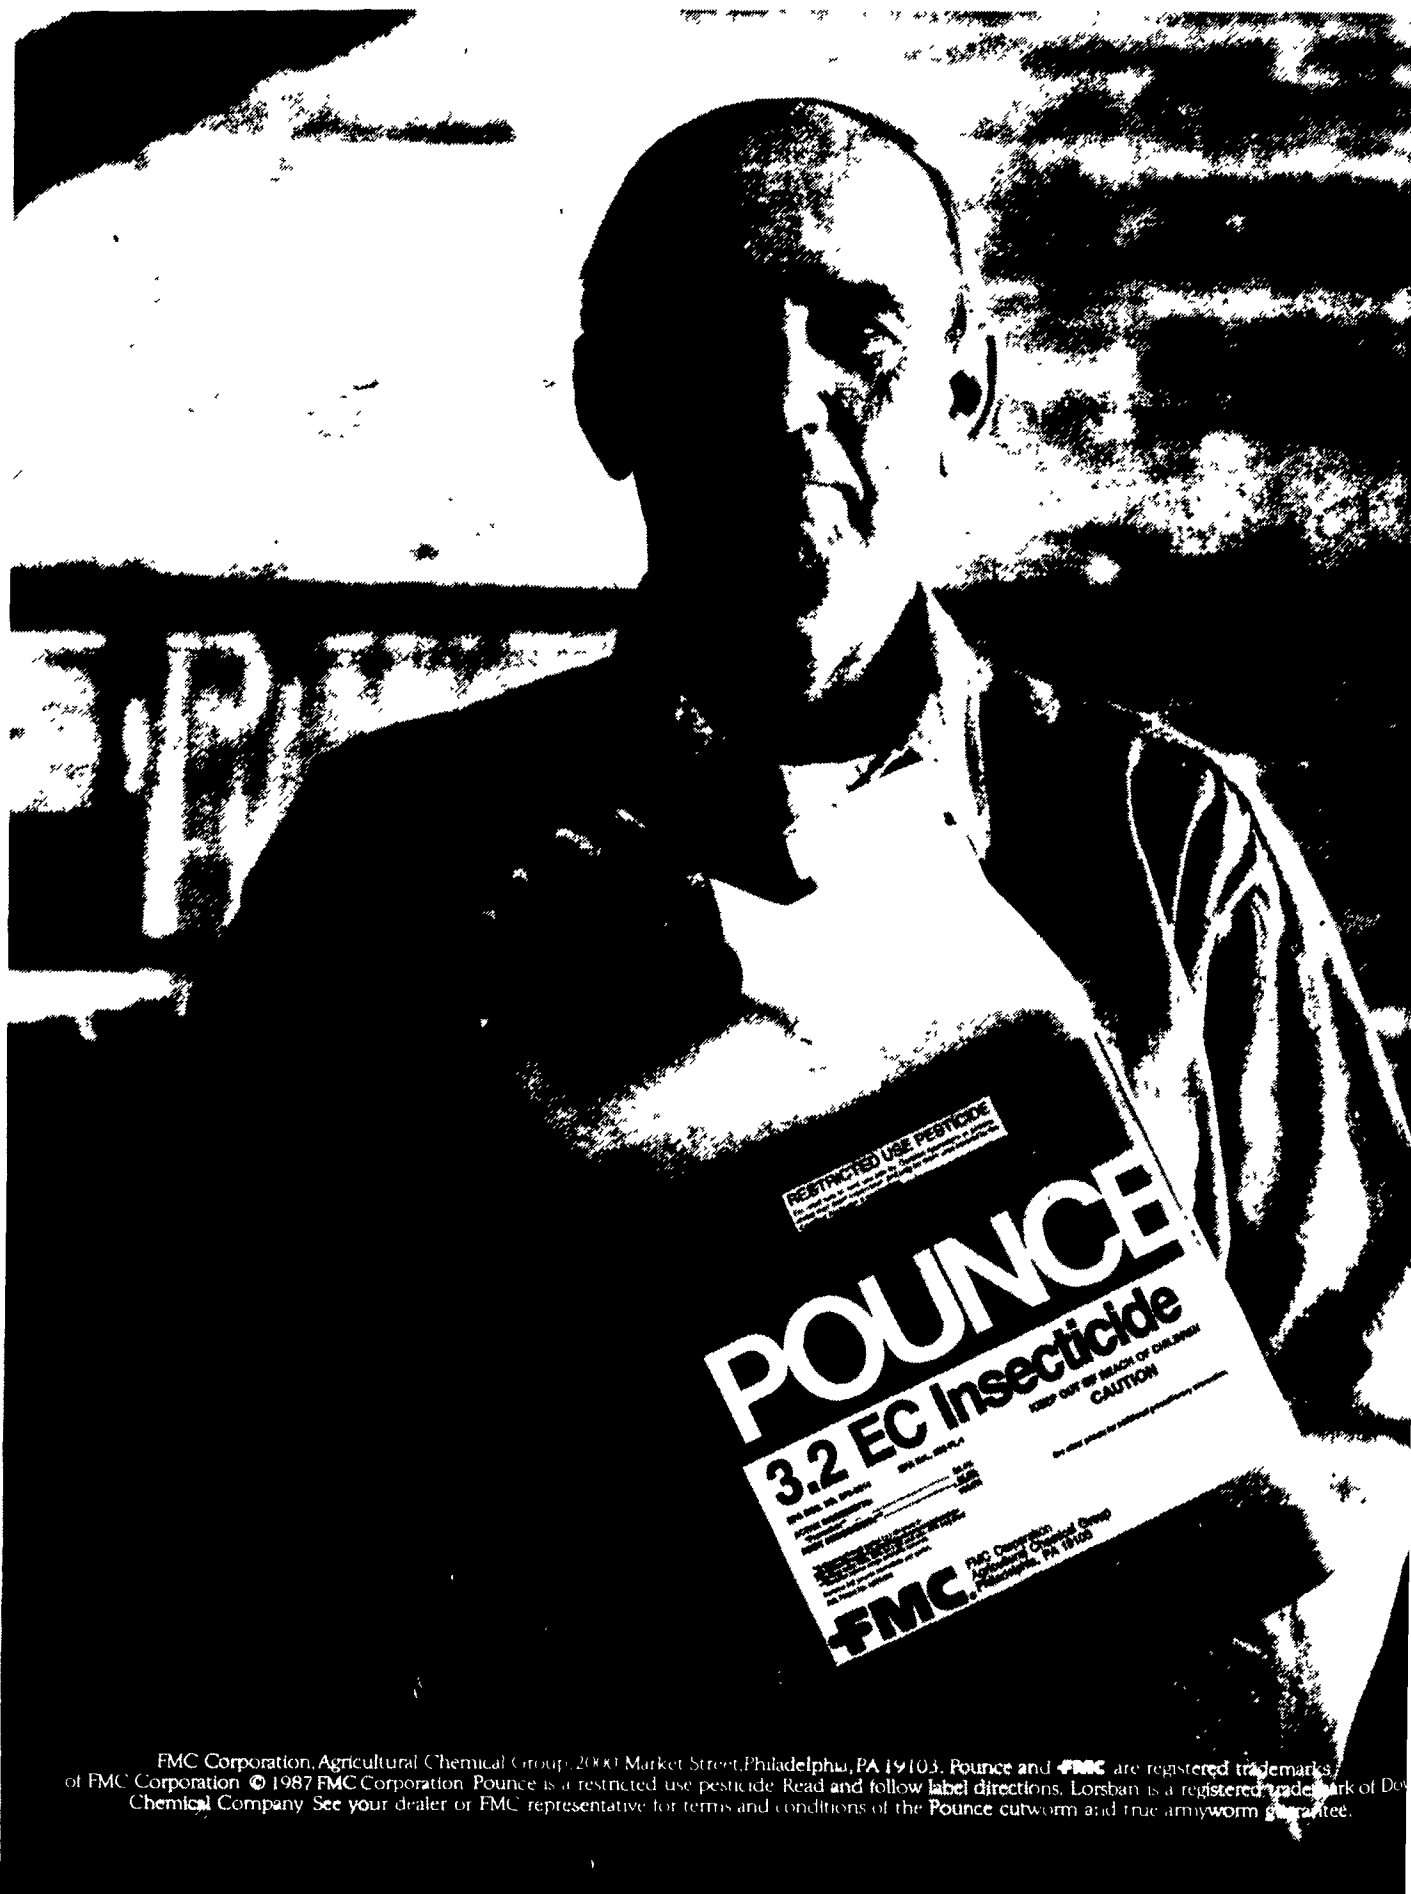

The modules deal with preparing and analyzing financial statements and legal issues related to ag lending. Farmers explore financial goals and the motivation for developing greater financial insights into their farm businesses.

While everyone agrees that borrowing money may be more difficult in the future, there are positive aspects. For one thing, total farm debt is on the decline. And because of the increased financial data required for a loan application, farmers will quickly discover where their inefficiencies lie and become more profitable in the long run.

IRS To Permit Portion Of DTP Payments To Be Taxed As Capital Gains

WASHINGTON — At the request of National Grange Master Edward Andersen, the Internal Revenue Service determined

Round Bale Wrapper

An automatic bale wrapper that can weatherize round bales with a double wrap of 90-gauge plastic has been introduced by Vermeer Manufacturing Co., Pella, Iowa.

The bale wrapper lifts and wraps 6-by-5-foot bales weighing up to 2,200 pounds. The operator simply backs the unit's platform up to a bale, hydraulically lifts and rotates the bale and wraps the bale in heavy-duty, weather-resistant plastic. Bales can be stored in the field until needed.

Vermeer's 1480-pound bale wrapper hitches to any 40 hp or larger tractor, and the wrapper assembly can be positioned on either side of the tongue.

yesterday that a portion of the government payment to retiring dairy farmers under the Dairy Termination Program will be taxed as capital gains. "The Tax Reform Act of 1986 allowed the use of preferential capital gains treatment for the amount received on the sale of dairy cattle under the DTP. The new ruling also allows a portion of the government payment to receive preferential capital gains treatment," Andersen said. He continued, "While this ruling comes late and may cause amended returns, we are extremely pleased that the IRS granted our request on this matter."

In the IRS Notice 87-26, payments under the DTP are intended to compensate the milk producer for lost receipts from two sources. First, the payments compensate the producer for the difference between the amount received when the dairy cattle are sold under the DTP and the higher price that could have been received if the cattle were sold for dairy purposes. Second, the payments are also intended to replace receipts from the milk production operation.

The IRS provided guidance in the notice for filing tax returns for 1986 with respect to the federal income and self-employment tax treatment for income received from participation in the DTP.

To the extent that a portion of the DTP payment compensates the milk producer for selling dairy cattle at a lower price, that portion represents an additional amount realized on the sale of cattle. If the two-year holding period requirement of Section 1231 (b) (3) (A) (the section of the Tax Code which refers to the preferential capital gains treatment) of the Internal Revenue Code is met on the date the milk producer sold raised dairy cattle, whose costs have been previously expensed, the total amount realized on the sale of the cattle is eligible for reporting as capital gains (Section 1231 of the Code).

Such sales should be reported on Form 4797, Part I. If the two-year holding period was met on the date the milk producer sold purchased dairy cattle, the gain (other than the depreciation recapture under Section 1245) or loss is also eligible for reporting under Section 1231.

The total amount realized from such sales should be reported on Form 4797, Part III. Any recapture of investment credit in a case of purchased dairy cattle should be reported on Form 4255. If the two-year holding period requirement is not met, all gains and losses constitute ordinary gains and losses. Part II of Form 4797 should be used to report proceeds from such sales of dairy cattle, regardless of whether raised or purchased when held less than two years.

The portion of the DTP payment in excess of the amount that compensates the milk producer for selling dairy cattle at a lower price is not an amount realized on the sale of cattle, but is a replacement for milk production receipts, and thus is ordinary income. Such amounts should be reported on Form 1040, Schedule F.

The portion of the payment that compensates the milk producer for a below market sale of the cattle must be determined with reference to all of the facts and circumstances. The milk producer must show specific evidence that the milk producer's cattle were actually sold for less than the producer could have obtained for them had they been sold for dairy purposes at the same general time and at the same general geographical location as the producer actually sold them.

The Internal Revenue Service will accept as specific evidence of the price published in "Agricultural Prices", by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, National Agricultural Statistics Service, Agricultural Statistics Board, for milk cow sales in the state in which the milk producer sold the cattle during the year and month in which the milk producer actually sold the cattle.

The portion of the DTP payment that is not treated as an amount realized on the sale of the dairy cattle is includable in determining a milk producer's net earnings from self-employment and is subject to the taxes imposed on self-employment income if the milk producer operated the milk production unit personally or through agents or employees, or if the milk production unit was operated by others and the milk producer participated materially in the production of the milk or in the management of the milk production unit.

Ag Auction

Dauphin Co.

GRATZ — Starting at 9:00 a.m. on Saturday, April 4 at the Gratz Fairgrounds, the Third Annual Ag Center Consignment Auction will be underway. According to Merv Adams, coordinator for the auction. "This years auction is shaping up to be better than the previous two auctions. Two and sometimes three auctioneers will be working at the same time."

The auction is sponsored to benefit the future Dauphin County Agriculture and Natural Resources Center to be located at the intersection of Routes 225 and 325 north of Dauphin.

Tractors and farm equipment, riding lawn mowers, garage and mechanic tools, woodworking shop equipment, household items and numerous other items will be sold to the highest bidder.

According to Adams, "For the first time in the history of the auction several teams of draft and work horses will be sold." The horses will be sold at 12:30 p.m.

All goods being sold have either been consigned or donated to the Ag Center Fund Raising Committee by concerned citizens. Anyone interested in consigning or donating items should contact Merv Adams, 692-3076 or the Dauphin County Conservation District, 558-1090.

"All I have to say is that Pounce[®] guarantees cutworm and true armyworm control at about half the price of Lorsban[®]. So you can use all this space to figure out how much you're saving."

Portable Generators Are Convenient Power Source

NORTHFIELD, ILL. — Two lightweight, package type, portable generators are being introduced by Echo, Incorporated. The EG-550 and EG-750 weigh only 41.8 pounds and 48.2 pounds, respectively, and each has a convenient handle for ease of movement.

Both models are revolving field type AC generators with four-stroke gasoline engines.

Chassis vibration is virtually eliminated through a four-piece anti-vibration rubber shock mounting system. There is a specially designed engine cooling fan which reduces fan noise and provides for optimum engine cooling providing long trouble-free operation.

Efficient engine and generator design allows for 550 unit to run for 4 hours and the 750 unit to run for 5 hours on one tank of fuel. Fuel tanks are zinc plated to prevent rusting.

Included are 12V.D.C. charger

PEORIA, Ill. — Yetter fertilizer coulters attachments accurately place either dry or suspension fertilizers beneath the trash, directly alongside the seedbed where it can be utilized for maximum effectiveness. Designed and 120V AC output. Automatic circuit breakers protect DC and AC outputs.

For additional information about Echo's portable generators, contact Echo, Incorporated, 400 Oakwood Road, Lake Zurich, Illinois 60047-0306, 312-540-8400.

Coulters Place Dry Or Suspension Fertilizers

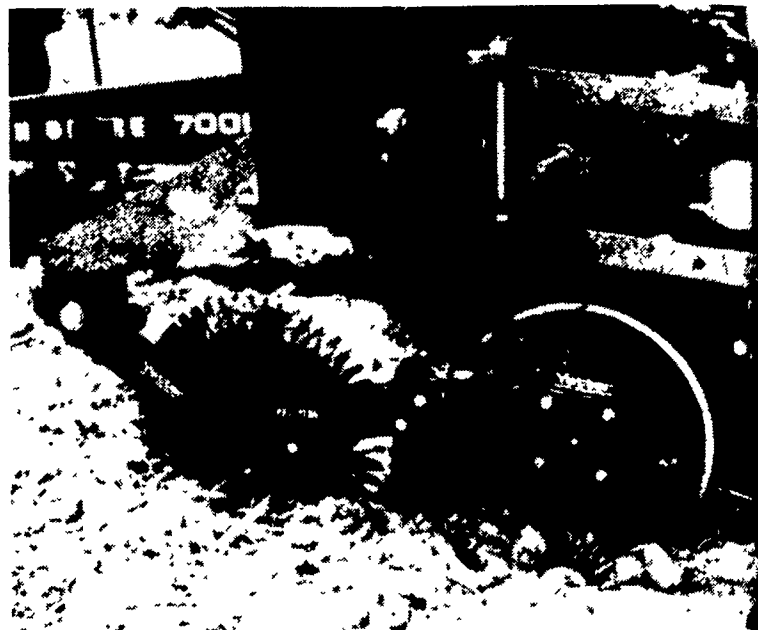

for conventional or conservation tillage, these coulters are quickly and easily mounted with a versatile bracket.

Models are available for John Deere, Kinze, Case IH, White, New Idea and Allis-Chalmers pull-type and 3-point planters, grain drills and row crop cultivators. These efficient, inexpensive units cut clean, narrow slots with minimum soil disturbance, unlike conventional double disc openers that throw soil out to the side and leave a wide, v-shaped trench.

Operating depth is from a maximum of 5-inches to a minimum of 2.5-inches. Heavy-duty 1 1/4-inch spindles are equipped with tapered roller bearings for long, reliable service. All moving parts are fully greasable. Spring deflection is 5.5-inches. Abrasive-resistant narrow alloy steel fertilizer knives are adjustable for wear. The fertilizer knife and 17-inch ripple bladed coulters work together to eliminate trash buildup. A liquid model is also available.

New Yetter fertilizer coulters cut through surface trash in conservation tillage system to place dry or suspension fertilizers.

Bradford, Sullivan

Agronomy Day

TOWANDA — Bradford and Sullivan Counties announce the 1987 Agronomy Day on March 25 at the Ulster Fire Hall. The doors will be open at 9:30 a.m. for coffee and visiting with exhibitors. The program gets underway at 10:30 a.m.

New regulations make pesticide licensing and keeping the license tougher. A forgiveness period for private licenses expiring in 1986 has been extended and will close March 31. To renew a license expiring in 1986-1987 you will need four points (two core and two category). The Agronomy Day program will provide all four, and update certification can be completed that day at the end of the sessions. You must attend both morning and afternoon sessions to qualify. Update training will also be valid for commercial category 1 (agronomic).

Doctor Douglas Beegle will discuss nutrient management for the farmer. He will focus on the concept of building nutrients with farm manures and legumes for the most efficient use by your crops.

Dr. John Yocum, new to this region, will address the problem of weed and insect control in corn and forage crops. Yocum is from the Penn State's Landisville Research Center, and will point out how to protect yourself and others from pesticides and discuss solutions to weed and insect problems.

James Garrahan, from the

Thorbahn Assumes New ABS Duties

DeFOREST, Wisc. — David Thorbahn, regional sire analyst for American Breeders Service, has accepted responsibility for the company's acquisition of young Guernsey bulls. This announcement was recently made by Richard G. Smith, manager of sire selection at ABS. In this expanded role, he will select young Guernsey sires to be progeny tested by ABS.

Thorbahn was raised on a large Registered Holstein farm near Vickery, Ohio, and graduated from Ohio State University with a B.S. degree in Agriculture, majoring in Dairy Science.

Thorbahn joined ABS following graduation and worked in Minnesota as a representative supervisor. He will continue to work out of his office at 2112 Cherry Valley Road, Newark, Ohio, phone (614) 522-3293.

David Thorbahn

Department of Agriculture, will present the latest information on restricted-use pesticide licenses.

Dinner reservations must be made at $1 each. Send payment by March 19 to Agronomy Day, PO Box 69, Towanda, Pa. 18848. Make checks payable to Bradford County Extension Service.

ABS Names Supervisor

DeFOREST, Wisc. — Russel J. Berna, national sales manager for American Breeders Service, has announced the appointment of Gerry D. DeYoung to representative supervisor for western Pennsylvania and northeast Ohio.

DeYoung, born in Ravenna, Ohio, graduated from Ravenna High School in 1972 and received an Associate degree in Applied Dairy Science from the Ohio State University Agricultural Technical Institute in Wooster, Ohio, in 1974. In 1980, he was employed by ABS as a sales representative in northeastern Ohio, a position he has held since his promotion. As an ABS representative he has received a number of awards for his outstanding performance and achievements.

Tye's versatile Paratill is available in 4- and 6-leg configurations with shear bolt protection and adjustable depth control wheels.

Tye Paratill To Replace Paraplow

LOCKNEY, TX — The Tye Company introduces the Paratill, a new toolbar soil loosener. The Paratill features the same unique legs as the Paraplow, an implement that has attracted widespread attention since its debut in 1983.

The 45-degree angle legs loosen soil to 14 inches deep without creating clods or burying residues. Residues are kept on top to control erosion. The legs remove compaction in a single pass, while leaving a level surface ready for planting.

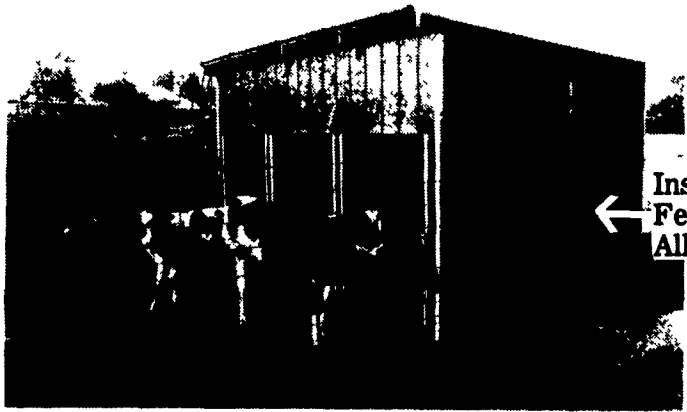

The new Paratill, which will succeed its Paraplow cousin, offers several important improvements. The legs are mounted along a toolbar rather than a moldboard-like frame. Since the toolbar carries an equal number of legs angled both to the left and right, the Paratill does not suffer from side-draft.

But the most significant advantage in the toolbar design is the versatility it gives the Paratill. Each leg loosens a zone of soil, so by simply moving the legs closer together or farther apart on the toolbar, the Paratill can deliver "overall" or "zone" soil loosening.

Overall loosening is used for complete removal of pans and compaction. Zone loosening is used in row crops. The legs loosen soil below the rows to be planted without disrupting the growing area on top. At the same time, firm traffic lanes are maintained between the rows to support harvesters and other equipment. Fertilizer can also be deep-placed directly below the rows.

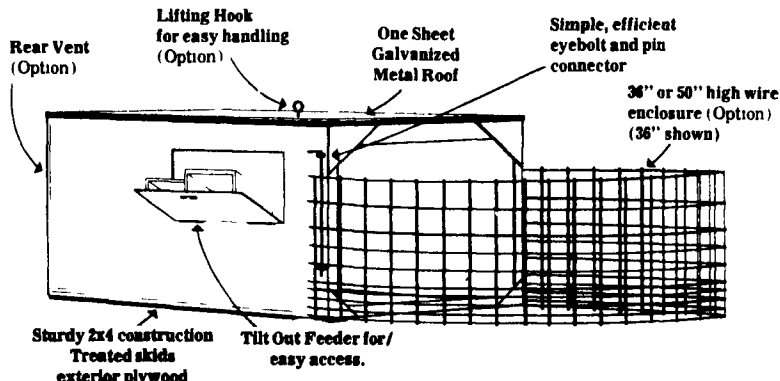

For more information on the new Tye Paratill, contact Brian Inverarity at The Tye Company, P.O. Box 218, Lockney, Texas 79241; or call 806-652-3367.

Ammonium Sulfate Can Improve Herbicide Performance

NEW YORK, N.Y. — For more consistent weed control from Landmaster and Roundup herbicides, weed specialists are advising growers to add ammonium sulfate to their tank mixes this spring. "Ammonium sulfate can counteract the effects of unfavorable weather conditions, which tend to make weeds more tolerant to herbicides," says Dr. Fred Roeth, weeds specialist with the South Central Research and Extension Center of the University of Nebraska. Roeth explains that ammonium sulfate improves the absorption of glyphosate, the active ingredient in Landmaster and Roundup herbicides. "When weather conditions are at extremes — hot and dry or cool and cloudy — ammonium sulfate can make a big difference in your weed control," he says.

At the North Platte experiment station, for example, addition of ammonium sulfate to Landmaster herbicide improved control of barnyardgrass by 68 to 76 percent. Landmaster alone controlled 12 percent of barnyardgrass, while Landmaster with two percent ammonium sulfate controlled 80 percent, and Landmaster with four percent ammonium sulfate controlled 88 percent.

In field trials conducted by Monsanto, addition of ammonium sulfate to Roundup herbicide improved control of annual grasses by up to 25 percent and improved control of annual broadleaves by up to 10 percent.

"As your weather conditions vary in either direction, your ammonium sulfate will have a greater effect," says Dr. Neal Hageman, product development associate with Monsanto. "It all

Financial Counselors List Eight Common Credit Card Warning Signals

NEWARK, Del. — When credit card warning bells begin to toll, it's time to terminate credit purchases by putting away the plastic.

"Financial counselors recognize at least eight common credit card warning signals," says Debbie Amsden, University of Delaware extension home economist. "When you see these things happening, you should stop carrying your credit cards around with you and begin to make adjustments to reduce your credit card debt."

The warning signs are:

- A credit card is used to purchase necessities such as food, clothing or gasoline when the money runs out.
- One credit card is used to make a payment on another card.
- More than seven credit cards have balances due.

- More than 15 percent to 20 percent of take-home pay is used to pay credit card bills.

- Credit cards are used for impulse buying.

- The consumer cannot make the minimum payments on his or her credit card balances.

- The consumer is considering a consolidation loan to pay off all credit card balances.

- A spouse is not honest or fails to communicate about credit card purchases.

To help reduce the temptation to use credit cards, people should not carry their cards with them. Amsden says where people actually place their cards to avoid making further purchases is highly variable.

"One woman put her cards in a pan of water and froze them. That way she had to wait for the cards to defrost before she could buy anything," Amsden says.

Some people give their cards to relatives to hold, requiring that a purchase be fully justified before the cards are returned. But most just put the credit cards in a dresser drawer.

"If you decide to stop using a credit card altogether, be sure to cut it in half and mail it back to the company," Amsden advises. "Credit cards are really the property of the creditor."

Next work out realistic arrangements for reducing credit payments.

To do this, you must know what your living expenses are so that the payments you offer to make are within your income," says Amsden. "A creditor may suggest an amount and the individual agrees just to get off the phone, but the money may not really be there."

For families in debt, Amsden says that one strategy is to use 20 percent to 25 percent of take-home pay for debt payment and to live on the other 75 percent. "Remember the basics— rent, utilities and food— are top priorities and should be paid before anything else," she says.

Therefore, if the consumer is putting all payments in order of priority, Amsden says that overdue payments on utilities and housing come first. Credit card creditors can be paid next, and finally services such as medical or dental care.

After deciding how much money is available, consumers must then decide how large the payments to each creditor should be.

"The easy way is to take the number of creditors and divide it into the amount of money available for repayment, giving each creditor the same amount," Amsden says.

A second strategy is to figure out what proportion of the total debt each bill represents and pay accordingly. "For example, if you have one card balance of $200 and another for $400, the payment on the larger balance would be two times as much as the payment on the $200 balance," the home economist explains.

A third method is to repay on the basis of impending action by the creditor. "You would pay back first those creditors who might repossess something or who are threatening to garnish wages," Amsden says.

After establishing the amount that can be safely paid, consumers should then try to negotiate the reduced payments with credit card companies.

"They can call, but they certainly should write to the creditor indicating their plan for repayment," Amsden says. "We have found companies are often willing to make these adjustments if people communicate with them."

If payments are consistent, creditors are frequently willing to accept smaller amounts. "Most creditors will accept regular $5 or $10 payments each month rather than wait several months while the consumer tries to put together a $50 payment. The small regular payments show commitment," Amsden says.

Anyone who wants help in determining a realistic credit card payment program should contact the cooperative extension office in Newark (451-2506), Dover (697-4000) or Georgetown (856-7303). New Castle County Cooperative Extension has a financial counseling program in which volunteers from the community assist individuals in developing a debt repayment plan.

"You have to develop discipline to avoid too many credit card purchases," Amsden concludes. She says one individual solved her credit card problem by deciding to think 24 hours about any purchase before buying it on credit. Her financial security has increased since adopting this strategy.

Ammonium Sulfate

depends on how far from optimal the weather conditions are in a given year."

Because adverse weather conditions can't be predicted or avoided, Monsanto recommends routine addition of ammonium sulfate to Landmaster and Roundup herbicides as a precautionary measure. The suggested rate of ammonium sulfate is 17 pounds of dry additive for every 100 gallons of spray solution. See Landmaster and Roundup herbicide labels for specific use and rate recommendations. (Ammonium sulfate is also on the label for Poast herbicide.)

Allied Corporation, the nation's largest producer of ammonium sulfate, offers its Sulf-N 45 ammonium sulfate in a spray grade formulation designed exclusively for use as an herbicide additive. To minimize application problems, Allied's spray grade is bagged in Hopewell, Va., where its ammonium sulfate plant is located.

When tank mixing, Hageman recommends dissolving ammonium sulfate first, while agitating the tank. Once the additive is completely dissolved, growers can add the herbicide and then the surfactant.

Ag Leaders Say Farm Bill Is Working -- Sort Of

By MARTHA SHELTON
New York Correspondent

ITHACA, N. Y. — Nobody wants to lay claim to having conceived the 1985 farm bill, but despite its "illegitimacy," it's doing the job it was designed to do — sort of.

That agreement was reached by farm leaders, politicians, university economists, and agribusinessmen who participated in a recent national televideo conference on "Midcourse Corrections in Agricultural Policy." The three hours of debate and panel discussions originated at the University of Maryland and were broadcast to 50 locations throughout the United States, where farmers, economists, and bankers watched, reacted, and phoned in their questions to the experts.

At least a half dozen panelists on hand disagreed with the prevailing thumbs-up appraisal of the '85 bill. Among them were Senator Thomas Harkin, D-Iowa, originator of the "Save the Family Farm Bill," and Senator Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minnesota, proponent of decoupling farm payments from production.

Problems with surplus stocks and depressed exports of corn and wheat have led people to ask "is the farm bill working," said University of Maryland professor Bruce Gardner in laying the foundation for the broadcast. The situation with rice and cotton, however, present more promising evidence that the bill is doing its job, he noted.

The '85 bill looks better today when compared to what is being proposed by the fringes, said American Farm Bureau president Dean Kleckner in a debate with Cy Carpenter, president of the National Farmers Union.

"It's not doing that badly for its first few months, but it is expensive," Kleckner acknowledged. "It is sending the proper signals to our competitors around the world."

Kleckner cited cutbacks in wheat production in Argentina and Australia as evidence the signals are being received. The Gebhardt-Harkin bill would send the wrong signals, Kleckner maintained.

Judging the bill after less than one year is unfair, Kleckner said. It was designed to carry out its goals over a 5-year period.

"The bill has created a disaster level of damage," said Carpenter, "and we can't stand any more time to prove that kind of disaster." Those farmers who are facing foreclosure are calling for change, he said, citing statistics indicating that in some counties two farms collapse every month.

Even the bill's originators are asking for a 35 percent set-aside, Carpenter noted, and indication the bill is not doing the job. "The bill has forced the cost of crops below the cost of production. There is no replacement capability under this farm bill and also no inventory replacement."

"It's the high-debt farmers who are going out," said Kleckner, "and no farm bill can deal with those, in my opinion."

Cornell economist Kenneth Robinson gave the bill a mixed report. Exports have not recovered, but with lower prices we should see other countries make production adjustments, Robinson said.

We need to address the dependency of farmers on government and the rigidities and perverse signals we are sending farmers, said Clemson University's Harold Harris. Farmers are farming the program quite efficiently.

"We are going to have to face the fact that about 20 percent of the farmers are not going to make it under the '85 farm bill, or any other reasonable farm bill that can be passed," Harris asserted. "We're not doing farmers any good by letting that hang on by their fingernails for another year."

With the $30 billion now being spent on farm programs, it would be cheaper to buy out the distressed farmers and retrain them, Carpenter asserted.

USDA Assistant Secretary for Economics Robert Thompson reiterated the administration's stand, calling for minor adjustments to the bill. The adjustments would: move further into decoupling by substituting a 0-92 program for the present 50-92; reduce deficiency payments by cutting target prices; tighten the limits set on payments to farmers; and lower the loan rates to compete on the world market.

A spokesman for Harkin acknowledged that there is no real hope of making major changes to the present farm program within the next two years. Both Harkin and Boschwitz are aiming to stimulate Congressional discussion and position themselves action under a new administration in 1989.

Rep. Morris Introduces Ag Bills

HARRISBURG, Feb. 24 — State Rep. Samuel Morris, D-Chester County, has reintroduced three bills of vital importance to Pennsylvania's agriculture industry.

Morris legislation would:

—Preserve Pennsylvania's valuable farmland by appropriating state funds to purchase development rights in agricultural areas (H.B. 442).

—Create an Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission to oversee the diagnosis and investigation of livestock disease in farm animals (H.B. 441) and,

—Give local taxing bodies the option of replacing all or part of their property tax with a tax on income (H.B. 440).

"Twenty percent of all people working in Pennsylvania are employed, directly or indirectly, in agriculture-related businesses," Morris said. "These three bills will encourage growth in our state's number one industry and protect that industry against the ravages of development and disease."

Morris said some of Pennsylvania's best farmland has been lost to developers. He has proposed that farmers be encouraged to protect their land through the sale of Agricultural Conservation Easements. The easements would represent the difference between a property's value for agricultural use and its value for development.

Purchase of the easements would be handled at the county level using state funds collected through the realty transfer tax. Morris is seeking $20 million to fund the program during its first year. Funding would increase to $35 million in the second year of the program and to $50 million in the third and subsequent years.

Morris said the easement program would help today's farmers cope with rising costs while ensuring that their land will be used for agriculture in years to come. He said young people attempting to enter farming would also benefit.

SCAVENGER™

What every ordinary spreader is trying to be.

Years ago, Hedlund/Martin introduced a revolutionary new concept—the Scavenger spreader. It was the first spreader specifically manufactured to let you take advantage of today's modern farming practices.

And while some other spreaders now claim to give you the same versatility and capabilities you get from Scavenger, in the field—where it counts—they just don't perform like Scavenger.

At Hedlund/Martin, we've been building Scavengers for years. Prior to introduction, Scavenger spent even more time in research and development. Through practical experience we know what works and what doesn't. And, frankly, a lot of the features appearing on other new spreaders are simply some of the bugs we worked out of the Scavenger years ago.

Scavenger is designed to be versatile. It spreads the kinds of manure you handle today—liquid, semi-solid, pen pack—even frozen. In patterns perfect for your cropping needs—from heavy springtime spreading to fine, even top dressing.

There are many reasons why Scavenger is such a hard worker. Like the specially-designed, patented square auger to thoroughly break up manure as it moves through the tank. Or the unique, Martin-designed Variflo Discharge to give you complete application control. Or any of the other special features that separate Scavenger even farther from the crowd. Like heavy-duty, energy-efficient transmissions to reduce wear and tear on your tractor. Full-frame Unibody construction for extra durability. And a distinctive tank design to eliminate leaks and improve spread capabilities.

There's even a choice of models to meet your operation's individual needs. So you buy the machine that's the right size, the right capacity—and most importantly, the right price—for you.

For all the facts stop by your local Hedlund/Martin dealer for a demonstration. See for yourself why Scavenger continues to be a leader in the spreader category it created.

Rep. Morris Introduces Ag Bills

"Development pressures have made farmland too expensive for most beginning farmers," he said. "Land protected by conservation easements would be less valuable, and therefore more affordable to those entering farming."

Morris said the Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission would coordinate an integrated approach to the state's problems with livestock disease. He said recent outbreaks of avian influenza have graphically illustrated the need for a more comprehensive state response.

The commission would conduct animal research and programs to eradicate livestock disease. It would also pay indemnities to livestock producers affected by disease outbreaks.

Many of the commission's activities currently fall under the auspices of the state Bureau of Animal Industries. Morris said the bureau was badly understaffed during the Thornburgh Administration, however, and has been unable to adequately service the livestock industry.

Pennsylvania's new Agriculture Secretary, Boyd E. Wolfe, supported creation of the Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission during his Senate confirmation hearings.

Morris said his final legislative proposal, local tax reform, is not normally viewed as an agriculture-related issue.

"In fact, farmers have been among the hardest hit by skyrocketing property taxes," he said. "Farmers own large amounts of land, but often have relatively low incomes. A local tax structure based on the ability to pay, rather than the amount of land owned, would ensure that farmers do not pay more than their share."

Morris tax reform bill would create two income-based taxes at the local level. The first would be a personal income tax on individuals residing within the tax district. The second would be a tax on income generated by business property within the taxing district, but owned by individuals residing outside the taxing district or by corporations.

"A property tax reduction would benefit both individuals and businesses," Morris said. "My proposal would create an income-based tax for both groups to ensure that the tax burden is fairly distributed."

The conservation easement legislation and the legislation creating an Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission were both reported out of the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee during the last legislative session. Morris, the committee's chairman, said he will schedule committee action on both bills as soon as possible.

Morris said the bills are supported by Governor Casey, the Secretary of Agriculture and by the state's farm organization.

Minority Students Sought By Alfred State College For Inspectors' Course

ALFRED, N. Y. — The search is on for minority students interested in becoming farm products inspectors through a cooperative work-study program involving Alfred State College.

Sponsored jointly by the college and by the state Department of Agriculture and Markets, the program offers students a chance to "learn and earn," according to John Brown, professor of agronomy at Alfred and program coordinator.

The students, who will receive $600 a year to defray such costs as books and tuition, will be learning to become farm products inspectors in the Agriculture and Markets Department's Division of Marketing.

Educational requirements are that participants must be high school graduates with an overall academic average of 70 or higher.

Once accepted, the students must maintain the same academic grade requirements as established for all other Alfred State College students, professor Brown points out.

Because the program combines work and study, it's three years in duration. The first year consists of regular college attendance and then a summer/fall work program in which students are employed as seasonal farm products inspectors, working out of Rochester.

Their job consists of the inspection, grading, and certification of farm products at shipping points, receiving points, and processing plants generally within a 75-mile radius of Rochester.

Traditionally, such inspectors can earn between $7,000 and $8,000 during a 20-week session, according to Division of Marketing officials.

After completing the work block in late November, students will get a month off before returning to Alfred for the spring semester.

Again that second summer, the students will be employed as seasonal farm products inspectors, working until November before entering their final semester at Alfred in January.

Successful completion of the program will earn the students an associate in applied science degree in agronomy.

"This program has been devised to provide students a sound educational background which includes essential knowledge of how to function as inspector trainees," Professor Brown stated.

He said that recruitment for the program is directed at students identified as minorities — Blacks, Hispanics, Asians, and Native Americans. "These groups are currently under-represented in the farm products grading inspector title series in the Division of Marketing," he noted.

A spokesman for the Division of Marketing said the program offers "attractive career opportunities," citing job potential not only with his state agency but with the U. S. Department of Agriculture or with agri-business enterprises.

Further information about the program is available by writing to the admissions office at Alfred State College or phoning the office at 607-587-4215.

Penn State Agronomist Retires

STATE COLLEGE — Dr. Milford Heddleson, professor of agronomy and coordinator of environmental quality affairs for the Penn State's College of Agriculture retired March 1 with emeritus status. He served the University for 25 years.

As coordinator of environmental affairs he has overseen statewide educational environmental quality programs as they relate to agricultural uses, including air, land, water, wastes and pesticides. These programs were conducted in cooperation with university faculty and staff, as well as government and statewide agencies.

Dr. Heddleson has worked closely with county commissioners in initiating educational resource management programs to assist their boards and commissions in undertaking and implementing wise land use planning. He provided a wide range of soil and water related visuals and publications for use by Penn State Extension staff at county, area and state levels.

Audiences for his seminars, short course and other training programs on environmental resource management have included farmers, municipal planners and ag industry personnel. He also organized and team taught a five-week natural resource management program, a two-day university-wide energy symposium, and a two-day food symposium.

Heddleson also served as the chairman of the building committee and head of the college fund raising effort for the Penn State Ag Arena campaign. The Ag Arena ranks third of buildings on campus paid for entirely by private donations. The final cost was more than $2.5 million. The initial effort, which he directed, raised more than $1.5 million, primarily from farm families, students and agricultural groups.

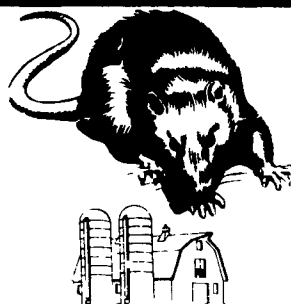

Prior to becoming environmental affairs coordinator in 1972, Heddleson was the Extension agronomist responsible for programs on soil survey education and land use planning.

Heddleson joined the Penn State faculty in 1962 as the college's first Extension land use management specialist. He pioneered numerous programs in soil survey education and soil management.

A native of Caldwell, Ohio, he was a member of Ohio State's Department of Agronomy faculty for seven years before coming to Penn State. He received his bachelor of science in conservation and his master of science and doctorate in soil chemistry from Ohio State University.

He and his wife, Angelyn are the parents of two sons — both students at Penn State.

Farm Bill's 'Swampbuster' Discourages Cropping Wetlands

LEESPORT - Farmers are being told that if they drain or farm a wetland, they will lose benefits from a large number of U.

S. Department of Agriculture programs. The question many farmers are asking is, "what is a wetland?"

According to Robert Heidecker, state resource conservationist, USDA Soil Conservation Service, under the swampbuster provision of the 1985 Farm Bill, USDA defines a wetland as soils that are covered with standing water or are water saturated most of the year, to the extent that they grow mostly water loving plants. "Both conditions, wet soils and wetland plants, must exist for the land to be classed as a wetland," added Heidecker. The USDA Soil Conservation Service (SCS) maintains lists of wet soils and water-loving plants which make up a wetland designation.

Farmers who plant a crop on an existing wetland or on a wetland that was drained and filled since December 23, 1985 will not be able to participate in most other USDA farm programs. This includes such USDA farm programs as commodity price supports, Farmers Home Administration loans, crop insurance, CCC storage payments, farm storage facility loans and conservation reserve program annual payments. Heidecker reminded farmers that eligibility will be lost not only for the wetland that is cropped, but for the entire farm operation.

"Eligibility may be regained any year by not planting a crop on the converted wetland," added Heidecker.

Exceptions to the swampbuster provision are (1) if the wetland was drained prior to December 23, 1985; (2) if the wetland results from an artificial condition, such as irrigation; (3) crops were planted on the wetland as a result of natural conditions such as drought; and (4) where SCS has determined that conversion would have a minimal effect on wetland values.

The swampbuster provision of the Food Security Act of 1985, commonly referred to as the 1985

Farm Bill, is aimed at discouraging the conversion of wetland to agricultural purposes. Many farmers have drained and planted wetlands to crops, under incentives offered through various commodity support programs.

More than one-half of the wetlands that existed when America was settled are gone. Wetlands are some of our most diverse and productive habitat for waterfowl and wildlife. They help control floodwaters, recharge aquifers and provide many recreational and environmental opportunities.

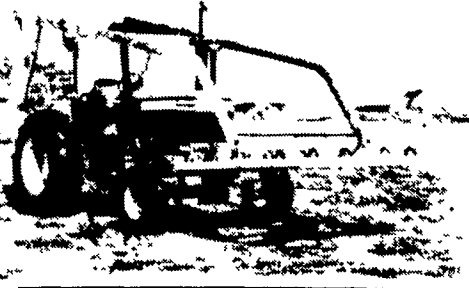

For more information on Swampbuster, contact the local office or the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS). SCS Conservationists can tell you if you have wetlands. ASCS personnel can provide information about the effects of Swampbuster on USDA assistance programs.

Tree Line Considerations

On small residential properties, trees frequently cover different properties. Unfortunately, questions sometimes arise about who is responsible for raking leaves, collecting the fallen fruit or even eliminating shade that may be undesirable. Fortunately, most of these problems can be solved by common sense and courtesy.

But, according to Susan Goldsworthy, Delaware County Agricultural Horticulturist, because trees are real property and are a permanent part of the land on which they grow, they are protected by law.

A tree is the property of the person on whose land it is situated, and ownership of a tree, as a general rule, depends upon whose land the trunk of the tree stands on. If a neighbor's tree sheds leaves on your lawn, the law considers it reasonable for you to clean up the leaves, rather than expecting the tree owner to come onto your property to do it.

However, if the property owner can show that the adjoining landowner's tree possesses a substantial danger to property or safety, then the tree owner should remove the leaves.

The land owner may trim branches of a neighbor's tree which are his or her property, but only those branches which overhang. The landowner has a duty to trim without harming the tree and may not enter the tree owner's land to trim branches unless the tree is diseased or rotten.

On rented property tenants who occupy a whole house are usually considered responsible for maintenance of the land that comes with the house. Although neither landlord nor tenant are required to remove leaves, if the leaves threaten to injure property (such as killing grass), then the tenant is obliged to remove them.

The question of who gets the produce from fruit bearing trees follows different rules.

While a landowner may be expected to remove leaves which have fallen on his property from a neighbor's tree, the landowner may not automatically collect fruit from the tree. The fruit tree owner must be given a reasonable opportunity to enter the property owner's land and remove the fruit.

Trees and shrubs that have been planted for landscaping purposes may not be cut by tenants. People renting houses or apartments in the city or suburbs can face legal penalties for cutting trees without the owners permission.

Canada Imposes Import Duty On U.S. Corn

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The Canadian Import Tribunal ruled recently that U.S. corn exports are causing material injury to Canadian corn farmers and the Canadian government.

With the announcement of this decision, permanent countervailing duties of 84.9 cents per bushel will be assessed on all U.S. corn exported to Canada. The figure reflects the per bushel deficiency payment presently being paid to corn farmers participating in the U.S. feed grains program, according to findings released by Revenue Canada on February 2.

In a 2 to 1 vote, the Tribunal ruled in favor of a petition filed by the Ontario Corn Producers Association in June 1986, which stated the feed grains program

For Yield, Quality, and Persistence... W-L alfalfa stands alone year after year

Today's successful growers work harder than ever before — but they also work smarter. Alfalfa farmers across the country recognize that in tough times, they can't afford to gamble with anything less than W-L alfalfa seed to give them the high yields, quality forage and long stand life necessary for a profitable crop. They also know that W-L alfalfas are backed up by over 25 years of research, technical teams of experts and a reliable, service-oriented distribution system.

provisions of the 1985 U.S. Farm Bill were financially damaging to Canada in maintaining the Income Price Stabilization Program to Canadian corn farmers.

In addition, the Tribunal stated the U.S. Farm Bill was driving up costs of farm programs for the Canadian and Ontario governments.

"This ruling sets up a horrendous precedent in international agricultural trade law," says

National Corn Growers Association president Harold Cutler of Greenville, NC. "U.S. agricultural exports could be potentially hampered by this decision."

"In January, the Reagan Administration completed an agreement with the European Community in which U.S. corn farmers lost a market for two million metric tons of corn. Now in March, the Canadian decision has caused us further loss in actual and potential corn exports. We are greatly concerned over which countries will attack U.S. corn exports in the next month and the months following," adds Cutler. "We have already been informed that the French Corn Growers Association is filing an identical countervailing duty petition against U.S. corn gluten feed exports to the EC. We hope the Administration now realizes the importance of this action and the impact it will have on future agricultural trade."

"NCGA has been urging the Administration to implement a marketing loan for corn for nearly a year," says Cutler, "and the Canadian ruling further reinforces the need for such USDA action, if the U.S. is to remain competitive in international corn trade."

Farm Convention Urges Trade Policy Changes

FORT WORTH - "Massive trade deficits mandate that this nation change its international trade policy initiatives," according to delegates attending the 85th annual National Farmers Union convention.

In policy adoption, the farm convention said trade policies must shift away from "free-market confrontations and reprisals, towards practical, bilateral, and reciprocal trade arrangements."

The Farmers Union delegates argued that no other nation permits its basic industries, including agriculture to be "at the mercy of the international marketplace."

The NFU charged that the administration's pursuit of "free-market theories" has already resulted in the "loss of thousands of family farmers and the weakening of other domestic industries."

The farm group's delegates said the United States should use its position as the "single largest importer of goods in the world to gain access to foreign markets for our products."

The NFU convention suggested offsetting action: "If our domestic marketplace is to remain open to these trading partners, then they must provide reciprocal trade opportunities and access to their markets for our exports."

The enforce reciprocal trade arrangements, the farm convention supported the imposition of countervailing duties and/or quotas on imports from nations which have consisted trade balance surpluses with the United States. Such countervailing measures would be eliminated as access is provided to U.S. agricultural products and other exports to those nations, the convention said.

The National Farmers Union renewed its call for negotiating international commodity agreements which would have minimum and maximum pricing arrangements, as well as sharing of world grain reserves, and emergency food aid.

It also expressed concern that the United States and others might use the Uruguay round of trade talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) for encouraging the "dismantling of domestic farm stabilization programs."

The convention said Congress should make clear that no provisions of trade agreements could take precedence over existing U.S. law.

Rabies Vaccinations Needed

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture recently announced that at least 160 low-cost rabies clinics have been held or are scheduled statewide in response to passage of a new state law that mandates vaccination of dogs and house cats.

"The private organizations, municipalities and veterinarians conducting these clinics are to be commended for their commitment to pet and public safety," said Dr. Max A. Van Buskirk, Jr., director of the Bureau of Animal Industry.

The new law is in response to a serious outbreak of rabies in wild animals. "The intent is to avert a spill over of the disease into pet dogs and cats, which would seriously increase the rabies risk to humans," Van Buskirk said.

There were 583 confirmed cases of rabies in Pennsylvania last year, mostly involving raccoons and skunks, compared with just 14 in 1981.

The law, which took effect Feb. 13, requires vaccination of all dogs and house cats three months of age and older. Inoculations must be given or supervised by licensed veterinarians.

"The Department will provide technical advice to municipalities and organizations on how to go about setting up clinics and helping pet owners comply with the law," Van Buskirk stressed.

The Department is charged with administering and enforcing the law. All provisions of the law, including penalties, are in effect, he noted.

Small Property Windbreaks

Not all homeowners have enough space to plant a windbreak, says Jeff Jabco, Delaware County Cooperative Extension Agricultural Agent. The problem is that most windbreak plantings have several rows of plants about eight feet apart to be effective.

A minimum-sized windbreak might require as much space as 40 to 50 feet set at least 50 feet away from the structure to be protected to prevent direct shading and snow from drifting onto adjacent drives, walks, and the house itself. That means you could need about 90 to 100 feet of space to protect your house with a windbreak.

The problem of too little space cannot be solved by a single row of tall plants near the house. Heating costs may actually increase if the house is with excess tree cover in the winter.

There are, however, steps you can take on smaller lots to reduce heating and cooling costs. Any reduction in wind velocity will be of some help.

Plants and fence-like structures will have some moderating effect on wind speed for distances of four to six times their height. Within these limits, a fence, wooden screen, or shrub planting can be very effective when used close to the house and will not shade the house.

Shrub borders of lilac, privet, mockorange or forsythia will at least help to slow the wind near the house. These can be spaced three to four feet apart in a single row, or if space permits, they can be planted in a double row with the same spacing within the row and six feet between rows.

The plants should be staggered between rows if more than one row is used.

Where space is severely limited, you might get some relief from the wind with a constructed fence. A board-on-board, stockade, or basket-weave designs produce a fairly solid barrier. These units, however, channel air currents to other parts of the property which could lead to snow drifts on nearby drives and walks.

Brockett Retires From Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK — John E. Brockett Jr. professor of agricultural economics and area farm management agent, retired from Penn State's Cooperative Extension Service on Jan. 1, 1987.

Brockett's Penn State career began in 1956, when he was appointed assistant county agent in Potter County. In 1965 he became assistant professor of agricultural economics extension and area farm management specialist.

Most recently he was headquartered in the Mifflin County extension office and responsible for extension farm management education programs in an eleven-county area.

As an expert in farm income tax management, finance, business analysis, records and estate planning for farm families, Brockett conducted applied research on subject matter used in his educational programs, specifically labor use and capital investments in dairy farming. He developed and implemented farm management programs to help families develop and retain economically viable farm operations.

Brockett's extension education programs included seminars, workshops and individual contacts with farmers, agricultural creditors, attorneys, agribusiness people and low-income rural families.

He developed 10 farm management programs for the MacIntosh computer, including a widely used dairy mini-analysis template. Previously he developed nine farm management programs for the Apple IIe computer. These programs included a template for the Dairy Diversion Program that was used by extension personnel in Pennsylvania and eight neighboring states.

Brockett wrote newsletters, extension circulars and weekly columns for 17 newspapers. For 21 years he wrote a farm (Turn to Page D47)

Six reasons why more Pennsylvania farmers use Reemay® than any other seedbed cover.

No tobacco seedbed cover gives you more advantages than economical DuPont REEMAY spunbonded polyester. Here's why:

1. Low cost. REEMAY is one of the lowest-cost covers around.
2. Less work. REEMAY is easy to put down. It's just-right weight makes handling easy. It stakes down securely, resists "ballooning" in wind.
3. Low risk. REEMAY is porous. Air and moisture pass freely through, reducing danger of too much heat build-up.

4. Excellent growth and vigor. Tests by a major U.S. school of agriculture show that you get large, hardy plants, because distribution of heat and moisture is even with REEMAY seedbed covers.

5. Maximum number of transplants. The porosity of REEMAY assures uniform wetting, fewer bare spots and even germination throughout the bed.

6. Withstands the elements. REEMAY won't rot, shrink or mildew.

PROTEK™

Pellets Making

The New Technology In Protein Efficiency. It's Working!

Levi S. Beller

Levi S. Beller, of Paradise, Pa., is very satisfied with his Protek program. He started with ear corn and Protek in November of 1984 but kept the same roughage program which consists of hay and corn silage. "I've always had confidence in Master Mix, and when Charlie Lichty, my salesman, suggested I try Protek, I was willing to feed it" Levi claims. Since being on Protek, Levi's Rolling Herd Average has increased 1250 lbs. of milk and 45 lbs. of fat. Levi attributes much of his success to the 1890 High Energy top-dress pellet. "The pellets are making my peaks higher and the cows are holding production longer. The cows really take to the 1890's" Levi says.

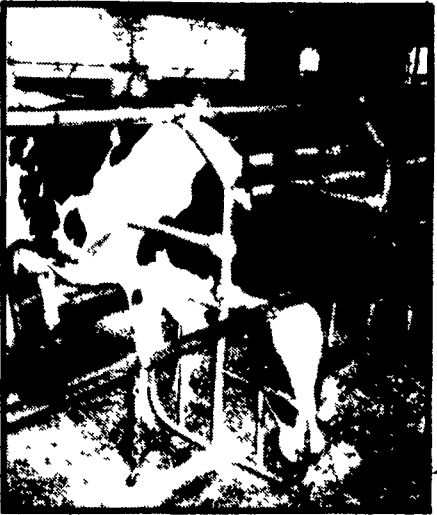

Testimonial of Aynestead Farms

Phil and Wayne Pierson, of Aynestead Farms in Clayton, Delaware, are very pleased with the performance of their herd after switching from a 20% pellet to Master Mix's Protek 1790's. Here's what they have to say about Protek:

"Our roughage program stayed the same and the pounds of pellets we fed stayed the same. The only thing we did different was to lower the protein of our pellet from a 20% to a Protek 17%, and the milk came up."

"In December of 1984, Gene Garrett, the salesman from Spencer's Milling Service in Clayton, Delaware, suggested we try Protek 1790's from Master Mix. Our Rolling Herd Average was 17,932 lbs. After being on Protek for only 18 months, our herd average is up to 20,060 lbs."

Aynestead Farms was high herd in milk for the state of Delaware in 1985.

Eli and Jacob Blank

Eli and Jacob Blank, of Gap, Pa., switched their 40 head of Holsteins from a cob chop and 38% mix to a cob chop and Protek mix in November of 1984. Their roughage program of hay and corn silage remained the same. Here are their comments on the Protek program: "We were looking for a better feeding program that would give us good results and yet be less costly than what we were currently on. When Protek was introduced, we went on it right away and have seen excellent results. We got an increase in milk and butterfat held its own. The cow's peaks generally remained the same, but they hold their production longer while maintaining good condition and health. We feel the 1890 High Energy top-dress pellets are the contributing factor to this. Our Rolling Herd Average has gone from 17,239 lbs. to milk and 622 lbs. of fat in November of 1984, to 18,191 lbs. of milk and 635 lbs. of fat currently. Since being on the Protek program, we have seen better herd health and reproduction. Our calving interval went from 12.7 months with 2 services to 12 months and 1.4 services. We have been on Protek for over a year. We like it and plan on feeding it for a long time."

Carl and Wayne Stafford

Carl and Wayne Stafford, of North East, Md., say the following about their Protek program: "We began with Protek in February of 1985 with a Rolling Herd Average of 14,763 lbs. of milk and 539 lbs. of fat. We are now up to 17,196 lbs. of milk and 605 lbs. of fat. On the Protek program we greatly reduced the protein in our grain mix and the feed cost really came down. Before going to Protek, we were adding several pacs to our feed to try and boost production. Now, on Protek, we aren't adding any pacs and we are very pleased with the milk increase." Carl and Wayne milk 80 Holsteins. They feed 1890 High Energy pellets in the parlor, hay, haylage and corn silage. A Protek concentrate and grain mix is then fed to the cows through their computer feeder. The Staffords get their feed from Master Mix dealer Hilaman Milling, Inc.

Jim and Daryl Bowman

Jim and Daryl Bowman of Ronks, Pa., started feeding a 12½% ear corn and Protek feed in November of 1984. "Our roughage program of baled hay, haylage and corn silage remained more constant than when we were on an ear corn and 38% mix. For example we had a cow peak at 125 lbs. in July!" Jim exclaimed. "Our feed cost is the same and our Rolling Herd Average has gone from 17,008 lbs. of milk with 637 lbs. of fat to 18,345 lbs. of milk with 660 lbs. of fat. We're looking for 19,000 lbs. of milk this fall!" Jim stated.

Ivan and Dave Bowman

Ivan and Dave Bowman, of Ronks, Pa., switched from a 38% to Protek in December of 1984. They comment: "Milk production is up, but our feed cost is less than when we were on the 38%. Our roughage program is the same, which is hay, haylage, and corn silage. Our pounds of feed are the same. But since being on a 12% Protek feed, our Rolling Herd Average has gone from 15,949 lbs. of milk and 559 lbs. of fat to 17,288 lbs. of milk and 629 lbs. of fat. The 1890 High Energy pellets really help the cows to hold their peak and keep them in excellent condition."

Get More Hay. Better Hay. Faster!

Hay Stabilizers give you all of these:

- Savings in hay left in the field.
- Improved hay quality with more nutrition!
- Reduced curing time; bale before it rains.

Retain the freshness and feeding value of your grass silage or haylage with Beacon Silage Pre-Serv*

Now you can "lock in" the fresh-cut feeding value and palatability of your succulent forage crops even with moisture levels up to 65%

Beacon Silage Pre-Serv prevents heat build-up, controls oxidation and fermentation, greatly reduces spoilage and shrinkage. Treated silage has less seepage and saves handling time because there is less lumping and bridging in the silo. Get up to 30% more feeding value from every ton

Discover the benefits also of Beacon Hay Pre-Serv which allows you to bale higher moisture hay
